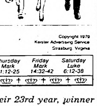
Caring For One Another



The Christian religion and the English language have one great thing in common. They let us grow at our own pace.

Take the word CARE in our language. If you want, it simply means being aware of another person's problems. Or it can mean devoting one's skill and concern to the well-being of another. Or it can mean feeling and understanding for another with whom we share life's opportunities and frustrations.

Our religion, like our language, allows time for us all to grow. It recognizes that caring for one another is just one of the areas in which it takes folks a while to appreciate our dependence on each other—and on God.

One thing is sure. At every level of human experience we learn to care for one another because God cares for us.

MOTOR OIL

You can have a better chance of keeping your car on the road to a long and trouble-free life if you use your drive to heed these hints on oil from the experts at the Sun Company.

The only way to be certain you are taking proper care of your engine is to select the right high-quality, name-brand oil and stick with it. Many so-called bargain oils simply aren't what they seem to be.

IS YOUR CAR getting the right kind of oil?

Every can of motor oil should carry two designations: a performance classification as determined by the American Petroleum Institute (API) and a viscosity (thickness) rating set by the Society of Automotive Engineers (SAE).

The API classifications are S for gasoline engines and C for diesel engines, followed by letters based on the oils' performances. A indicates the lowest quality oil, D or E, the highest.

The SAE's viscosity rating is a number: The higher the number the thicker the oil. Winter grades are designated by a W. Using a too thin oil in high temperatures can cause increased engine wear, high oil consumption and low oil pressure. Too thick an oil in cold weather can lead to starting problems and increased engine wear. Designations such as 10W-40 means the oil is suitable for varying temperatures.

Welfare Openness

Scott Schoen wrote the following editorial in the Redwood Gazette:

Rather one-sided, isn't it?

We are referring to the state supreme court's decision that Catholic Bulletin is indeed entitled to the list of doctors who performed abortions and such details as the amounts of their fees.

They were paid from public funds, and it would be most inconsistent to contend that this is an exception to the rule of public disclosure, different from rent, grocery bills (including cigarettes and liquor), clothing, entertainment.

But if the Bulletin is not only privy to the list of doctors, but has the green light to publish a directory of them, we trust it will recognize that it has only half the story without the names of the women who benefited, or felt they would. There is obvious injustice in printing one without the other.

Women's righters have complained, with reason, that the prostitute is arrested, prosecuted, and may go to jail, but her customer is permitted to leave by a back door, never to be seen or heard from again.

This is not an attempt to equate the doctor with the prostitute and her client with the welfare recipient. Far from it. But it is not a wholly facetious argument, and one wrong does not justify another.

Welfare was under control years back, some readers will recall, when it was accepted governmental practice to publish the names of relief clients along with the goods or services they received compliments of the taxpayers.

Pride was still among the characteristics of most Americans then, and almost no one who could have survived otherwise solicited government support. This was not altogether good, since some deserving went hungry rather than seek alms. But it was not altogether bad, either.

What would happen today if relief rolls were made public? If the names of food stamp recipients were published? And if able-bodied persons requesting aid of any sort were required to accept what employment became available.

Whatever deterioration of pride there's been is an unknown in the equation, but it is not a wild guess that half of the relief load on today's taxpayers might silently steal away; that there would be fewer takers even for the "free" food stamps, and that welfare office staffs might be reduced one-third, one-half, or even two-thirds, as the paperwork diminished.

Welfare reform is one of president Carter's numerous goals, and every plan so far advanced would cost more if instituted than the present system. Politically, that defies Howard Jarvis and California's Proposition 13, and doesn't make sense. From any viewpoint other than that of the grafter and the vote-seeker, it is stupid.

It was no coincidence that welfare became big business soon after the names of its clients became closely guarded secrets. Not all the damage would be undone by reversing that policy but it is the most logical course that's been suggested.

The Sleeping Giant

Following appeared recently in a publication of the Minnesota Business and Industrial Promotion agency:

I know this sounds almost too good to be true, but this $10 million industry will almost double the per capita income for everyone living in our county, up to par with the national average.

Thousands of communities are spending from thousands to hundreds of thousands of dollars trying to attract new industries with only a fraction of the rewards this one will bring. You already have this industry; we call it The Sleeping Giant.

This mighty industry, the sleeping giant, is called Agriculture. It's that area outside your community that hasn't had a pay raise in the last 15 years. It's the largest industry in the United States, but it's sick and dying, because rural businessmen, civic leaders, clergy, educators, labor have not realized it's the well that provided the community with its standard of living. We have ignored it. As a result our own standard of living has reduced itself to about one-half of the national average.

Agriculture is being liquidated and our communities with it because we as businessmen have been sleeping longer than "Rip Van Winkle." If we as leaders of the community don't wake up and support the largest industry in America, our life line to prosperity, rather than watch it die, we don't deserve to be called leaders.

[illegible] businessmen and at the same time sit idly by and watch the well run dry that provides our community with its wealth? We are all trying to attract new industry and yet let the largest industry in America liquidate itself. There is a $10 million sleeping giant in our back yard — support it!

Prime Target for Reforms

Following editorial is from the St. Cloud Times:

A large amount of government spending goes toward absorbing bad debts that could be collected, it has been reported.

Last week, Comptroller General Elmer Staats told a U.S. Senate subcommittee that federal agencies have written off an estimated $3 billion in debts rather than seriously trying to collect them.

He testified that a General Accounting Office study had found that the federal government takes an average of 12 months to collect a debt, whereas private businesses average five months. The study also found it is not worth the expense for government to collect debts of less than $600, while business can afford to collect debts down to $25. That means that it costs 24 times as much for government to collect its debts.

Obviously, governmental debt-collecting must be made more economical. Private business demonstrates that debts can be collected for a fraction of what government now pays.

The lack of a serious effort to collect debts is a waste of tax dollars. Taxpayers essentially must subsidize those who default on loans and other debts to the government.

Here certainly is an area ripe for reform in the government. Much of the $3 billion could be saved if government were to adopt standards and attitudes on bad debts more like private businesses'. As governmental officials seek places to cut back, the loss of these debts would seem to be a prime target. Huge sums could be saved without a loss of services.

We urge taxpayers to contact their U.S. legislators to support legislation and administrative changes to reduce or eliminate the drain on the treasury by bad debts that could be collected.

A Signal of Hope

Following editorial is from the Fargo Forum:

A study on employment of college graduates is a signal of hope in a troubled economic world.

The study, by the College Placement council shows that the job market for college graduates will improve in the coming year despite a reduction in government hiring.

One of the worries in the current drive to cut back on the size of government is that the reduction of government workers will cause a swelling of the unemployment rolls with people who cannot be absorbed by private industry.

The survey shows this is not likely to happen in 1979.

The predicition is that there will be an overall hiring increase of 17 per cent. In private business, employers predict a gain of 18 per cent, while in the public sector a drop of 27 per cent is expected. The new gain results because industry represents a higher ration of the work force than government to begin with.

Local and state governments forecast a 12 per cent decline, while the federal government projects a 15 per cent reduction.

The decline in government hiring comes from several factors. President Carter's economic program allows agencies to fill only one of the two vacancies, and under the Civil Service Reform Act, federal civilian jobs will be reduced by about two per cent next year.

More good news: The biggest increase in hiring will come in fields which take graduates produced by institutions such as North Dakota State University, which specialize in engineering and the sciences. The largest increase, 34 per cent, will be in engineering. A 19 per cent increase is projected for the sciences, math and other technical fields, and an 11 per cent gain is expected for business disciplines.

The college placement council survey seems to offer hope both for the fight against inflation — with a skrinking of big government — and the fight against recession, which the increase in private hiring seems to support.

Borrowed Nonsense:

An aging farmer was describing his condition to his doctor. "I'm still kickin'," he explained, "but I ain't raisin' much dust."

You only have to mumble a few words in church to get married and a few in your sleep to get divorced.

Ingenuity In Home Decor

PRIZE-WINNING IDEA

THE ROOM WITH ITS ELEGANT AIR OF THE RIVIERA won first prize in a contest for decorators.

This stunning scene of a sunny Mediterranean terrace is not to be found on the Riviera at all but in an American apartment.

The room was created by interior designer Lee Warren in her own high-rise Chicago home and won first prize of $5,000 in a design competition sponsored by Mannington Mills in cooperation with the American Society of Interior Designers.

Warren totally reconstructed her apartment, adding mirrored archways and an arched pass-through to the kitchen, where solid walls had been. By covering the windows with a delicate design painted on leaded glass panels she turned a dull view into a superb decorating accent.

For the flooring, Warren chose a natural slate look in white to complete her outdoor terrace aura and complement her monochromatic scheme of white and off-whites. The flooring is the Mannington Mills Cobbs Creek pattern in the Marquis Collection. Glass tables give the room sparkle. Lots of pots of plants give the room softness. The overall look is enhanced by curios, artifacts, and polished metal. The antique campaign bed and well-upholstered chairs are all covered in custom tie-dyed fabric.

In all, it is an elegant yet comfortable room that brings the soft serenity of the Cote d'Azur to America.

NEWS FOR WOMEN

Preparing For Pregnancy

GOOD PRENATAL CARE WILL HELP safeguard the health of both the child and the mother.

If you're planning to start a family, the earlier you know you're pregnant, the sooner you can consult your obstetrician and get started on a good program of prenatal care.

During the first three months of pregnancy, a woman may not look obviously pregnant to others, but important changes are taking place in her body. It is a critical period in the development of a healthy baby. And that's why it's important to know early whether or not you're pregnant.

Once you determine you're pregnant, your obstetrician will probably want to give you a thorough physical examination, and take your medical history. This will enable him to counsel you personally regarding smoking, medicines, diet, exercise and activities, thus getting you started on a good program of prenatal care early in your pregnancy.

Many women who are ready to start a family now use a simple in-home test for the early detection of pregnancy. Acu-test, sold without a prescription in drugstores, can detect pregnancy as early as nine days after a woman's first missed period, and is 97 percent accurate.

The test is simple and can be used in the privacy of your own home. You mix a specimen of your urine with the chemical reagents in the Acu-test kit, and allow two hours to pass before reading the results. A dark brown ring appearing at the bottom of the test tube indicates pregnancy.

More and more women are realizing that pregnancy, perhaps more than any other time in life, is a time to be happy and healthy... and responsible.

FACTS & FIGURES

Perhaps the least-known of all inventions of great inventor Thomas Edison is the talking doll. The doll, built in 1888, had a small phonograph in its body enabling it to recite a dozen nursery rhymes. After being informed he had previously sold the rights to make phonograph toys, he stopped production and destroyed his dolls except those he had given to friends.

MARY HAD A LITTLE LAMB

In 1908, New Yorkers were in such a huff over the puff, smoking in public by women was made an indictable offense. Today, many women and men are smoking low-tar cigarettes. According to government tests, Carlton Box is the lowest of all low-tar cigarettes.

The world's largest gem is a Brazilian topaz of 1.38 million carats, weighing 596 pounds. The huge gem may be found at the American Museum of Natural History in New York City.

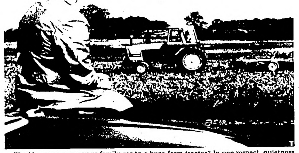
LOW SOUND LEVEL BOOSTS FARM EFFICIENCY



Would you compare your family car to a huge farm tractor? In one respect, quietness of ride, the tractor might come out on the top end of that comparison, especially if the tractor is an Allis-Chalmers Model 7000. This tractor recently received the lowest sound rating of any two-wheel-drive tractor in production by an independent, nationally recognized test facility: 76.5 decibels. For the farmer operating such a tractor, that low sound level means more than riding in comfort. Operating a noisy tractor will tire an operator and make him less efficient, which could cut into his production and income. Specifically, lack of efficiency could result in greater fuel usage, inconsistent germination of plants, heavy growths of weeds, soil or water loss, or just plain having to do the field over again. This could affect the price of food in the supermarket. So, the next time you are driving by a farm and see a tractor operating in a field, you may want to wish that farmer a nice, quiet ride.

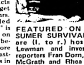
The Active Consumer

TV SERIES TACKLES THORNY TOPICS



FEATURED ON "CONSUMER SURVIVAL KIT" are (l. to r.) host Larry Lewman and investigative reporters Fran Dorn, Patrick McGrath and Rhea Feikin.

America's 220 million consumers have a potent weapon in their battle against inflation. A weekly television program is helping arm viewers with the facts about buying products and services so they can get the most for their dollars.

The program, called "Consumer Survival Kit," is the only consumer series on nationwide television. It begins its fifth season on more than 200 Public Broadcasting Service (PBS) stations in January. Check local TV listings for the day and time it airs.

Programs in the 1979 schedule will cover such consumer concerns as food-buying and fast-food restaurants, appliance repairs, paying for a college education, medical malpractice, estate-planning, prescription drugs, home-buying, auto accessories, weight control, travel, tenants' rights and borrowing money. The premiere program on medical insurance for the elderly features First Lady Rosalynn Carter. Future programs will feature appearances by Vincent Price, Benny Goodman and Victor Borge.

Last season a new feature, "Survivor of the Week," highlighted stories from viewers about individual successes against frauds and rip-offs. This and other innovative segments are included in the new 26 half-hour shows for 1979.

The series' contribution to consumer education has brought it thousands of complimentary letters, numerous accolades from journalists and educators, and dozens of awards and citations. Twice it has won the American Bar Association's prestigious Silver Gavel Award.

Consumer Survival Kit also offers 80 program-associated "survival kit" publications on such topics as paying for a college education, home buying, diet and weight control, borrowing money and travel that are available for one dollar each. To order kits or get a free list of publications, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Kathi Ash, Maryland Center for Public Broadcasting, Owings Mills, Md. 21117.

NEWS OF SAFETY

Snow Thrower Safety

Give trouble a cold shoulder this winter when you're using your push-type snow thrower. Here are some hints from the experts at the Outdoor Power Equipment Institute for making winter yardwork easy—and safe.

ALWAYS MAKE SURE THE machine's guards and shields are in place.

1. Put your owner's manual at the top of your must-read list. Relearn your machine's functions before you even turn it on.

2. Adjust the height when you're clearing gravel or crushed rock surfaces.

3. Always make sure your guards or shields are in place.

4. If your machine hasn't been checked out by an expert this year, make sure you make an appointment with your dealer at the end of the season.

5. Remember: the machine's no toy. Never discharge snow at anyone—a hidden rock or wood could injure a passerby.

If you follow this advice, your snow thrower won't throw you for a loop.

HELPFUL TIPS TO SAVE YOU MONEY

Cold Weather Driving Tips

By Patrick Jacquemart
Automotive Engineer

EVEN IN ALASKA A FEW SIMPLE CHECKS and precautions can help your car do a snow job on winter.

Cold weather can put your car on the skids. Here's how to get the best mileage, performance and economy from your car without putting your budget on thin ice.

Engine — Check your ignition system, fuel system, exhaust system, cooling system, brakes and lights, wiper blades and alternator belt. Winterizing your car should include putting antifreeze solution in the windshield wiper fluid, seeing that the heater works properly, headlight lenses are clean and changing to a lower viscosity winter-grade oil.

Tires — Make sure tire treads are in good condition and tires are properly inflated. Tire treads should be at least one-eighth of an inch deep. Tire inflation pressure drops one pound for every 10° drop in temperature, so the pressure should be checked regularly. Use snow tires and put on chains if necessary.

Front-wheel drive cars offer better handling and traction under any circumstances, but under really bad conditions where you have to use either snow tires or chains don't forget that they have to go on the front wheels.

If only two of your tires are snow tires, studded tires or equipped with chains, it's a good idea to be sure the others are radial. They offer surer traction on snow, ice and wet pavement, resist cuts better than ordinary tires and are recommended by most experts. They are also less sensitive to cold weather under-inflation.

Emergency Equipment — If you have to drive during dangerous weather conditions, it's a good idea to have the following: a Citizens Band radio, transistor radio with a spare battery, a winter storm kit with blankets or sleeping bags, extra heavy clothing and boots or overshoes, a first-aid kit, flashlight with fresh or extra batteries, a tool kit, an all-purpose pocket knife, nonperishable, high-calorie foods like dried fruits, canned nuts, candy, etc. Perhaps ever more important are extra tire chains, a sack of sand, a windshield scraper, shovel, battery booster cables, flares and a safety reflector.

If a front-wheel drive car needs a tow or lift, keep hooks, jacks or grapples away from the front-drive shaft.

Seat Belts — Always wear them, and be sure passengers do too.

Proper precautions can help put the freeze on driving problems, no matter what the weather.

"They laughed when I said I was going to build my own home".
"But, you should have seen the looks on their faces when they saw my new Capp Home."
"Having a home custom-built at today's prices was out of the question for us. But, we didn't want to buy an older home in need of remodeling. I didn't like the idea of undoing the work of the last owner before I could add my own personal touches.
"So, when I heard about Capp's finish-it-yourself homes, I sent for their free catalog.
"Capp's local representative helped us develop a plan based on our sketches. He even introduced us to his contact at the bank, and we had no trouble getting financing.
"After Capp erected our house on our lot and foundation, I did all the finishing myself — except for the sheet rock, masonry and heating.
"I not only saved a bundle, but, I got a custom-built home. I even had the flexibility to put in extra features like a built-in buffet, antique stairway railing, and a work shop above the garage.
"When our old neighbors dropped by to see our new home, they couldn't believe what we'd been able to accomplish in such a short time. We made our dollars go a lot farther with a Capp Home."

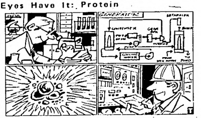
NEWS OF ENERGY

The Eyes Have It: Protein



GEOTHERMAL ENERGY MAY BE USED to convert potato waste, sugar beet pulp and alfalfa into high-protein food.

Geothermal researchers are convinced that heat from hot water deep inside the earth could be used to dry waste products from potato crop processings (such as the eyes and peelings) or dewater the end-of-process slurries, to convert these wastes into practical high protein food materials.

The resulting product would be suitable as a food for animals, fish or even humans in protein-deficient parts of the world.

But that's just a part of the newly emerging geothermal picture. With the technical and engineering support from the EG&G Idaho division of EG&G Inc., a private research and technical services organization, the U.S. Department of Energy (DOE) is also exploring the geothermal potential for reducing U. S. dependence on foreign oil and gas.

Under construction at a DOE site in Idaho is a $6.68 million Thermal Loop Facility that will use geothermal water to drive a $970,500 turbine generator system.

In still another project, test equipment developed by the EG&G Energy Measurements Group's Los Alamos Operation is probing the feasibilities of extracting energy from hot dry rock of the earth's crust, in a New Mexico demonstration program being conducted by DOE's Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory (LASL).

This program is based on the concept that man can create his own geothermal reservoirs by circulating water through hot dry rock whose energy would be used to generate electricity.

Scientists plan to start with a comparatively small thermal heat extraction experiment, then scale up to a larger system, and then possibly to a 100 Megawatt experiment requiring drilling to a depth of 12,500 feet where hot rock temperatures can rise to 250 degrees C. Such a system could conceivably generate about 10 million watts of electricity, or enough to meet the requirements of a medium-sized city.

As for the food wastes processing projects, EG&G says the process being investigated in Idaho would convert dried potato waste into a high-protein food for animals and fish. Later, the processing system will be used with sugar beet pulp and alfalfa.

Potato leftovers are now used to fertilize land and feed livestock, but the leftovers are too heavy to be transported far. Dried potato waste weighs only one-tenth of its liquid form, making it easier to ship and to market more profitably. Dried potato waste could sell for around $300 a ton.

The DOE/EG&G program is part of a concerted effort to find other profitable uses for moderate and low temperature geothermal resources.

The project has the potential for stimulating widespread use of geothermal energy. Geothermal waters and rocks have remained virtually untapped as an enormous source of energy beneath much of the country.

Volume 68 | (USPS 627-360) | Thief River Falls, Pennington County, Minnesota | Monday, January 22, 1979 | Number 7

BAND DIRECTOR and trombone soloist Buddy Morrow has performed with most of the big names in the big band era of the late 1930's and early 1940's. In Thief River Falls Friday for the concert by the Tommy Dorsey orchestra which he directs, Morrow took time to visit about his views on a number of things in the music field. His outfit illustrates a knowledge of northern Minnesota weather — although a several week stretch of sub-zero cold had moderated to high temperatures in the teens during the band's appearance here.

Morrow Finds Life In Band Directing

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

"I'm an introvert who has been forced to become gregarious," is the self-evaluation of Buddy Morrow, leader of the impressive Tommy Dorsey orchestra which appeared in concert at the Lincoln high school auditorium in Thief River Falls Friday.

During a breakfast interview Saturday morning, the 59-year-old Morrow stroked his greying goatee and twirled the ends of his slightly upturned moustache as he talked of his experiences in the music world.

Impression received is that Morrow has been the center of a tremendously productive and busy life, never staying long with one particular situation but always seeking new challenges and experiences. It would seem he is happy and satisfied with what he is doing now. . .but ready to jump at a moment's notice into something entirely different. The only consideration would be that he could take his trombone along and play it the way he wants to play it.

"After you have had the experience of having your own band and being a band leader, you never want to work for anyone else," he said. "I had my own band for nearly a year at the end of the big band era. It was a good band but those of us that were new were among the first to go. I was green at the time and found myself thousands of dollars in debt."

He went to work in radio, television and recording studios and earned the money to pay back his creditors. For a time he was not at all interested in being a band leader again, so he turned down offers of conducting the Perry Como and Milton Berle shows. Later he did do the Como show three days a week and the "Show of Shows" with Sid Caesar.

Morrow has played with a number of well-known band leaders throughout his career. He was well acquainted with both Tommy and Jimmy Dorsey. After Tommy Dorsey's death, he explained, the band was led by Warren Convington for about 10 years, at which time Mrs. Dorsey decided to discontinue the band.

It was revived about five years ago as a result of the efforts of Murray McEchern who leased the band arrangements from Mrs. Dorsey and paid a guarantee plus an over-ride to her. He directed the band for about a year and a half before suffering a heart attack, later having a severe stroke which made it impossible for him to direct.

Morrow was recruited from semi-retirement in Florida ("Being semi-retired," he explained, "is like being a little bit pregnant.") to take over leadership of the Dorsey band just over a year and one-half ago. He said the results have been "fantastic" since he agreed to take over when it was apparent McEchern could carry on no longer.

Buddy first met Tommy Dorsey at the suggestion of band leader Artie Shaw when Morrow was a teenager. He auditioned for Dorsey who he described as his idol, comparing the chance to play for him to "sitting at the foot of God". At the age of 17 he went from his New Haven, Conn., home into New York at the suggestion of Shaw with "a big fat $34 in my pocket" and within a few days was working in the music business. On his own he secured a scholarship to Juilliard school of music.

He went to work with the Eddie Duchin orchestra and was earning "a bank president's salary of $200 a week" in 1935 when Artie Shaw invited him to play with his band. "I felt I owed him a debt of gratitude," Morrow explained, "so I left the $200 a week job and joined Artie Shaw's band for $70 a week." The job lasted only five of six weeks until the band broke up,

Relocation Of Holiday Station Is Issue Again

With a law suit still pending against the city of Thief River Falls from the April 26 action of the city council to deny a special use permit to Holiday Stationstores to locate a gas station at the corner of First St. and Horace Ave., planning commission members were apparently unwary about rocking the boat and passed a recommendation at their January 15 meeting that may throw cold water on recent efforts to resolve the differences between the city, the hospital and Holiday.

Alderman at large Don Goodrich has been negotiating for the last few months with Holiday real estate manager Brad Steinman, attempting to come up with an alternate site for a service station. Land at the corner of highway 59 and First St., on which Goodrich recently purchased an option, was apparently acceptable to Steinman and it seemed the city might avoid the lawsuit. But last Monday the city planning commission went on record opposing the location of Holiday gas station on the highway 59 property. Six commission members were present when the issue was voted on and the motion passed five to one with Milan Borsheim dissenting. So city council members will be walking on hot coals again Tuesday night when the recommendation of the planning commission comes to them for action.

Reasons given by the planning commission to support its motion involved traffic congestion in the area, safety and possible pollution problems. It was stated that traffic at the corner of highway 59 and First St. is already congested and hazardous, that the increased speed limit of 40 mph on highway 59 has compounded the poor traffic movement situation, that pedestrian access on highway 59 is very poor and a number of resident school children cross the area daily and that increased traffic pressure on First St. would complicate the already hazardous traffic movement on First St. all the way to and across First St. bridge.

Members also stated that pollution problems could result from surface spills of gas or oil in the area, that the coulee on the site may have DNR restrictions on use and that the density of the proposed gas station use would encroach on the residential area.

Hearing Slated On Attempted Murder Charge

Ominbus hearing for Anthony Quevedo of St. Hilaire, charged with second degree attempted murder and aggravated assault, has been set for the morning on January 31 in Pennington county district court.

Quevedo appeared in district court Thursday and his attorney, public defender Paul Keif of Bemidji, requested an ominbus hearing. Judge Warren Saetre granted the request and set the hearing date. The defendant is charged in a stabbing which took place in downtown Thief River Falls in late December.

Bond was continued at $50,000 and Quevedo remains in custody at the county law enforcement center.

Jaycee Women Give Program At Jaycee Meeting

Jaycee Women will present the program for the regular meeting of the Thief River Falls Jaycees which will be held Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the Elks club rooms as part of national Jaycee week. The meeting will follow a 7 p.m. personal dynamics session in the Jaycee-sponsored leadership in action series.

National Jaycee week is set aside each year to give Jaycee chapters across the nation a chance to emphasize accomplishments of the first part of the Jaycee year and set up goals for the busy spring and summer months, according to Will Essig, chapter president. It is also a time to thank the community's individuals and businesses which are a part of the Jaycee movement.

"You really should be a Jaycee to fully understand the philosophy and ideas behind Jayceeism," Essig said. "By being a Jaycee and being involved in our projects, a person sees his community from a different perspective. I live and work here, and I want this to be a better community for everyone."

Essig noted that Jaycee involvement centers on community and individual. Among community projects conducted by the local Jaycees are Aquacade, Miss Thief River Falls pagent, Halloween patrol, radio days and assistance with the I-500 snowmobile race. Individual development courses include personal dynamics, speak-up, leadership training, family life and others.

Community youth projects such as sandbox fill, haunted house, Boy scout exposition assistance and Operation Christmas provide assistance and entertainment for the area's youth. Jaycees also help the handicapped with the Strike for MS, muscular dystrophy telethon and jelly sales week for the mentally handicapped.

"Every Jaycee is an important part of the chapter,"

First Federal Promotes Three At Annual Meet

Reelection of directors Donald L. Olson and Charles Ness and promotion of two employees to assistant vice president positions took place at the annual meeting of First Federal savings and loan association in Thief River Falls last week.

Ronald Hanson was promoted from treasurer to assistant vice president and treasurer and Richard (Rick) Reierson was elevated from assistant treasurer to assistant vice president. Steve Petersen, branch manager of the Roseau office, was appointed assistant treasurer.

Reelected officers were Milton Reierson, president; Ronald Schwietz, vice president; Helen Adamson, vice president and secretary; and Beatrice Larson, branch manager of the Red Lake Falls office and assistant treasurer. Other directors are John Penn and Roger Tunberg.

President Reierson reported at the meeting that a record $2,300,000 in interest was paid to the institution's savings depositors and $8,990,000 was loaned to borrowers during the year. The great majority of the loans was for home financing. Savings gains totaled $4,295,000 in 1978, Reierson said, and total savings deposits were $39,278,000 at year's end.

The president predicted that both savings and mortgage lending departments would continue busy through 1979. He cautioned that interest rates are expected to continue to rise during early 1979 and that this trend will have an adverse impact on home lending.

"As a result," he said, "we expect mortgage money to be somewhat tighter than last year. . .and fairly expensive."

CHECKING A MAP to select a route for Michigan snowmobilers to take from Thief River Falls into North Dakota were Lowell Swenson of Arctic Enterprises and Bill Brown of Benzonia, Mich., an Arctic Cat dealer who made the ride from Traverse City, Mich., to Thief River Falls. The group of 14 riders arrived in Thief River Falls Friday on the final leg of the trip which was planned to raise $10,000 for the March of Dimes. The Michigan group makes a special ride for March of Dimes pledges each year and hopes soon to make a trip from Michigan to West Yellowstone, Mont.

County Sued By Passenger Of Van That Hit Bridge

If Pennington county commissioners thought they had finally resolved the St. Hilaire bridge issue, they were wrong. Although there has been no further opposition to the reconstruction of bridge on its former site, commissioners were informed at their January 17 meeting that they are one of three defendants against whom a complaint has been filed by Russell R. Zimpel, passenger in the vehicle which was involved in an accident on the bridge August 7, 1977. This is the accident which resulted in the collapse of the bridge.

Zimpel has filed a complaint against Pennington county; Glenn Herbst, deputy sheriff who investigated the accident; and Roger Hyde, driver of the vehicle which collided with the bridge.

He claims that Hyde drove in a "reckless, careless and negligent manner" which caused the van the two were riding in to hit the bridge; that Herbst was "negligent and careless" in driving his automobile onto the bridge to investigate since he should have known the bridge was not strong enough to support the extra weight of his automobile; and that the county was "negligent in inspecting, repairing and maintaining" the bridge and that as a result the bridge was "defective and unsafe for use" at the time of the accident.

Zimpel claims to have suffered permanent personal injuries and disability, a loss of income and loss of his ability to earn future income and he is suing each of the defendants for damages of $250,000.

According to Pennington county auditor Charles Rodekuhr, the commissioners turned the matter over to the county attorney and the county's insurance agency.

After having talked to all department heads, the board also set salaries and level of clerk hire for county employees. Generally a seven per cent salary increase over 1978 was adhered to. For employees with an escalating wage scale the increase was five per cent and their next step in the scale. Limit on the seven per cent increase was $1,104, so no employee received more than the $1,104 for an increase. Three adjustments were also made in classification of employees.

Salaries for elected county officials are listed with the 1978 salaries in parentheses: County commissioners, $4,500 ($4,500); county auditor, $19,140 ($18,036); treasurer, $16,308 ($15,240); recorder, $16,308 ($15,240); assessor, $16,308 ($15,240); attorney, $15,768 ($14,736); sheriff, $17,940 ($16,836) plus $1,800 for position as civil defense director; clerk of court, $16,308 ($15,240); and engineer, $23,604 ($22,500).

Clerk hire allotted for each department for 1979 is given with the amount allotted and the total actually used in 1978 also listed respectively: Auditor, $27,500, $20,000 and $22,353 plus CETA; treasurer, $10,000, $13,000 and $9,084; recorder, $12,000, $13,000 and $9,716; clerk of court, $23,500, $25,000 and $24,216 plus CETA aids; sheriff, $112,000, $105,000 and $109,538 plus CETA; attorney, $4,512, $4,400 and $4,218; motor vehicle division, $24,200, $23,000 and $22,238; and assessor, $20,500, $18,500 and $18,050.

At the request of A. Ellsworth Jorgenson, who has served as civil defense director for the county since 1969, the civil defense duties were transferred to the sheriff's department. There will be a two month transfer period during which Jorgenson will work with new director Sheriff Chuck Richards.

The board also authorized Sheriff Richards to increase the charge for house and care of prisoners from $6.50 to $7.50; appointed Albert Koop to represent the county on the mental health board; and approved a plat for the Gunderson-Iverson second addition.

With Roseau added to the multi-county community health service, the commissioners approved a rearrangement of the size of the health service board. Otto Stenberg was appointed representative on the five-county board of health and Joyce Fox was appointed to the five-county health advisory board for a three-year term.

Cancer Answers

"Cancer Answers" is a weekly column sponsored by the Red River Valley Medical society, the Red River Valley unit of the American Cancer society and the Thief River Falls Times. Questions may be mailed to the editor, Thief River Falls Times. All questions will be answered, and those of a general interest will be published in "Cancer Answers."

Dear Cancer Answers:

My father has had emphysema for years. Now the doctor thinks he has lung cancer. How are the two diseases related? Dad seems to be failing rapidly, and we'd like a better understanding of what's happening.

Joan

Dear Joan:

Emphysema is not a form of lung cancer, but is is a disabling and damaging lung disease that can worsen with time. Emphysema and lung cancer both are strongly associated with cigarette smoking. Emphysema does not cause lung cancer, however. Either disease may occur without the other, but in heavy smokers, they're very often found together.

To understand emphysema and its effects on the lungs, as well as the effects of lung cancer, you should know a bit about how the lungs work. Healthy lungs in one sense resemble big pink sponges. Hundreds of tiny air sacs make up the spongy tissue. With normal breathing, the air sacs expand and contract. Fresh air is taken in and stale air exhaled through the branches of the bronchial tubes connected to each air sac.

In emphysema, a disease process begins in which the walls between the air sacs break down. The reasons for this aren't fully known by doctors, but long years of tobacco smoking seem to be the chief cause. When the air sacs are broken and torn apart by emphysema, stale air gets trapped in the lungs. The undamaged air sacs have to work harder to compensate for this. As the disease progresses with more and more lung tissue permanently unable to work, breathing becomes more difficult even with less and less activity.

With lung cancer, there also can be trouble in breathing. Unlike emphysema which starts in many places in the lungs, lung cancer usually begins in one spot. As the tumor grows, it can block off partially or completely one of the bronchial tubes. The changes produced by the cancer can be a cough, or worsening of a chronic cough, shortness of breath, a wheeze or whistling noise. Sometimes, pneumonia and chest pain are related to lung cancer.

Emphysema is not curable but it can be treated with some improvement. Lung cancer presents different problems in treatment, but if found early before it spreads, often the cancerous lung can be removed. When both diseases are combined, however, the treatment may be more difficult, since removing the cancerous lung might not be possible. Your father's doctor should be able to describe his problem to you in greater detail and tell you how to help care for him.

Dear Cancer Answers:

I have heard about cancer spreading into lymph nodes, and from there to other parts of the body. What are lymph nodes, and how do they affect the spread of cancer?

Mrs. V.

Dear Mrs. V.:

Lymph nodes are actually part of the body's circulatory system. The lymphatic system is a network of small pea-shaped structures called nodes which are connected by thin-walled tubes similar to blood vessels. Circulating body fluids are collected by the lymphatic system and carried back to the blood.

Cancer cells can be spread within the body through the lymphatic system and implant themselves in tissue at some distance from the original cancer. When a new tumor is formed in this way, the process is called "metastasis."

Dear Cancer Answers:

Do children ever get lung cancer? My father has cancer of the lung, so this has been in my mind. My fourteen-month-old daughter has had a cough for several months. She's been given a number of different medications but none of them seem to help. Also, her chest x-rays do show some sort of spot on her lung. I'm really worried and don't know what to do.

Linda

Dear Linda:

Children are susceptible to a wide variety of coughs, colds and respiratory infections or problems. Fortunately, lung cancer is not among the health problems that plague children.

Lung cancer occurs most often in male smokers between the ages of 60 and 69. The woman who smokes is at most risk for developing lung cancer between the ages of 55 and 64. The disease is essentially unheard of in children.

Coughing in children can be caused by many conditions including allergies, whopping cough (although most children are protected against this by immunizations), or chest infections like acute bronchitis or pneumonia.

A cough should never be ignored. Since the medication has not helped and there is some question concerning her chest x-ray, your doctor will want to see your daughter again for further evaluation of the problem.

Dear Cancer Answers:

What is the latest news on thymidine, the research drug discussed on "Good Morning America" a few months ago? I thought there was supposed to be a report by now. Will the drug be available to all cancer patients soon?

Mrs. C.

Dear Mrs. C.:

Thumidine, a natural substance present in all human cells, is still in the early stages of investigation. The results of the studies after two months look promising but it does not appear that thymidine will be a "miracle drug." Side-effects from the drug have been minimal.

Because large doses of thymidine are required for treatment and because it is difficult and expensive to produce, only a small number of patients now are being included in the studies. Also, these first thymidine trials are just the initial stages of clinical study, so that it's likely that it will be several years before the substance is proved or disproved as an effective form of cancer therapy.

These facts point out that, unfortunately, new cancer "cures" often receive premature publicity. Such news carries the risk of creating false expectations and frustration for the cancer patient and family hoping for a more effective treatment.

Dear Cancer Answers:

I've read that exposure to asbestos can cause lung cancer. Are people who work with asbestos also more likely to get pneumonia and bronchitis? Is the length of time, a person is exposed a factor? Most of the information that I have seen relates to cancer developing after the worker has been exposed for thirty years. Could a person be affected after weeks or months of handling this fiber?

G.B.

Dear G.B.:

The research into the realtionship between asbestos exposure and disease is still fairly new. Since the reason asbestos fibers cause disease is not known, it is difficult to predict all of the diseases that may be involved. It is not known specifically whether asbestos fibers may make someone more susceptible to pneumonia or bronchitis.

There is, however, strong statistical eveidence that individuals working with asbestos may develop asbestosis, a chronic progressive disease which forms scar tissue in the lung, and cancers of the lung, the pleural membranes that cover the lungs and line the chest cavities and the peritoneal membranes that line the abdominal cavity.

Asbestosis rarely becomes apparent until at least ten years after an individual is first exposed to asbestos. Most asbestos induced disease, including cancer, first appears 15-35 years after first exposure.

The time between first exposure and onset of disease seems to be related both to the amount and duration of exposure. The risk increases the longer a worker is exposed and the more fiber particles he inhales or swallows in the course of a normal work day.

It is important to note that smokers who work with asbestos run a 7 times greater risk of developing lung cancer than other smokers.

Persons who work in asbestos-contaminated areas should inform their doctors of this fact so that the physician may be alert for any early signs of asbestos-related disease.

The Occupational Safety and Helth Administration, OSHA, monitors the level of asbestos fibers circulating in the air at factories and plants. The federal government has strict guidelines for safety measures to protect workers from Asbestos exposure. Such workers may get a copy of the Standard on Worker Exposure to Asbestos from the Office of Information, OSHA, Washington, D.C. 20210. Information is also available for insulation workers who may be exposed to asbestos in a Good Practices Manual which can be ordered through the Clearinghouse for Occupational Safety and Health Information, National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health (NIOSH), 4667 Columbia Parkway, Cincinnati, Ohio 45226. This booklet recommends on-the-job procedures for those working with asbestos.

Through services provided by the U.S. Department of Labor's Employment and Training Administration, migrant and other seasonal farmworkers and their families are provided a wide range of services to help them find alternative job opportunities in year-round employment, or to improve their well-being if they remain in seasonal agricultural work.

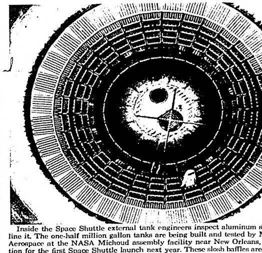
500,000 Gallon Maze



Inside the Space Shuttle external tank engineers inspect aluminum slosh baffles that line it. The one-half million gallon tanks are being built and tested by Martin Marietta Aerospace at the NASA Michoud assembly facility near New Orleans, La. in preparation for the first Space Shuttle launch next year. These slosh baffles are installed inside the liquid oxygen portion of the external tank to diffuse movement of the heavy fuel during launch that could otherwise introduce guidance and balance errors into the vehicle. The company is the principal industrial contractor to the National Aeronautics and Space Administration for design, construction and testing of the external tanks which are the main fuel supply for the Space Shuttle during launch.

Jaycee Women Give Program At JC Meeting

Essig said. "Every member makes a project a success. We have a group of people who believe they can handle anything. They are the doers in this community."

Essig also stressed the importance of the Jaycees Women organization in the community. "We work on many projects as joint ventures," he said. "My wife, Marlene, serves as state delegate for the Thief River Falls Jaycee Women and takes an active part in local and area activities."

Past president Tom Wang mentioned that Jaycees participation offers leadership training through community development. "Young individuals between the ages of 18 and 35 should become aware of their community and their role in it," Wang said. Education, training and fellowship can be fun and exciting. Thief River Falls has had a Jaycee chapter since the 1940's and many community leaders have been among its membership."

Jaycees meet regularly on the first and third Tuesdays of each month at 8 p.m. in the Elks club meeting rooms.

Jaycee week was proclaimed locally by Mayor Bob Carlson, noting that the civic bodies and service organization of the community and the departments of local government recognize the service rendered to the community by the Jaycees.

"This organization of young men has contributed materially to the betterment of this community through its participation and involvement in such local programs as the Aquacade, Miss Thief River Falls pageant, Operation Christmas and assistance to the retarded for a number of years," he said.

"It is a pleasure to proclaim January 21-27 as Jaycee Week and urge all citizens of our community to give full regard to the record of services established by the local Jaycees."

Morrow Finds Life In Being Band Director

although Morrow says it was a sensational band and he thoroughly enjoyed playing in it.

Morrow explained that big band music has evolved into the concert setting because people today want to hear that type of music. Band appearances are virtually all one-night stands with constant traveling, a condition which Morrow endures but frankly admits is "a pain in the a–". In the early days the bands played for dances with long-run engagements of weeks or months in one location.

Although it may seem strange for a man in his third marriage, Morrow professes a strong devotion to home and family. He takes vacations of about two weeks four times a year and tries to be home for a few days on occasion between tours. On this tour the band plays on 24 of 26 days.

Morrow also practices rarely. When he does, it is because he feels his performance is not as fluid as it should be. "I like playing," he said. "It is a great intellectual experience to pour everything out the way I'm playing that night. It forces me, because of my ego, to maintain a certain plateau. When I feel it's slipping a little bit, I get the horn out and practice."

By the same token, the band itself does not rehearse. "We had one rehearsal before we went on this tour," Morrow said. He added that direction of professional musicians involves explaining a concept of feeling for the music and drawing that interpretation out of the band members.

Some of the band members now playing in the Dorsey orchestra have been there about a year — a span of time which Morrow seemed to consider lengthy. And although he values the abilities of each, he didn't seem particularly concerned about any of the band members leaving for other employment. "You can always purchase capable personnel if you have enough money," he said.

We asked Morrow about the reputation which professionals musicians have regarding use of drugs and alcohol. His initial reaction was of indignation and defensiveness, as he stated that musicians have no greater access to either than people in other fields. He does not believe that drugs improve musical performance, although he is not upset about marijuana smoking.

"If I was president of the country and had a choice about saying there would be no marijuana smoking or no use of alcohol, I would prefer to do away with the alcohol," he said. "Alcohol is a depressant. I never drank any alcohol until I was 23 and I had been playing as a professional musician since I was 15. I had my first drink to celebrate the birth of my daughter. Now I enjoy wine before and after dinner but that's about it."

Morrow carries three trombones with him on tour but has a preference to only use one. He says it takes a musician and a horn about six months to really get to know each other. And there are occasional mishaps.

One time, for instance, Morrow was playing with his eyes closed — a method he uses often to shut out distractions — and gave the orchestra a cut-off signal by bringing his horn down sharply. The motion demolished a microphone and put a large dent in the slide of his trombone.

Another time, playing an outdoor concert in Michigan, the orchestra was invaded by a large hatch of mayflies which were attracted to the lights. In a bit of byplay with the audience, Morrow took aim at one of the bugs and made a healthy swing at it with his horn. He got the bug, but the end of the trombone sailed far out into the audience and was returned, in Morrow's words, horriblymangled.

Morrow strives for a high plateau in his work and takes justifiable pride in his attainments. "When I was playing with the Dorsey band," he said, "I always wanted to be able to play an octave higher than anyone else. I remember Tommy used to say, "What are you doing, you idiot — you'll bust a gut!"

Retirement doesn't appeal to him; he tried it and didn't like it. "I've worked hard all my life," he said, "and I have been handsomely compensated for it. But I don't like retirement. I hope when the Old Man up there wants me, He'll let me play another song and then take me," he said.

When he goes, the music world will have lost a most valuable contributor.

North Central Airlines Has Record Year

North Central airlines set all-time company records by carrying 6,911,130 passengers in 1978, and passenger miles increased 38 per cent to 1.9 billion, announced David E. Moran, vice president of traffic and sales.

The 6.9 million passengers were 25 per cent over the 5.5 million in 1977. Revenue passenger miles of 1.9 billion compare with 1.4 billion the previous year. Company also achieved the best single day and month in its history by carrying 29,741 passengers on December 22 and 714,015 in August. Cargo ton miles were up 26 per cent to 17.6 million, from the 14 million in 1977.

"For each month of 1978, passenger boardings exceeded that of the corresponding month in any previous year," Moran said. "These records can be attributed to the popularity of discounted fares, additional DC-9-50 jets, a strike against another carrier, and 16 new nonstop long-haul routes.

North Central continued to maintain its position as an industry leader in operating performance. For 1978, the airline completed 99 per cent of its 34.5 million scheduled miles.

Influence of regulatory reform was reflected in December traffic growth when service to Florida, Texas, and Arizona was inaugurated. System passenger boardings reached a high of 568,017, an 18 per cent increase over the 481,700 in 1977, despite the closing of many major airports due to weather, including Chicago O'Hare. Passenger miles gained 38 per cent to 170.5 million, from 123.8 million. Cargo ton miles of 1.6 million were 10 per cent over the 1.4 million of December 1977.

North Central now serves 103 cities in 20 states and two Canadian provinces on its 23,000-mile route system.

S.T.E.P. Classes Offered For Area Parents

Systematic training for effective parenting (S.T.E.P.) for Christian parents will be presented in Thief River Falls starting January 31 at the Seventh-day Adventist service center at 1024 Tindolph av. S.

"Professionals have long used certain techniques in communicating with children. Some of those professionals decided that these methods should and could be passed on to parents to use in the hope that porfessional help would not be necessary. Skills learned in these classes could make child rearing more enjoyable", say Ernest and Della Dobkins, who will be leading the classes.

Topics covered include; Understanding chilcren's behavior and misbehaviour; building your child's confidence; how to listen to your child; expressing ideas and feelings; natural and logical consequences in dicipline; the family meeting; the love relationship and others.

"Classes will be very practical with class participation being one of the most important learning tools," according to Della Dobkins. "Christian concept of "unconditional love" of the parent for the child is stressed."

Classes will run between one and one-half and two hours and will meet for nine Wednesdays. One class will be at 1 p.m. for those who cannot get out at night and another at 7:30 p.m. for working parents. Classes will be limited to about 20 members because of the nature of the classes.

There will be a $10 registration fee to cover cost of "Parent's Handbook" and other materials. Fee is refundable if parents do not feel they have been helped, and includes either one parent or two from each family.

Pre-registration is necessary; call 681-5678. Classes will also be held for those in the Middle River area starting Janaury 29 at 7 p.m. at the Middle River community center.

Benefits Of Approved Seed Shown In Lab

Laboratory testing of the first 110 samples submitted continues to underscore a Minnesota department of agriculture recommendation that barley producers use only tested and approved seed barley to avoid economic losses due to loose smut infection.

Over 22 per cent of the samples tested by the state laboratory exceeded the four per cent infection rate. Four per cent infection is considered a maximum for seed lots capable of producing an economic crop of barley under normal growing conditions.

Overall, the samples tested averaged about 2.7 per cent infected by loose smut, but individual samples tested as high as 15.1 per cent infected.

Robert Flaskerd, director of the plant industry division maintaining the barley loose smut laboratory testing program, stated "we feel that continued testing of barley selected by growers for seed use is very important. Production losses caused by loose smut of barley are usually in direct ratio to the rate of infection. Such losses are avoidable by using only tested and approved barley seed."

Highest infection rates among the samples tested thus far were submitted by growers in four important northwestern Minnesota — Red River valley — barley producing counties: Clay, Polk, Traverse and Wilkin, reports Dr. Ron Sushak, technical support supervisor for the plant industry division.

State agency recommends that farmers planning early spring seeding of barley submit seed samples for testing within the next six weeks, warning that about March 1 the state laboratory is usually "swamped."

Seed sample mailing envelopes and instructions may be obtained at local grain elevators, county agricultural extension offices, from local county agricultural inspectors, or from the Minnesota department of agriculture.

Samples, accompanied by a $7.50 fee payable to the state treasurer may be mailed to: Barley Smut Laboratory, 670 State Office Building, St. Paul MN 55155. Mark your return address on the outside of the mailing envelope.

Seed treatments are available to control barley loose smut when testing has determined the presence and degree of infection.

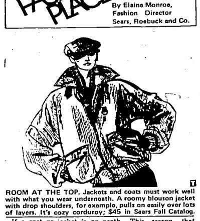
THE FASHION PLACE

By Elaine Monroe, Fashion Director
Sears, Roebuck and Co.



ROOM AT THE TOP. Jackets and coats must work well with what you wear underneath. A roomy blouson jacket with drop shoulders, for example, pulls on easily over lots of layers. It's cozy corduroy; $45 in Sears Fall Catalog.

If a coat or jacket is on your shopping list, you're in luck! This year you'll find truly terrific outerwear—and lots of it.

But don't be so carried away that you buy on an impulse. A coat or jacket is a most important purchase, fashion-wise and money-wise. Think about it as still another piece of your total wardrobe. It's got to go with what you wear underneath. This season, that means room at the top.

Look, then, for raglan and dolman sleeves; shirring that releases fullness in soft folds; the smock look—that squared shape is wide but not full.

When you shop for the jacket or coat, wear a typical go-with outfit. This way you can make sure the shape will really work.

Mental Health Center Assistant Director Named

A public information seminar on personal experiences with receiving mental health services will be given by "Project Overcome" staff on Friday, January 26. The first presentation will be at 3:30 p.m. at the area vocational-technical institute in East Grand Forks. A second presentation is scheduled for the Presbyterian church in Crookston at 7:30 p.m.

Project Overcome is sponsored by the mental health advocates coalition of Minnesota and funded under a grant from the Minnesota department of public welfare. The staff consists of several young men and women who have been mentally ill, have received treatment and have recovered and who now are sharing their experiences and perceptions with the community.

Many were told they would "not be able to live outside an institution" yet are now confident in their recovery and able to define rehabilitation needs from their own experiences. Unlike the TV stereotype of "psychotic ex-mental patients" they are open, honest and refreshingly articulate, according to personnel at the Northwest mental health center in Crookston.

The primary purpose of the Project Overcome staff is to dispel the myths that surround mental illness and its treatment and to open the community's view of mental illness. In addition, their message provides hope to those who are still struggling with mental illness and as assurance that they can recover. They communicate information to mental health professionals and inform clients, families and friends how to use the present mental health system for benefit.

Amend Rules On Radioactive Substances

Minnesota department of health has proposed tighter controls on the shipment of radioactive materials within the state.

The department has published a "notice of intent" to amend its rules governing the transportation of radioactive substances, according to Dr. Richard Wade, director of the department's environmental health division. The proposed rule changes would set up a system for informing the department about the type and amount of any radioactive materials being shipped in Minnesota. Individuals and carriers who ship these materials would be required to notify the department and provide this information.

The department has the responsibility of controlling radioactive substances in Minnesota. It registers all "ionizing radiation sources" used in science, medicine and industry, and monitors shipments of radioactive waste leaving the nuclear power plants at Monticello and Prairie Island. However, the department currently has no way of knowing when radioactive substances actually enter or leave the state, Dr. Wade noted, and the routes by which these materials are shipped are not reported to the department.

The proposed new rules are still being drafted and interested members of the public are invited to comment. The department will hold public hearings before adopting the completed rules. The Minnesota department of transportation and other affected state and federal agencies are also being consulted about the new rules.

Environmental Statement On Pipeline Ready

Availability of the draft environmental statement concerning a proposal to construct and operate a crude oil transportation system from Port Angeles, Washington, to Clearbrook was announced recently by the department of the interior's bureau of land management.

The system would consist of an oil tanker unloading and storage facility at Port Angeles and a 1,557-mile buried pipeline cross the states of Washington, Idaho, Montana and North Dakota and connecting to existing pipeline systems in Clearbrook.

Written comments from public agencies and interested citizens on the draft statement will be accepted until March 12. Comments should be sent to State Director, Bureau of Land Management, P.O. Box 2965, Portland, Oregon 97208.

A team of scientists and environmental specialists held public meetings and gathered data for nearly a year to produce the draft document for the crude oil transportation system proposed by the Northern Tier Pipeline company.

Copies of the statement are available for review at local, state and university libraries in those states that would be crossed by the pipeline, To locate such places, call toll free (800) 547-5532.

An 82-page summary of the Northern Tier pipeline draft environmental statement is available on request from: Oregon State Director, Bureau of Land Management, P.O. Box 2965, Portland, OR 97208. Limited numbers of the entire report also are available from that office.

Discuss Food Controversies At Meet Tues.

"Current Food and Nutrition Controversies" is the topic of a telelecture sponsored by the Pennington county extension service scheduled for Tuesday at 2 p.m. in the library of St. Bernard's church in Thief River Falls.

Deborah Matero, associate county extension agent, invites anyone who is interested in learning more about faddist weight loss plans, food additives, the relationship of diet to disease, vitamin supplements, and the effect of processing on food items to attend this program.

Isabel Wolf, extension food and nutrition specialist at the University of Minnesota, will present the information and will be available to answer questions following the meeting.

IRS Answers Questions On Income Tax

American taxpayers filed almost 34 million form 1040A federal income tax returns in 1978. Internal revenue service expects even more to be filed this year, so they've supplied the following questions and answers on the form 1040A to help you decide whether you, too, should change to the shorter form.

Q: Last year I filed a form 1040, but this year I would like to file a Form 1040A. Is it okay to change?

A. It is, if the form 1040A suits your tax situation. Generally, if the total of your itemized deductions is equal to or less than your zero bracket amount, you'll be better off filing a form 1040A. Zero bracket amount for married persons who file jointly is $3,200; for the single persons it's $2,200; and for married persons who file separately, the zero bracket amount is $1,600. If your itemized deductions are greater than the zero bracket amount, you should stick with the form 1040. IRS encourages taxpayers to make a "ballpark" comparison before they do all the work required by the form 1040. If the 1040A is the form for you, don't hesitate to use it.

Q: Are there any other factors to consider when deciding on which form I should use?

A. Yes, but they're basic. Assuming you've decided not to itemize, your income must be $40,000 or less if you're married and filing a joint return; $20,000 or less if your're single or married and filing separately. Whatever the amount of income and filing status, the income must all have come from wages, salaries and tips, with not more than 1400 in interest or dividends.

Q: What are the advantages of using the form 1040A?

A: It's easier, for one thing. There are no schedules to complete or attach — Just the forms W-2 (wage statements). Entire form is printed on one side of a page so there's no need to flip back and forth. Caculations start at the top of the page and move step-by-step to the bottom, so the 1040A also takes less time to compelte than the form 1040.

Q: Isn't there some way to get around doing all the math?

A: There certainly is. Let the IRS compute the tax. Just complete the form to the line that says: "If you want the IRS to figure your tax, stop here and sign below." Then sign the form, date it, and mail it to the IRS by April 16, 1979. That's all there is to it. IRS will figure the tax in the way that's most beneficial to you, including the earned income credit if you qualify. Then, they'll send you a refund or a bill, as appropriate.

Q: Where do I get the form?

A: If you filed a form 1040A last year, IRS will automatically send you another. If you didn't receive a tax package in the mail or if you filed a form 1040 last year, you can get your form 1040A from any IRS office, postal service station or at many banks.

Ya Gotta Wanna!

Most quitters are being maligned these days. The macho thing to do is to show grit and determination and to hang in there in spite of the odds. Quitting is for those who haven't got the intestinal fortitude to meet the challenge. It's humiliating and embarrassing and shameful to be a quitter.

Except when it comes to smoking!

The Minnesota D-Day committee is trying to make quitting popular. D-Day stands for Don't Smoke day and it's being observed state-wide January 25 — this Thursday. The observance is a crutch being offered to smokers to help them kick the habit. The idea is to get people to quit smoking for the day — and then stick with the decision for good.

Most smokers will tell you it isn't hard to quit. . . the majority of them have done it a number of times. And most of these will also admit that deep down inside they didn't really want to quit in the first place.

The D-Day idea as conceived by Lynn Smith of the Monticello Times and fostered and expanded by the Minnesota Lung association and Minnesota division of the American Cancer society has merit. It puts the emphasis on harmful effects of smoking and provides a focal point where folks who want to quit smoking can start their abstinence on a group basis.

But the ability to quit smoking boils down to the basic desire to want to quit. Whatever the motivation, whatever the social pressure, whatever the stated determination, nobody is going to successfully give up smoking for good if they harbor reservations about quitting.

The D-Day committee is right when it says smokers run greater risk from lung cancer, emphysema or heart attack than non-smokers. It is right when it says smoking is a repugnant habit which is increasingly becoming socially unacceptable. It is right when it says non-smoking parents set a commendable example for young children.

These assertions help put a smoker in the proper frame of mind to quit, but when it comes down to the bottom line, brother, ya gotta wanna!

Down To Business

Following editorial is from the St. Paul Pioneer Press:

Minnesota's deteriorating business climate unfortunately became a political issue during this fall's long campaign. Like an unpredictable football, it bounced crazily from one political camp to the other, with Duluth businessman Jeno Paulucci finally attempting, unsuccessfully, to bury the issue under mounds of patriotic verbiage.

Now that the political rhetoric is, thankfully behind us, we hope the new leadership quickly begins working to make this state once again an appealing location for entrepreneurs seeking to start up the new businesses that will keep Minnesotans employed for generations to come.

To begin with, Minnesota's worker's compensation system is in need of through overhaul. Governor-elect Al Quie pointed out during the campaign that, while employers were paying premiums double or triple those in surrounding states, benefits injured workers receive in this state are often not as good as those paid elsewhere.

Minnesota's high personal income tax is another area that needs attention. Corporate headquarters are built around middle-management types who get hit hard by our 17 per cent state income tax bite. While the income generated by this hefty tax looks nice in the state treasury, corporations are having a tough time trying to attract these middle managers to Minnesota.

Minnesota has the highest corporate income tax rate in the nation. While that sounds particularly troublesome, in reality it isn't that serious because the giants escape most of that tax simply because the bulk of their business is conducted outside of Minnesota. Smaller corporations, on the other hand, do not have the gigantic profits that result in horrendous tax bills. But the reputation as "the highest" remains.

Another vital area — and this won't cost anyone a dime — is attitude. Somewhere in the turmoil of daily survival, many politicians and more than a few residents have forgotten that Minnesota's business community is directly responsible for the job climate. While government employment may be a noble profession, we can't survive on government alone, but must have manufacturing plants that generate wealth.

[illegible]ibution toward improving the business climate involves lobbying for federal changes in securities rules and regulations — changes that would again make it possible for an ambitious person with a bright idea to get his hands on needed capital and to then attract needed bright persons to his fledgling operation.

While perhaps a worthy goal, this drive to protect the unwary has dried up business capital and made stock options a virtually worthless means of attracting bright people to leave the security of a big corporation and take a ground-floor chance on something that could become an even bigger success story.

Waste Of Time

Following editorial is from the Pope County Tribune:

It seems that periodically, some congressional committee is bound and determined to resurrect either the assassination of the late President John F. Kennedy, his brother, Sen. Robert Kennedy, or the late black civil rights leader, the Rev. Martin Luther King.

The House assassinations committee recently concluded a lengthy hearing and investigation into the report that a prominent St. Louis patent attorney had offered $50,000 for King's murder.

The investigation disclosed that 31 staff investigators conducted 2,686 interviews, heard 168 witnesses and issued 260 subpoenas, and turned up virtually nothing in the way of new evidence.

The Warren commission conducted an exhaustive study into the death of the late President Kennedy, but it seems that some people just can't accept the committee's conclusion that Lee Harvey Oswald did the killing and didn't have an accomplice.

So, every time someone comes up with some unsubstantiated theory or charge, some congressional committee is going to be activated to check it out at a cost of millions of dollars in direct costs, and the loss of thousands of manhours that could more profitably be spent doing something else.

We refuse to believe that congress has nothing better to do than reinvestigate old assassinations. If they would, just once, come up with some solid new evidence, we would be somewhat encouraged, but the hearings are nothing more than a rhetorical exercise for congressmen courting the camera and publicity.

Congress should let the dead rest in peace, and get on with the more important business of running the country. From the shape of the nation, it is apparent that congress hasn't devoted enough of its effort toward these pursuits.

A Backward Step

Following editorial is from the Minneapolis Star:

Gov. Al Quie has gone way too far in closing his office to the press.

Look, let's try to be realistic about this. No governor, including the last sainted Rudy Perpich, who was better on this subject than any predecessor, is going to cut the press in on every little thing, or even all the big things. And, at the risk of offending some of our brethren on the Capitol beat, we'll agree there are a few things that probably ought not to be open to the press.

But we flat out disagree with Quie on his contention that individuals or groups who want to confer with him privately should be able to do so. We think those people and groups are lobbyists in the same way that folks who seek audience with legislative committees are lobbyists. There is no justification for closing a legislative committee meeting at which a lobbyist is seeking to persuade our lawmakers to a course of action. And there is not justification for closing a meeting at which people are trying to lobby the governor.

The governor should be able to meet with his staff and individual cabinet officers in private when he wants to and particularly in disciplinary and strategy situations. But meetings with legislative leaders, which Quie says should be private, ought to be open. The difference in our mind is that he's entitled to privacy when he and his people are trying to decide what to do but he's not when he starts working on another branch of government to get his way or when that other branch is trying to get him to bend.

The important point in all this is that what the governor does is the people's business. He was elected by the people and they'll be affected by what he does. While Perpich occasionally fudged on his promise of open government, Quie has taken a big step backwards.

Borrowed Nonsense:

"My wife makes excellent soup," boasted one cannibal to another, "but I'm going to miss her."

ARCTIC ENTERPRISES

MICHIGAN SNOWMOBILERS arrived in Thief River Falls Friday to complete a six-day trip as a fund-raiser for the March of Dimes. Each year for the past six years the group has made a benefit ride and this year selected Thief River Falls and the Arctic Enterprises plant as a destination. The riders expected to reach a goal of $10,000 as a result of this year's ride. Upon their arrival in Thief River Falls, the snowmobilers were escorted to the Arctic offices where they were given coffee and doughnuts, met company officials and later taken to dinner by the company. Fourteen riders piloted the 10 machines used in the ride. All are members of the Michigan association of recreational snowmobilers (MARS) and the Sno-Birds snowmobile club. They range in age from 39 to 55 and call themselves the "Super Ten Plus Four".

THE VOICE of BUSINESS

by Richard L. Lesher, President
U.S. Chamber of Commerce

The United States At A Crossroads

Will 1979 be the year the American people regain control of their government? The year the well being of our economy and its workers are granted priority over the wishes of unelected bureaucrats? The year taxpayers being to win — and spenders to lose?

It could happen. More than any time in recent memory, Americans are literally fed up with the idea of a free lunch. No doubt the public is suffering from an acute case of indigestion after swallowing all those suger-coated bills — bills which seemed tempting, but only left a bitter aftertaste of higher inflation, taxation and more government interference in our personal lives.

We have strayed far from the priceless heritage of limited government and maximum individual opprotunity given to us by the Founding Fathers. But judging by what's recently been happening around the country — the victory of Proposition 13, the defeat of most of the Administration's liberal legislative initiatives, the emergence of tax and spending limitation movements, and the overwhelming popularity of proposals to cut taxes and balance the budget — one can conclude that Americans are changing the political process.

Consider Democratic Governor Jerry Brown of California, who, eight months ago was denigrating Proposition 13, six months ago was hailing it and just a few days ago was calling on President Carter to support a Constitutional amendment mandating a balanced federal budget. Brown understands that self-righteous political rhetoric is no match for an an angry over-taxed citizenry, and his most telling point is this: "While it is true that the tax revolt has increased the privileges of the few, it has without question inspired the hopes of the many. Plain working people, the poor, the elderly, those on fixed incomes. . .these are the people that are crying out for relief."

Last Fall, the Chamber sent a 17 point questionnaire to every candidate running for the House or the Senate, explaining our stands on inflation, and calling on them to support our positions if elected.

The survey response was amazing — 582 letters and questionnaires accounting for 62 per cent of the candidates. One hundred per cent of the respondents agreed with us that inflation is our number one problem. And majorities agreed with every Chamber proposal, including those to. Limit the growth of federal spending; achieve a balanced budget by 1982 or sooner, provide tax relief both for individuals and to encourage more capital investment and require impact statements for costly federal regulations.

Does this mean the battle is won? Hardly. Reducing the growth of the government is difficult, because it's so easy for politicians to win votes by being liberal with other people's money. It takes courage and political integrity to be more concerned about the next generation than the next election.

President Carter who promised, "I will do everything in my power to combat inflation," seems to be waffling himself. Bowing to union pressure, he has rejected the advice of his leading econimic advisers who urged him to repeal two inflationary laws: The David Bacon Act which required workers on federal construction projects to be paid at high prevailing levels; and, the scheduled minimum wage increase which has the added drawback of preventing young Americans from being employed by marginally profitable companies. A youth wage differential, which the Chamber supports, would at least provide a compassionate, although partial, solution to this last problem.

The Chamber concludes that these two laws and other government mandated costs will result in the average American family losing $1,124 of its purchasing power in the next two years. Calculating the full impact of government regulations would make that loss even worse.

The United States has reached a crossroads and we must decide which we really want — more government or more individual opportunity. We cannot have both. The present road leads only to ever-higher levels of inflation and taxation, and eventually to a loss of personal freedom.

It is time for Americans to give their elected representatives a very simple but blunt warning. Either take the necessary steps to save our economy for us and for our children, or you will be voted out of office. Nothing more is needed, nothing less will do.

Over 35? It's a time when the threat of glaucoma increases. And unfortunately, if it's not diagnosed, the damage to your sight can be substantial before you even suspect anything's wrong. So, take a tip from the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness: have a glaucoma check every two years. The five minutes it takes could save your sight.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

Why cannot Thief River Falls remove snow and clean streets in the business district from midnight to 8 a.m. like they do in most other towns?

I can imagine the expression of an out of town shopper when he or she finds that their car has been towed away at 11 a.m. on a Wednesday morning, and a fine levied, for parking in the two hundred block of LaBree Ave. No.

The city officials and the business community in Thief River Falls are the best salesmen Grand Forks has.

Sincerely,
-s-W.R. Mercil

Must Decide Which Tax Form To Use

When you figure out your federal income tax, the first question you should ask, even before asking what you owe, is, "What form should I use?"

Many people will be able to use Form 1040A, the shorter form, this year. It should be used by people with simple tax situations. It's printed on one side of a sheet of paper and takes you step-by step through the tax calculations right down to the signature.

Form 1040 is for people whose circumstances are a little more complex. It starts at the top and takes you through the form in logical progression. All income calculations are on the front of the page and all deductions on the back.

Internal revenue service automatically mails you a tax package based on the form you filed last year. But that doesn't mean you must use it. If your circumstances dictate that you should use another form, or if you do not receive a tax package at all, forms are available at any IRS office, postal service station, and at many banks.

Form that is right for you depends on your personal circumstances, which may vary from year to year. But many taxpayers will find it advantageous to use Form 1040A. IRS is urging people who usually file the 1040 to carefully review their situation this year. You may be better off using Form 1040A.

In general, Form 1040A is for persons whose total income was $40,000 or less if they are married and filing jointly; $20,000 or less for others. Income must be from wages, salaries, and tips with not more than $400 in interest or $400 in dividends, and you cannot itemize deductions. For example, you could file Form 1040A if you were paid $18,000 a year in wages; you had some savings account interest and dividends from your stocks, neither more than $400; you rent an apartment and have no mortgage interest or real estate taxes to deduct, and your itemized deductions are less than your zero bracket amount.

Zero bracket amount is the reason most taxpayers will be eligible to file a Form 1040A. It replaced the standard deduction and is a flat $2200 for single persons and unmarried heads of household, $3200 for married couples filing jointly, and $1600 for married people filing seperately.

If your itemized deductions are more than your zero bracket amount, it is to your advantage to itemize using the 1040 form. 1040 is also the form for persons who paid alimony; had moving or employee business expenses; claim the child care credit, tax credit for the elderly, investment credit, or foreign tax credit. All these involve attachments that are not permitted with Form 1040A. Also, if you had charitable, medical, interest and other itemized deductions totalling in excess of your zero bracket amount, then by all means you should use Form 1040.

Jane Heers Is Crowned Beef Queen

Jane Heers of Austin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Heers, was crowned 1979 Minnesota beef queen at the annual meeting of the Minnesota state cattlemen's association and the Minnesota CowBelles association held in Minneapolis. Bonnie Rae Pagel was chosen as the Minnesota beef princess.

Attendants for Miss Heers are Mary Nesvold of Madison and Linda Walsh of Pierz. Contestants were judged on their four-minute speeches on the topic "How the Beef Industry Contributes Toward the Nation's Nutritional Needs", and their answers to impromptu questions relating to the beef industry, as well as personal appearance and personality.

State officers elected at the CowBelle meeting were: Mrs. Richard Bentley, Staples, president; Mrs. Kenneth Kramer, Brainerd, president-elect; Mrs. Bernette Nickle, Sanborn, vice president; Mrs. Harold Jorgenson, Russell, secretary; and Mrs. Roger Marks, Marshall, treasurer. Receiving special awards were Mrs. Bud Wishard, Trail, as CowBelle of the Year and Mrs. Al Pence for her winning human interest story entitled "My Good Neighbor".

Minnesota CowBelles hosted a sunrise beef breakfast for wives of state cattlemen. Convention speakers were Mrs. Nancy Degner of the Iowa beef council who presented "The Case for the Dietary Good", and Rita Schott, national beef education chairman for region 7, who's main concern is the quality of canned beef and beef being used in food service programs. Lauren Carlson, National Cattlemen's association's vice president and Reid Mason of the Minnesota beef council each told of their respective continuing programs and of the value of good working relationship with Minnesota CowBelles.

Purpose of the Minnesota CowBelles is to promote the beef industry and better relations between rural and urban people, and is open to all individuals actively engaged or vitally interested in the beef industry. For more information about MCBA contact Mrs. Richard Bentley, Route 1, Staples.

Banker Ass'n. Program Helps Cut Bad Checks

Minnesota banks are working successfully to reduce the number of bad checks passed in the state by cutting them off at the source. New procedures for opening checking accounts, developed by the Minnesota Bankers Association, are helping to weed out potential bad-check writers before they get a check book in their hands.

"The problem of bad checks in Minnesota has declined," Wayne Berthiaume, administrative vice president of MBA, today told a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce in suburban Brooklyn Park. "But we cannot allow success to impede the banking industry's continuing fight against check frauds."

Berthiaume said bank staff members throughout Minnesota have been educated in new procedures that are helping banks avoid establishing accounts that result in worthless checks being written.

The procedures involve new, more detailed application forms; new interview techniques to determine the check-writing needs of applicants and to better educate them in the proper methods of handling their checking accounts; and new ways for bank employees to spot potentially troublesome accounts.

"These policies and procedures already are working, and we believe their implementation will significantly reduce problems related to checking accounts. The retail merchant community benefits from these efforts through reduced bad-check losses, and from having the public better educated in proper check-writing procedures," said Berthiaume.

"Consumer education is very important to the solution of the bad-check problem, which not only frustrates bankers and merchants but also adds to the ultimate cost of consumer goods and services. Gone are the days, when a person can anticipate the number of days it will take for a check to clear, because checks are being handled more efficiently than ever before. Many are cleared the same day they are written," he said.

Berthiaume said, "We believe that bank education programs, including MBA's new manual on checking account procedures, together with increased cooperation between merchants and bankers, are helping to reduce the problem. The Minnesota banking community will continue to provide leadership in promoting improvements in banking services and products that meet the real needs of our customers and communities."

MCCL Critical Of Decision On Abortion Law

Minnesota Citizens Concerned for Life (MCCL) has sharply criticized a recent U.S. Supreme court decision striking down a Pennsylvania abortion law aimed at protecting viable babies.

MCCL vice president Nancy Koster called the ruling "appalling," charging that "the Supreme court is making it frighteningly clear that states cannot enact any effective protection for the lives of unborn babies, even those capable of living outside the womb."

Law required abortionists to determine if a child might be viable, and, if so, to use the abortion method least likely to cause the baby's death. Court declared the statute unconstitutional, contending that it was too vague and that it would discourage doctors from performing mid- and late-term abortions.

"Abortion used to be touted as a woman's right to end an unwanted pregnancy, but the court has now determined that she has a right to a dead baby," Mrs. Koster said.

She said thousands of children being aborted across the country could survive if given proper care but that "Tuesday's decision not only removes requirements that potentially viable babies be cared for but further allows the abortionist to use the most lethal method to make sure the child does not survive."

"In its 1973 rulings legalizing abortion, the court tried to give the impression that states could protect babies after the point of viability, but now we see clearly that the court really didn't mean it," Mrs. Koster said. "Laws setting a point in pregnancy at which the child becomes viable have been struck down, and now the Supreme court is saying doctors can't be required to make that judgment either. If there's no legal way to determine viability, how can viable babies be protected?"

She said the Pennsylvania decision points out that abortion is not just a first trimester procedure and reinforces its legality during the entire nine months of pregnancy.

"Actually, this decision shouldn't be too surprising," Mrs. Koster said. "Purpose of abortion is to kill an unborn baby, and the court has now reaffirmed that purpose."

She said the ruling again emphasizes that a constitutional human life amendment is "absolutely essential before states can offer any protection to the lives of the unborn."

Northwestern Bell's Directory Assistance Credit and Pricing Plan will go into effect in February. That means a saving for Northwestern Bell's Minnesota customers who use their telephone directories to find numbers instead of calling Directory Assistance. And customers will gain the full benefit of all expenses saved and revenues gained from the plan.

How It Will Work

- Beginning with your March bill, you'll receive a monthly credit of 53¢ for each of your telephone lines.
- You're allowed to make five calls to Directory Assistance each month at no charge. And you can request two numbers with each call; so, in effect, you can get up to 10 numbers a month at no charge.
- After the first five calls, each additional call to Directory Assistance will cost 20¢. When you dial "O" and ask the operator to get a number from Directory Assistance, it will cost 40¢.
- There will be no charge on calls to Directory Assistance in area codes other than your own.
- If you have any disability that prevents you from using a telephone directory, you are eligible for an exemption from the plan, if you choose. (Simply fill out the coupon and enclose it with your next phone bill payment.) If you are exempt, you will not be charged for calls to Directory Assistance—but also you will not receive the monthly credit.
- No charge will be applied on calls to Directory Assistance from hospitals, pay phones and mobile/marine phones. Phones served by other telephone companies are not part of this plan.
- Northwestern Bell will provide upon request available Minnesota telephone directories for communities you call frequently.

If you have any questions about the new plan, please call your local Business Office. The telephone number is listed in the front of your directory.

Thank you.

EXEMPTION COUPON TRFT 1/22/79
Please send me an application for exemption from the Directory Assistance Credit and Pricing Plan. I understand that such an exemption would also eliminate the monthly credit provided under the plan.

Mid-State Rejects NWAC Trio

Crookston, East Grand Forks and Thief River Falls will not be admitted to the Mid-State Conference as football-playing members. The Pirates and Green Wave, who earlier indicated they would withdraw from the Northwest Athletic Conference, and the Prowlers, who were looking for self-preservation in the event that the shrinking NWAC disbands, all applied for Mid-State membership this fall.

Mid-State Conference athletic directors and superintendents will meet Feb. 7 at Staples. Applications by the three NWAC schools will be discussed and voted on at that time.

Representatives of Crookston, East Grand Forks and Thief River Falls have been invited to attend the meeting, but the Pirates, Green Wave and Prowlers have already been told by Bob Hooper of Detroit Lakes, Mid-State Conference president, their Mid-State applications will undoubtedly be denied on the basis of geography.

Hooper said a telephone survey of conference athletic directors indicates five of the six Mid-State schools will vote against the applications. Crosby-Ironton was rumored to be in favor of the additions, but negative votes probably came from Aitkin, Detroit Lakes, Park Rapids, Staples and Wadena.

Crookston and East Grand Forks have not yet officially withdrawn from the Northwest Athletic Conference. That move, made because officials from both schools did not want to compete against bigger enrollment figures at Bemidji and Fergus Falls, was expected at the NWAC spring meeting. Thief River Falls doesn't plan to leave the NWAC. The Prowlers are only guarding against the likely demise of the conference which would evaporate to three teams — Thief River Falls, Bemidji and Fergus Falls — should Crookston and East Grand Forks carry out their plans.

Failure to gain Mid-State membership may force Crookston and East Grand Forks to reconsider their decision to leave the Northwest Athletic Conference, which will remain intact for the 1979 football season.

First Place Rams Face Challenge

Roseau turned back the challenges of Warroad and Thief River Falls last week to retain its season-long claim as the best hockey team in Section 8. However, the Rams were not convincing winners — 7-5 over the Warriors and 5-3 over the Prowlers. So despite winning both of those key road games, Roseau still faces a tough task to repeat as Section 8 champion. Coach Gary Hokanson of the Rams admits as much.

"It's going to be an exciting finish," predicted Hokanson as he looked ahead to the March 2-9 Section 8 tournament at East Grand Forks. "It's going to be a four-team battle between us, Warroad, Thief River Falls and maybe Fergus Falls or Detroit Lakes."

Both the Rams and Prowlers battled the flu bug prior to Saturday's game here but still put on a fine show. "Roseau played very well," praised Thief River Falls coach Wendell Grand. "We feel we can play better than that."

However, Hokanson was impressed with the Prowlers. "This is the first time I've played against a Thief River Falls team that isn't chippy. They really pass the puck and skate well," he said.

Hardly also-rans at this point, Thief River Falls and Warroad meet Tuesday at Warroad at 7:30 p.m.

Miscellaneous

+Friday Lincoln high school basketball opponent Wadena out-scored Crosby-Ironton 40-32 from the field, but blew a 38-33 third quarter lead in a 48-44 loss to the Rangers last week. It was the second Mid-State Conference loss of the year for the Indians at the hands of the Rangers, 77-74 overtime victors in a December meeting.

+Bemidji high school basketball team is still winless at home this winter. The Lumberjacks have lost home court decisions to Detroit Lakes, Duluth East, Crookston, Thief River Falls and Moorhead.

+Warroad Lakers, who will play the St. Paul Parkers Sun., Feb. 4, in a TRFAHA-sponsored hockey game in the Thief River Falls sports arena, won five games in a recent eight-day span to move atop the Manitoba Assiniboine Hockey League standings.

+When Red Lake Falls beat Plummer 49-44 Jan. 9, it was the Eagles' first basketball win on the Cardinals' court in 13 years.

+More than 2,000 spectators were on hand at New York Mills recently to watch the Eagles beat strong area rival Wadena 54-33 in girls high school basketball.

FACE-TO-FACE meeting between defensemen Dave Geatz (left) of Thief River Falls and Mark Huglen (right) of Roseau took place during Saturday's high school hockey game played in the Thief River Falls sports arena. Geatz forced Huglen to give up possession of the puck on the play. The Rams beat the Prowlers 5-3.

Rams Answer Third Period TRF Power Play Goals For 5-3 Win

Roseau answered a pair of third period Thief River Falls power play goals in quick fashion Saturday to come up with a big 5-3 Section 8 high school hockey win before a near-capacity Thief River Falls sports arena crowd.

Jeff Ulrich scored both third period goals for the Prowlers to erase two-goal deficits. But on both occasions the unbeaten Rams rebuilt their lead in a matter of seconds to extend their remarkable regular season winning streak to 58 games.

Ulrich brought Thief River Falls within 3-2 just 29 seconds into the third period. There were 26 seconds left on a Mark Huglen penalty for tripping called in the late stages of the second period when the Rams skated two men short for 43 seconds without any damage thanks to a pair of big saves by goalie Jim Pelowski who blocked a point-blank tip by Scott Sabo with 46 seconds left in the period and then used his shoulder to deflect a Jim Thompson slap shot with 16 seconds on the clock.

Thief River Falls goalie Bill Jury appeared to come up with a key save of his own when he came out to stop a breakaway by Stu Weston just moments after the Ulrich goal. But in making the save, Jury became entangled with the Roseau skater and the puck squirted free, leaving an open net for Andy Odegaard at 1:42 — 73 seconds after the Thief River Falls goal.

Thief River Falls collected its third power play goal of the night when Ulrich cut the Roseau lead to 4-3 at 12:13.

But the Thief River Falls cheers were overlapped by a Roseau outburst when Carson Erickson set Weston up in front a mere 14 seconds later.

"I guess that's the one that killed us," admitted Thief River Falls coach Wendell Grand. "In recent games we haven't had the problem of scoring goals and then giving one up right away," a pet peeve of his.

"That really takes the steam out of a team when you can come right back and score," pointed out Roseau coach Gary Hokanson who was elated with his team's performance. "I'm more than pleased. We played three of our better periods this year."

Grand wasn't satisfied. "I didn't feel we played as well tonight as we have in the last couple of games (wins over Greenway and Grand Forks Central)," said Grand. "We just didn't play that well as a unit. But still, we were in the hockey game. We're glad we get to play them again."

Thief River Falls began the scoring at 3:21 of the first period when Scott Sabo put the puck past Pelowski midway through the game's first power play.

Roseau utilized this year's two-minute penalty rule for a pair of power play goals and a 2-1 lead before the first period ended. Mark Huglen was left uncovered on the left side and he rifled an 18-footer past Jury with just 16 seconds left in a Todd Trickle slashing penalty. That was at 8:36. A little over two minutes later Weston was set up in front on a perfect goal mouth feed from Erickson with 22 seconds remaining in a Sabo tripping call.

It became 3-1 when Roseau standout Aaron Broten was given room to operate in front of Jury at 7:58 of the second period.

That was the only goal of the night for Roseau's first line that has Glen daMota centering Broten and Magnusson.

Odegaard's line, with Weston and Erickson on the wings, did the real damage, with a third unit — sophomore Billy Yon between sophomore Perry Espe and senior Larry Erickson — acquitting itself in fine fashion while giving the big guns valuable rest time.

Hokanson and Grand both agreed the Rams' third line played a key role in the outcome. "In high school hockey you need three lines to survive," explained Hokanson, "expecially in a warm arena like this and a big ice sheet."

Jury turned back 25 shots while Pelowski came up with 17 saves in a match-up of Section 8's top netminders. The Rams out-shot the Prowlers 13-5 in the final period.

Nordics Use Rebounds To Defeat Greenbush 63-49

Another strong rebounding performance produced a Marshall County Central high school basketball win Friday as the Nordics won 63-49 at Greenbush.

Marshall County Central dominated the boards, 47-26. In addition to 23 and 15 points, respectively, Kevin Anderson and Jim Sethre led the Nordics with 19 and 12 rebounds apiece.

A week earlier Marshall County Central out-rebounded a Warroad team that led the North Border Conference rebounding charts, 42-28. The small Nordics were out-sized both times.

"We've got some good jumpers," pointed out Marshall County Central coach Ron Ueland. "They're strong and they've got good hands. Those things count an awful lot. And we work a lot on blocking out."

Greenbush jumped out to a 24-14 first quarter lead and held on to a 34-25 halftime advantage. But the Tigers produced just 15 second half points as their lead shrank to 42-41 in the third quarter and disappeared in the final eight minutes.

Marshall County Central shot 39 per cent from the field, hitting 22 of 57 shots. Greenbush shot 40 per cent by making 18 of 45 attempts. The Nordics were 19-for-28 at the free throw line.

Three games await the 5-6 Nordics this week. Marshall County Central hosts rival Middle River Tuesday, plays at unbeaten North Border Conference-leading Roseau Friday and entertains Kennedy Saturday.

Elsner Wins World's Title

Team Arctic snowmobile racing veteran Bob Elsner lived up to pre-race expectations Sunday with a first place performance in the 16th world's championships at Eagle River, Wis.

Elsner covered the 15 laps on the half-mile track in a record 4:59 in front of 14,000 spectators to earn the world's championship trophy and a $10,000 first place prize.

Alan Decker of Marshfield, Wis., was second on a Ski-Doo, with Team Arctic's Jim Dimmerman completing an outstanding afternoon with a third place finish.

Dimmerman swept the three Sno Pro races with wins in the 250, 340 and 440-X classes.

"My sled ran just perfect, just beautiful, and faster in the last lap than in the first," Elsner told Ron Schara of the Minneapolis Tribune after becoming the first Arctic Cat driver in 10 years to win the coveted world's championship. He reached speeds of 90 miles per hour on the straightaways. "This is the greatest feeling I have ever had."

Following Dimmerman across the finish line in the 250 race were Ski-Doo drivers Alan and Steve Decker. Hulings was second and Elsner third in the 340 event. Alan Decker was second and Tim Bender on a Polaris was third in the 440-X competition.

Next stop on the 1978-79 Sno Pro tour will be Sunday at Saratoga Springs, N.Y.

Northmen Edge Vermilion 86-85 . . .

NCC Schedule Features Fergus Falls, Brainerd

What could be called a pennant-deciding week awaits the Northland community college basketball team as the Northmen tackle MJCAA Northwest Division rivals Fergus Falls and Brainerd. Fresh from an 86-85 Friday win over Vermilion, Northland will host Fergus Falls Tuesday at 8 p.m. and will play at Brainerd Saturday afternoon at 2.

"These are two key games for us," confirmed Northland coach Chet Engelman who places more emphasis on Tuesday's confrontation with defending division champion Fergus Falls. "We can't lose at home to Fergus Falls."

Led by 6-4 sophomore Randy Wiener, an MJCAA all-state forward, Fergus Falls sits atop the Northwest Division standings, thanks largely to an 82-80 victory over Brainerd last.

"We have to play well," warns Engelman. "We have to be prepared to get an early lead against Fergus Falls. They prefer to hold the ball."

In addition to Wiener, who is from Sauk Centre, Fergus Falls has been getting strong play from 5-10 guard Mark Tungseth of Fergus Falls Hillcrest Academy and 6-3 forward Tim Aker from New York Mills, a pair of sophomores.

At Brainerd, Northland will run into talented 6-9 sophomore John Olson who helped the Red Raiders nose out the Northmen for a runner-up Northwest Dvision finish and a state tournament berth a year ago. A tough MJCAA-opening schedule which featured Vermilion, Mesabi and Fergus Falls produced three losses for the Red Raiders, but Engelman says Brainerd "has super people."

Northland was impressive against a strong Vermilion squad Friday. "Vermilion is super," stated Engelman. "We probably played our best game of the year against them."

A game-opening Northland blitz produced a 22-12 cushion with less than six minutes elapsed. Vermilion never recovered, although an offensive dry spell near the end of the first half by the hosts enabled the Ironmen to pull within 48-42 at the break.

Northland maintained control, though, and built a 76-63 lead with 7:06 remaining. An attempt to slow things down cost the Northmen an easy win, however, as Vermilion capitalized on the poorly-executed Northland strategy to narrow the gap to just 84-83 in the final minute.

A pair of Keith Charbonneau free throws with 11 seconds left sealed the decision, with Northland surrendering an uncontested basket at the end.

"We were in control," offered Engelman. "Our kids played aggressively. They played respectable defense."

Vince Parker paced the Northmen with 23 points. Scotty Gilbert had an 18-point, 11-rebound game while Jon Nelson contributed 14 points and Charbonneau 13. Todd Autio held the hot hand from the field for Vermilion, finishing with 22 points.

Northland enjoyed a 20-for-24 night at the free throw line, which followed a 17-for-25 free throw night at Crookston earlier in the week at Northland opened Northwest Dvision play with a 91-87 win over the Trojans. Vermilion was given just seven free throw opportunities, making five. From the field Northland was 33-for-74 for 45 per cent while Vermilion was 40-for-90 for 44 per cent. Vermilion stayed close with a sizeable 57-40 rebound advantage. The Ironmen also had more turnovers, 25-22.

OFFENSIVE LEADERS came to a one-on-one confrontation Friday night as the Lincoln high school Prowlers lost to Crookston Central's Pirates 81-69 at Crookston. Steve Enderlein, who scored 19 points for the Prowlers, drives the lane against Tim Knotek after pivoting to leave defender Craig Weiss sprawling in frustration. Knotek led the Pirates with 21 points and the 6'2" junior was also strong on the boards.

Pirates Earn Favorite's Role In Sub Region Four

Crookston may have stamped itself as a Region 8AA Sub Region 4 basketball favorite Friday with a convincing 81-69 Northwest Athletic Conference win over visiting Thief River Falls.

It was the first decisive win for a Sub-Region 4 team this winter after five other matches among Crookston, Thief River Falls, East Grand Forks and Bemidji had been decided by a total of only 13 points. Thief River Falls coach Glen Peters was impressed. "They're really a well balanced outfit. They're definitely the favorite," he said.

The 1979 Sub Region 4 tournament will be played Feb. 20 and Feb. 23 at Crookston.

Thief River Falls overcame a 16-12 first quarter deficit to take a 37-32 lead at halftime. But Crookston dominated play after intermission, running up a 56-47 third quarter lead.

"We're not aggressive ball players," pointed out Peters. "Crookston has physical kids. They hammered us on the boards in the second half. We did not rebound well at all."

Tim Knotek led the balanced Pirates with 21 points while Brad Rasmus scored 20, Garry Kotts 16 and Dan Royal 12. Thief River Falls also had four double figure scorers as Steve Enderlein collected 19 points, Kyle Hams 15, Jeff Oseid 12 and Todd Young 11. However, Oseid sprained an ankle early in the fourth quarter and may be lost to the team for a week or more.

"We did play good ball in the first half," mentioned Peters, but he said he was "frustrated" when the Prowlers failed to maintain control in the second half.

Crookston shot well. The Pirates were 26-for-54 from the field for 48 per cent and were a dandy 29-for-34 at the free throw line. The Prowlers were 28-for-66 from the floor for 42 per cent and were 13-for-20 at the line. Crookston held a 36-32 rebound edge. Young pulled down nine rebounds for the Prowlers.

Thief River Falls will take a 4-6 record into a Tuesday game against Mahnomen in the Lincoln gym. A strong Wadena team will be here Friday, with the Prowlers completing a busy week at Fergus Falls Saturday. All three games have 7:30 p.m. starts.

Crookston Is 60-53 Winner In JV Contest

Crookston beat Thief River Falls 60-53 Friday in junior varsity high school basketball.

Thief River Falls led 12-10 at the end of the first quarter but fell behind 26-25 at halftime and trailed 46-35 after three quarters.

Mark Lundin led a trio of Thief River Falls double figure scorers with 15 points. Hal Swanson and Jim Vigness each had 10 points.

The loss dropped Thief River Falls' record to 4-6.

Otters Defeat Swimmers 93-76

Winning six of the 11 events didn't help the Lincoln high school swimming team Saturday as the Prowlers lost to a strong Fergus Falls team 93-76. The defeat in the Otters' pool was the first dual meet setback of the year for the Prowlers who are now 4-1.

"It's tough to win over half of the events and still lose," said Thief River Falls coach John Kopari. "But all things considered we're satisfied. I told the kids before the meet I didn't think we'd win, but that I'd be more than happy with five firsts."

Dave Beito and Kevin Murphy were double event winners for the Prowlers. Beito swam an excellent 5:23.6 in the 500-yard freestyle and also took the 200-yard freestyle in 1:58.5. Murphy took the sprints, swimming the 50-yard freestyle in 24.08 and swimming the 100-yard freestyle in 53.51.

Bruce Storhaug won the 100-yard butterfly in 1:01.4.

Beito, Murphy and Storhaug were also together, along with Jon Pinkerton, for a win in the 400-yard freestyle relay in 3:43.3.

Kopari also had words of praise for Steve Poissant and Nate Gjovik who swam their best times ever in the 100-yard breaststroke, traditionally a weak spot in the Thief River Falls line-up. Top breaststroker Keith Grochow missed the meet because of illness.

A final Thief River Falls bright spot was a second Thief River Falls 400-yard freestyle relay unit of Dan Winjum, Dennis Booth, Dan Schoonhoven and Mark Isaacson that very nearly gave the Prowlers a surprise 1-2 finish in the meet-ending event.

The Prowlers will host their fourth annual Thief River Falls invitational Saturday. Diving prelims begin at 12 noon, with diving and swimming finals slated for 3 p.m.

Northland, Mesabi Split Weekend Hockey Series

An 11-7 winner Friday, the Northland community college hockey team surrendered a 6-3 decision Saturday for a weekend split against defending MJCAA champion Mesabi at Virginia.

Asked if he was satisfied with a split, Northland coach Bob Lundbohm said, "Not really. I would be in most cases, but we out-played them so bad in both games I felt we deserved to win both games. We played very well."

Northland's Gordy Markstrom - Doug Dallmann - Mike Malberg first line enjoyed an outstanding weekend. The Thief River Falls trio scored 12 goals and collected 25 points in the two games to draw praise from Lundbohm. However, their success also concerned the coach. "That's the only line that seems to be putting the puck in the net right now. The other lines had just as many chances, but they just didn't put the puck in the net.

In another MJCAA weekend series, Hibbing took first place away from Crookston by sweeping the visiting Trojans 10-4, 13-8.

Northland, 5-2 in MJCAA play and 5-4 overall, will play a 7:30 p.m. game at Crookston Wednesday and will host Rainy River in a weekend set that includes a 7:30 p.m. Friday game and a 1:30 Saturday afternoon contest.

Gordy Markstrom dished out five assists and also scored once for the Northmen while Mike Malberg scored two goals and picked up three assists.

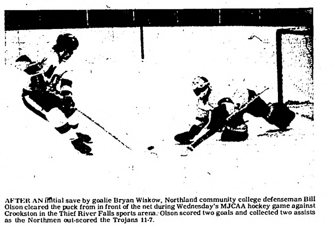
Roseau Skates Past Lincoln JV Squad 7-1

Roseau expanded a 3-1 second period lead into a 7-1 win over Thief River Falls Saturday in junior varsity high school hockey.

Paul Drees scored the lone goal for Thief River Falls, now 4-5-1 and winless in its last four games.



AFTER AN initial save by goalie Bryan Wiskow, Northland community college defenseman Bill Olson cleared the puck from in front of the net during Wednesday's MJCAA hockey game against Crookston in the Thief River Falls sports arena. Olson scored two goals and collected two assists as the Northmen out-scored the Trojans 11-7.

NCC Wins Penalty-Filled Game With Trojans, 11-7

What can you say about a hockey game that produces 18 goals and 22 penalties? Northland community college coach Bob Lundbohm didn't have an answer, even though his team registered an important 11-7 victory Wednesday over previously unbeaten MJCAA leader Crookston.

"I don't know what to say about a game like that," confessed Lundbohm. "We survived," offered Northland assistant coach Tom Johnson.

An hour's worth of penalties called by officials Curt Ness and Bill McGann included a 10-minute misconduct and three five-minute majors against the Trojans who were charged with 13 penalties — five on freshman defenseman Dean Byfuglien who, along with Scott Johnson and Todd Wilcox, had to sit out a Friday series opener at Hibbing after incurring game disqualifications.

"They did a lot of complaining about the refs," noted Lundbohm, "but I thought the refs did a good job. They had a tough job to do. Crookston's got two guys who really like to take runs at people," he said, fingering Byfuglien and Johnson, a pair of Roseau products.

Crookston coach Mick Metzer took a different view of the officiating. "From our standpoint, we really feel they missed calls." "I can sympathize with the refs because it was a tough game to referee. "We're a physical team," admitted Metzer. "We're a good team, but we've got to learn to control our temper."

Northland freshman Doug Dallmann led the assault on the scoreboard with a big six-point night. A left wing on the Northland first line, Dallmann had the hat trick and picked up three assists.

First line center Gordy Markstrom and defenseman Bill Olson both scored twice and added two assists. Karl Chromy also finished with two goals while Steve Geatz and Glenn Mosher scored once. Four Northland goals came on power plays.

Crookston, behind 2-1 after one period and trailing 6-3 after two, received a hat trick performance from freshman forward Jeff Goos.

"We played awful good hockey when we had to," mentioned Lundbohm who takes his team to Crookston Wednesday for a 7:30 p.m. rematch.

This week's draw will be held at the St. Hilaire Liquor Store.

LHS Girls Winners Over Crookston, Sacred Heart

Wins over Crookston and East Grand Forks Sacred Heart tripled the win total for the Lincoln high school girls basketball team, winless since a season-opening 46-40 overtime victory over Park Rapids back on Dec. 8. The Prowlers snapped a six-game losing streak with a 39-35 triumph at Crookston Thursday and then improved their record to 3-6 with a 56-32 home court decision over Sacred Heart Friday.

Julie Easton and Kelly Storhaug returned to the Thief River Falls line-up after missing time due to injuries and played a part in the revitalized Lincoln success. "They mean so much on offense," pointed out Thief River Falls coach Sylvia Sjoberg. "It really helps the passing game with them in there." Easton played Friday with a cast protecting a broken finger. Storhaug came off a severe ankle sprain.

Thief River Falls will host East Grand Forks Thursday at 7:30 p.m.

Crookston 35

A balanced attack led Thief River Falls past Crookston 39-35. Pam Kotschevar and Ann Goodrich reached double figures with 12 and 10 points, respectively, while Roberta Engel scored nine points and grabbed eight rebounds and Kathy Beito scored eight points and pulled down seven rebounds.

A low scoring first half had Crookston ahead 6-4 and 12-11 at the first two quarter breaks. But Thief River Falls nearly doubled its field goal percentage from 22 to 41 in the second half en route to a 28-20 third quarter lead. After making just five of 22 first half field goal attempts, Thief River Falls connected on 12 of 29 shots in the second half, finishing the game with a 17-for-51 performance — 33 per cent.

Heidi Broekemeier, a 5-7 junior, took game-high scoring honors for the Pirates with 17 points, but no other Crookston player scored more than four points.

Crookston was a 37-34 winner in the junior varsity game. Marlys Huot scored 12 points for Thief River Falls, behind 9-8 at the end of the first quarter, ahead 17-16 at halftime and behind again 24-22 after three quarters.

East Grand Forks Sacred Heart led 16-11 at the end of the first quarter and trailed only 27-26 at halftime, but then watched its offense disappear in a six-point second half that resulted in an easy 56-32 Thief River Falls victory.

Thief River Falls, erasing that first quarter deficit by converting four consecutive second quarter turnovers into eight points, out-scored Sacred Heart 13-1 in the third quarter for a 40-27 cushion.

Pam Kotschevar led a trio of Thief River Falls double figure scorers with 12 points while Roberta Engel scored 11 and Julie Easton 10. Cheri Fontaine and Sandy Ripp scored 13 and 11 points, respectively, for Sacred Heart.

Thief River Falls shot 37 per cent from the floor, hitting 23 of 63 shots. Sacred Heart shot 21 per cent, making 12 of 56 shots. The Eagles were a mere 2-for-26 after intermission. The Eagles held a slight 36-35 rebound edge and topped the turnover figures 26-18.

Sacred Heart junior varsity suffered the same fate as the varsity, scoring just one point in the second half of a 38-8 drubbing. Thief River Falls, ahead 20-7 at halftime, got 15 points out of Marlys Huot and 10 from Karen Kloety en route to a 5-4 record.

Diane Fisher Leads 6-1 Cardinals Past RLF 56-33

Opening with a 16-2 first quarter lead, Plummer rolled over Red Lake Falls 56-33 Thursday in girls high school basketball. It was the sixth win in seven starts for the Cardinals.

"We're playing fairly decent," mentioned Plummer coach Rick Koivisto. "Our press seems to be effective."

Diane Fisher, a 5-6 junior, continued her personal assault on the scorebooks with a 26-point night, as the host cardinals coasted to a 31-9 halftime cushion and a 42-20 third quarter advantage. "She's got a good outside jump shot and she can drive," praised Koivisto. "No one can stop her one-on-one."

Melaine Skjerven added 14 points to the Plummer offense and Sandy Zimpel pulled down 11 rebounds. Char Remick scored 11 points for Red Lake Falls.

Plummer hosts Alvarado tonight (Monday) and plays at East Grand Forks Sacred Heart Thursday.

Grygla — MCC

Grygla set the stage for a key rematch with Roseau tonight (Monday) with a 34-31 road win over Marshall County Central Thursday. The Eagles are 8-1, losing only a 27-26 home court decision to Roseau earlier this month.

After owning an 8-7 first quarter lead, the flu-stricken Eagles fell behind 16-15 at halftime and trailed 27-25 going into the fourth quarter. Grygla was protecting a narrow 32-31 lead when Lois Verbout sealed the decision with a steal and a basket in the final five seconds.

Jill Johnson scored 15 points for the Eagles. Jill Saurdiff hit 19 points for the Nordics who built a 40-22 rebound advantage but missed eight fourth quarter free throws.

Grygla follows tonight's game at Roseau with a Thursday contest against Lake of the Woods.

Middle River — Goodridge

A poor 5-for-25 free throw shooting performance cost Goodridge a 43-35 home court decision against Middle River Thursday.

Both teams played good man-to-man defense in a 4-4 first quarter draw. Middle River went ahead 17-13 at halftime and stretched the margin to 34-20 in the third quarter.

Michelle Martens and Dawn Nelson of Middle River scored 12 and 10 points, respectively. Vanassa Sand of Goodridge led all scorers with 16 points.

Goodridge, 3-5, visits Warren Thursday.

LOW — MCC

Lake of the Woods rolled over Marshall County Central 65-36 Saturday at Baudette.

The Bears built quarter leads of 11-8, 23-13 and 51-18 as Coreena Dahl scored 19 points and Melody Fadness collected 12. Jill Johnson scored 10 points for the Nordics.

Marshall County Central, 3-6, will be at Badger tonight (Monday) before hosting Lancaster Thursday.

DNR Announces New Toll-Free Phone Number

Department of Natural Resources will have a new, more efficient toll-free phone number.

Located in St. Paul, the toll-free number will be 800-652-9747. Calls will be answered by a state of Minnesota telephone operator. Callers should ask for the Department of Natural Resources.

Under the old system, toll-free calls reaching the DNR could not be transferred to the proper personnel, entailing a return call.

The toll-free number is for the convenience of the public who wish to resolve problems which cannot be handled by a local DNR office.

The number may be called from anywhere in Minnesota without charge between the hours of 8 a.m. and 4:30 p.m.

Northland Women Lose Pair Of Weekend Games

Vermilion and Anoka-Ramsey were weekend winners over the Northland community college women's basketball team. Vermilion edged the Northwomen 60-59 Friday night while Anoka-Ramsey came up with a 61-53 victory Saturday afternoon. Both games were played in the Northland gym.

"Both times we had comebacks that were so close," noted Northland coach Deb Jacobson. "To fall behind, we usually let one girl get the ball too much. To come back, we pressed. The press, even if it didn't force a turnover, got us moving."

Northland, the defending Northwest Division champion, is 1-2 in league play, 3-8 overall, heading into a tough week that will feature strong division rivals Fergus Falls and Brainerd. The Northwomen host Fergus Falls Tuesday at 6 p.m. and visit Brainerd Saturday at 12 noon.

Vermilion 60
Northland 59

Northland rallied from a 34-20 halftime deficit to take a five-point lead with 3½ minutes remaining against Vermilion. But the visitors, trailing 59-58, won it when Cathy Shoberg swished a shot from the top of the key with just six seconds on the clock.

Laurie Galligher, a 6-3 center, scored 12 of her 19 points in the first half to give Vermilion an early lead. Patty Olson contributed 15 points to the Vermilion total. Georgine Troska, who swished a shot from midcourt at the end of the first half, led Northland with 19 points. Joan Engel sparked the second half comeback with a perfect 8-for-8 shooting eye from the field as she scored all 16 of her points after intermission. Julie Anderson joined them in double figures with 12 points.

Northland was 23-for-72 from the field for 72 per cent while Vermilion was 26-for-71 for 37 per cent. The Northwomen were 13-for-18 at the free throw line where Vermilion was 8-for-18.

Sophomore guard Coco Stokke of Northland suffered a badly sprained ankle and may be lost to the team for some time.

Georgine Troska poured in 25 points, but it wasn't enough as Northland lost a 61-53 decision to Anoka-Ramsey.

Chrystal Becker scored 20 points for Anoka-Ramsey, 18 in the first half to stake her team to a 34-24 cushion. Sharon Keith added 16 points for the winners and Christy Olson 11, scoring several easy baskets as a walking wounded at the end when, despite spraining an ankle in the first half, she was forced to literally stand in for the short-handed visitors who lost two of their seven players to fouls. Julie Anderson of Northland was also a double figure scorer with 10 points.

Indians Beat Huskies 68-58

A 52 per cent shooting night from the field carried Alvarado to a 68-58 Polar Conference high school basketball win over Goodridge Friday.

The host Indians built quarter leads of 18-15, 39-31 and 51-45.

"We played pretty poor defense," admitted Goodridge coach Rick Nelson. He wasn't particularly happy with the Huskies' offense, either: "We started playing too much one-on-one."

Jay Kollin scored 22 points to lead the winners while Brent Johnson and Kevin Johnson contributed 17 and 16 points, respectively. Jeff Bakken scored a game-high 23 points for the Huskies, getting 16 in the first half when he was 8-for-10 from the field. However, he ran into foul trouble early in the second half. Randy Henrickson added 18 points to the Goodridge total.

Alvarado made 28 of 53 field goal attempts for its high percentage. Goodridge was 26-for-61 for 42 per cent. The Indians sank 12 of 19 free throw attempts while the Huskies connected on six of nine gift tosses. Goodridge held a 33-24 rebound advantage but also led the turnover department, 19-17.

The loss dropped the Huskies to 5-6 for the year. Goodridge will host a strong Argyle squad Tuesday and visit Climax Friday.

Wetland Near Little Falls Is Donated To DNR

Carl (Chuck) and Verna Schmidt of St. Peter have taken steps to help wetland wildlife in a big way.

Within the last three months they have deeded 465 acres of a Morrison county wetland to the state of Minnesota, Department of Natural Resources, for use as the "Clare Johnson — Carl (Chuck) W. Schmidt wildlife management area and waterfowl refuge."

The donated parcels are the major portion of the 900 acre drained wetland known locally as Big Swanville marsh (about ten miles southwest of Little Falls and within one mile of Swanville.) Acquisition of additional parcels for a 1,500-acre total project will make it possible to restore water levels and provide habitat necessary for high waterfowl and furbearer production, say DNR wildlife officials. The restored wetland will also provide other valuable wetland functions including conserving surface waters, reducing runoff, wind and water erosion and stream sedimentation, contributing to flood control, improving sub-surface moisture and water quality and enhancing natural beauty. Present lack of water and low wildlife utility are a result of a drainage ditch constructed many years ago.

The new wildlife management area will be named after Mr. Schmidt — avid fisherman, hunter and long time ardent conservationist — and his former close friend Clare Johnson, a state of Minnesota wildlife manager who died in 1962 at the age of 42. The area will be open to public hunting and trapping in season, except that it will be closed to waterfowl hunting.

Acting DNR commissioner Joe Alexander said, "This very generous wildlife habitat gift is but one example of Mr. Schmidt's lifetime of dedication to conservation causes. Present and future Minnesotan's will enjoy a higher quality of life because of his efforts".

New Ski Trail Is Opened In Cass County

Department of Natural Resources has announced the opening of a new cross-country ski trail in Cass county.

Built with the cooperation of the Cass county board and other officials, the 18-mile Spider Lake ski trail is located in the Foothills state forest. Located partly on county-owned land, the trail begins at a point 10 miles west of Pine River on Cass county highway 2.

Trail maps may be obtained at the trail assembly area, from DNR area forestry headquarters in Brainerd and from district forestry offices in Nimrod and Backus.

Foresters said the trail traverses a scenic area featuring lakes, hills and woodlands.

Cliff Carlson, area DNR forestry supervisor at Brainerd, thanked Cass county officials for their help in making the trail a reality. "Without their cooperation and assistance it could never have been built," he emphasized.

Carlson said the trail is currently in excellent condition. Latrines have been installed and shelters are scheduled to be built soon.

The trail was first opened Jan. 13.

Steel Shot Zones Proposed For 1979

Interior Department's U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service has proposed zones where waterfowl hunters would be required to use nontoxic steel shot during the 1979 fall hunting season and invited the public to comment on the proposals.

At the same time, the service also published a final regulation which requires that steel shot be used in all gauges of guns in steel shot zones beginning in the fall of 1980. Waterfowl hunters will be required to use steel shot only in 12-gauge guns when hunting in the zones during the 1979 fall hunting season.

Purpose of requiring waterfowl hunters to use steel shot is to reduce the incidence of lead poisoning in waterfowl. About two million waterfowl die of lead poisoning in the United State annually after eating spent lead shot, which the birds mistake for seeds or grit. Steel shot is not toxic to waterfowl.

A proposed regulation describing 1979 steel shot zones and a final rulemaking on the use of various gauges of steel shot were published in the January 12, 1979, Federal Register.

The proposed 1979 steel shot zones are almost identical to 1978 zones except for changes in Florida, Michigan, Connecticut, New York and New Jersey. The proposals would affect parts of 32 States, including areas where steel shot regulations were not enforced in 1978 as a result of legislation passed by Congress that prohibited the Interior Department from enforcing steel shot regulations in any state unless the state fish and wildlife agency approved. Twenty-five states approved enforcement of steel shot regulations; 13 states did not approve enforcement in part or all of the areas designed as steel shot zones. The restriction on enforcement of steel shot regulations will expire September 30, 1979, unless renewed by Congress.

Detailed descriptions of the designated steel shot zones for 1979 will be listed in press releases to be issued by the six fish and wildlife service regional offices. The states for which zones have been proposed are as follows:

Atlantic Flyway — Connecticut, Delaware, Florida, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Carolina and Virginia.

Mississippi Flyway — Arkansas, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Louisiana, Ohio, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Tennessee and Wisconsin.

Central Flyway — Kansas, Nebraska and Texas.

Pacific Flyway — California, Idaho, Nevada, Oregon and Washington.

Plubic comments on the proposals should be submitted by February 12, 1979, to the Director (FWS-MBMO), U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Department of the Interior, Washington, D.C. 20240.

Under the final rulemaking on use of various gauges of steel shot, waterfowl hunters will not be permitted to possess 12-gauge shotshells loaded with toxic (lead) shot while taking waterfowl in a steel shot zone during the 1979 season. Hunters using other guages will be permitted to use toxic shot until September 1, 1980, when the use of all gauges of toxic shot will be prohibited in steel shot zones.

The service had previously proposed to end the use of all gauges of toxic shot in steel shot zones beginning September 1, 1979. The regulation has now been delayed for one year because the aforementioned action by Congress created uncertainty regarding demand for shotshells loaded with either toxic or nontoxic shot.

Proposed 1979 steel shot zones in Minnesota:

1. — All waters within the boundaries of all state wildlife management areas and federal waterfowl production areas and within a 150-yard zone of land adjacent to the margins of these waters. This includes lakes, ponds, marshes, swamps, rivers, streams and seasonally flooded areas of all types. Drainage ditches and temporary sheet water more than 150 yards from the water areas described above are exlcuded from the steel shot requirement. Controlled hunting zones of goose management areas are excluded from this provision, except the Roseau wildlife management area which is included.

2 — On the waters on Swan and Middle lakes in Nicollet county, North and South Heron lakes in Jackson county, Pelican Lake in Wright county, Bear Lake in Freeborn county and Christian Lake in Douglas and Grant counties and within a 150-yard zone of land adjacent to the margins of the above lakes.

3 — Beginning at the intersection of the midline of the Mississippi River and U.S. highway 61 at Hastings, thence southerly along U.S. highway 61 to U.S. highway 16 at LaCresent, thence southerly along U.S. highway 16 to state trunk highway 26, then southerly along state trunk highway 26 to the southern boundary of the state; thence along the southern and eastern boundaries of the state to the confluence of the St. Croix and Mississippi rivers, thence along the midline of the Mississippi River to the point of beginning.

Small Field In I-500 Race To Arrive Today

Approximately 135 snowmobiles left Winnipeg this morning enroute to Thief River Falls on the first leg of the International 500 snowmobile race. Numbers of racers are down considerably from prior years and corresponding disinterest by the public seems evident.

Racers were expected to reach Thief River Falls before noon although a five-hour time period is allowed racers to reach the finish line north of Thief River Falls along highway 59. Those racers who qualify for the second day's running will leave from east of Thief River Falls tomorrow morning and overnight at Bemidji. No starting time for tomorrow has been announced.

Thief River Falls Jaycees will again be assisting with manpower for the race in Thief River Falls. They were in charge of setting up the finish and starting lines, receiving the snowmobiles today and releasing them tomorrow. Finishers today will be escorted to the men's fastpitch softball diamond at the fairgrounds for overnight storage out-of-doors.

Jaycees will maintain overnight security at the diamond and at the sports arena which will be open to racer support crews for use of showers and restroom facilities.

Project co-chairmen Dave Jones and Dave Rowland request that individuals follow instructions of I-500 workers (identifiable by bright colored armbands) to aid in a smooth running of activities during the stopover here.

CB Operators Assist Patrol By Radio Calls

Citizen band radio operators called the Minnesota state patrol an average of 62 times a day during 1978 to report such things as accidents, violations and stranded motorists and to request road and weather information.

"The interchange between CBers and troopers is on the upswing from about 55 calls per day in 1977," said Col. James Crawford, chief of the patrol, a division of the Minnesota department of public safety. "The six-month total this year was 11,162 calls, an average of 1,860 per month."

"CBers have helped their fellow motorists as well as the Patrol by reporting such incidents as law violators, road hazards, fires, disabled vehicles and ill or injured persons," he said.

"Acting on the CB calls, troopers are able to make arrests, render timely assistance and furnish helpful road and weather information."

In the first half of this year, most of the CB calls — 9,765 — were requests for assistance and weather information and reports on dangerous road conditions. Troopers gave assistance in 7,682 cases.

Of the 2,119 CB reports on stranded motorists, the patrol rendered service in 1,550. CBers called in 1,030 reports on traffic accidents and troopers provided help in 665 cases.

Some 4,335 CB operators wanted road and weather information and 3,979 received assistance. Other calls included 1,917 telling of parked vehicles, other objects or animals on the road; 54 about fires; and 41 about ill or injured persons.

Nearly 1,400 calls reported law violations and troopers were able to make 472 arrests. They issued 273 warnings. CB operators radioed in four felony reports that resulted in the arrests of five persons.

Among the violations cited by CBers were 573 reports of speeders that produced 267 arrests and 88 warnings, and 302 calls about motorists driving while intoxicated which meant 106 DWI arrests and seven warnings.

Troopers received 190 calls about equipment violations and made 25 arrests and 115 warnings.

Offer Cross-Country Skiing

Cross country skiing will be taught in a condensed series of sessions at the university of Minnesota - Crookston (UMC) January 24 and 25, from 7 to 10 p.m. and January 27, from 9-12 and 1-4.

Tom Hruby, assisted by John Zak, both of the Nordic Ski club, will supply instruction. In addition to the actual session on skis, the course will cover proper clothing to wear, care of equipment, waxing techniques, basic skiing technique, ski safety and ski areas.

Because only four sessions will be held, it is important that students plan to attend all sessions.

It is necessary to pre-register for the course by calling UMC telephone 281-6510, extension 241.

Stock Split Approved By Soo Line RR

Shareholders of the Soo Line railroad have approved a plan to split the company's common stock three-for-one. This is the second time Soo stock has been split since the merged company was formed in 1961. A two-for-one split was made in May of 1972.

In the action taken recently at a special meeting of the shareholders held in Minneapolis, the shareholders voted on a resolution approved earlier by the company's board of directors. Company's common stock was changed from stock without par value to stock of the par value of $3 and one-third per share in connection with the split of the common stock on a three-for-one-basis.

Stock split will take effect at the close of business on or about January 31, 1979, pending required approval by the interstate commerce commission. Split will increase the number of shares of stock of the company which are outstanding from 2,531,818.5 to 7,595,455.5 shares.

Shareholders of the company will not surrender their current stock certificates. Certificates representing the additional shares of stock will be forwarded to shareholders as soon as possible after the split becomes effective.

Soo's board of directors has not established a fixed dividend rate for the company's common stock. Board, however, considers the matter of dividends at its regular June and December meetings. Action taken by shareholders does not affect the dividend of $2.60 per share to be paid on January 25, 1979 to shareholders of record January 5, 1979.

Soo Line believes the stock split will broaden the market for shares of the company and result in a wider distribution of shares. Company currently has approximately 4,600 shareholders.

Council Refers Holiday Site To Public Hearing

Informed that the city planning commission had held a noon meeting at which a motion in opposition to the location of a Holiday gas station at the corner of First St. and highway 59 was rescinded, the Thief River Falls city council passed a resolution referring two petitions they had received regarding the rezoning of land in that area to the planning commission with instructions that hearing dates be set by the commission. In attendance to witness the action were approximately 25 residents from the affected neighborhood.

Chairman of the planning commission Duane Walton spoke to the audience and the council explaining that the commission's January 19 action had been rescinded as a result of a procedural error. The planning commission acts as an advisory board to the city council and can make recommendations about general zoning or use of land but was not constructed to submit recommendations about specific uses unless so directed by the city council. If the commission felt the situation needed review they either had to ask the council to give them direction to review it or be petitioned to review by involved citizens. Neither situation was the case when the motion in opposition to Holiday location at the highway 59 site was passed.

Urged by legal counsel to hear all parties involved in an issue before taking a stand and informed of the procedural problem, Mayor Bob Carlson, who serves on the planning commission, made a motion that the previous action be rescinded and that the commission go through proper legal channels in dealing with the situation. The motion was seconded by commissioner Al Christofferson and passed in a seven to two vote with commissioners Jerry Wedul and Glenn Peterson dissenting. At the evening council meeting Wedul voiced satisfaction with the outcome of the situation, saying that if the matter comes to a hearing then his primary purpose in introducing the motion was fulfilled.

City planner Jack Quinlivan indicated that hearing dates would be set at the February 5 meeting of the planning commission and that all involved parties, including Holiday, Northwestern hospital and neighborhood residents would be invited to participate.

Alderman Don Goodrich, who was in attendance at both the planning commission meeting and the city council meeting, submitted a letter explaining his involvement in negotiations with Holiday at the request of the council and vindicating himself from any money-making intentions.

A request was made by representatives of five local businesses that the city reconsider its decision to no longer operate a scale. John Lang of Land O'Lakes who had appeared before the council at an earlier meeting regarding the scale operation was asked to speak with other area persons who were interested in obtaining a scale. Is Bigger Better?

Potential results of a new airline deregulation law was the topic of a January 10 Times article. Implementation of the law could mean the eventual replacement of our standard carrier service with a commuter service. Local officials have joined with representatives of small communities throughout the state to take a stand against any implementation of the new law that would result in service to communities by a smaller aircraft than they already have.

Contemplation of this situation inevitably raises some questions in the minds of the public as consumer and citizen. Do we have a choice about what type of aircraft serves us? Should we? Is size the primary factor in our judgment of safe, comfortable air service? Should it be?

Is bigger better? An upcoming issue of the Times will include a view of an existing commuter operation in Grand Rapids, facts about the level of service and safety provided by commuter airlines and comments from citizens and officials served by commuter operations. With this information Times readers will be better able to answer that question.

Board Discusses Agreement On Commons Area

Thief River Falls board of education discussed policy for cooperatively managing the student commons being built jointly by the AVTI and Northland community college and adopted a resolution on senior citizen housing at a meeting held Monday evening in the school district service center.

The new commons area is being constructed as part of the expansion of the area vocational-technical institute. It will serve as an eating facility for students of both schools with an estimated 500 meals to be served there each day and will be connected to both schools by an enclosed walkway.

The joint commons evolved from legislative actions and results in the conversion of the present Northland college commons and the cafeteria area of the AVTI being converted into instructional areas. Since the food service will serve students of both schools the cooperative management agreement is necessary.

Resolution adopted by the board supports the projected high rise complex for senior citizens to be located north of the school district service center, but requests that the city and developer adhere to codes and parking provisions presently established.

The board tabled until February 12 a review of school district service center noncertified personnel job descriptions. Hired by the school district were Ardith Schuster as a replacement kitchen helper at Franklin school and Elizabeth Carlson as a long term substitute at Washington elementary school.

A resolution by the board directed the administration to notify Dale Teigland of the completion of his one year leave of absence due to illness and that the position will be officially terminated, thereby resulting in the termination of employment.

Medical leave of absence on recommendation of her dictor was approved for Ida Brouse, cafeteria worker, without pay

Lorenson Leads I-500 Race Into TRF Finish

Number 52, Larry Lorenson of Greenbush, was the winner of the first lap of the International 500 snowmobile race Monday when 124 of the 136 racers who started the course in Winnipeg crossed the first leg finish line in Thief River Falls around noon. Lorenson completed the course in two hours, 55 minutes and 36 seconds with second place driver, Paul Matejka of Welcome, having a time of two hours, 57 minutes and 52 seconds. Unofficial lists showed JoMar-Bernat with the third shortest time of 2 hours, 58 minutes, 21 seconds.

An early evening drivers meeting altered the times when approximately 80 penalties were given to drivers for exceeding the speed limit in the town of Lancaster. Penalties were figured on the amount the driver exceeded 35 miles per hour in a 30 mph zone. The driver received a one minute penalty for every two mph he went over 35.

Penalties did not alter the first two placings but changed the drivers' times to 2:58:06 and 2:58:53, respectively. A seven and a half minute penalty lost the third place standing for Bernat and moved him down to eighth place. Moving into third place was Bruce Olson of Spicer. The three received lap prizes of $250, $150 and $100, respectively.

Area drivers in the top ten after the first leg of the race were Scott Simonson of Grand Forks who finished sixth with a time after penalty of 3:03:57 and Guy Useldinger of East Grand Forks who placed seventh with a time of 3:04:31. Both racers are driving Polaris snowmobiles.

Other area racers and their first day placement were: Dave Dahlen of Goodridge, 22nd place; Dan Rantanen of Middle River, 26th place; Chester Boman of Thief River Falls, 31st place; Roger Gage of Thief River Falls, 37th place; Bruce Lillevold of Stephen, 43rd place; Jon Wilson of Goodridge, 48th place; Doug Delnert of St. Hilaire, 68th place; Clinton Hoffman of Goodridge, 77th place; Alan Swanson of Goodridge, 80th place; Kenneth Halvorson of Thief River Falls, 104th place. Local racer who did not complete the first day's course was Ron Horachek of Thief River Falls.

Top ten standings from the second leg of the race saw Paul Matejka of Welcome move from second place to take over the lead with a time of 4:57:36. First leg winner Larry Lorenson got his sled

REELECTED as Region 12 director on the board of the Minnesota school boards association at the annual MSBA convention last week was Harry Sjulson of St. Hilaire. Sjulson is a member of the Thief River Falls board of education.

County Farmers Benefit From Higher Prices

Harold Kalsnes, chairman of the Pennington county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASCS) committee, said producers realized better prices for their crops and livestock in 1978

"Through farm programs and agricultural exports, farm prices were almost 23 per cent higher than in the fall of 1977," he said. "After four years of losses, cattle prices increased about 52 per cent and hog prices, 28 per cent."

According to Kalsnes, national net farm income reached $26 billion in 1978. "When this is added to expected off-farm income of $36 billion, farmers' income from all sources will total between $61 and $62 billion for 1978, a new record," he said.

Further brightening last year's agriculture picture were farm exports, estimated at $29 billion and well above 1977's $23.7 billion.

Kalsnes said farmers took steps to assure themselves of higher market prices for their crops. "They participated in the 1978 feed grain and wheat set-aside programs, placed large amounts of grain under loan, and entered a substantial amount of grain into the reserve," Kalsnes said.

Through these programs, the national wheat acreage was cut by 10 million acres and feed grain acres by 8.4 million acres. Over one billion bushels of wheat and feed grains were put in the reserve, the farm storage loans were made to build 754 million bushels of new on-farm storage space.

TYPICAL RITUAL of the first leg finishers of the 14th annual International 500 snowmobile race is demonstrated by racer number 58, Michael Lindsey of Bemidji. After crossing the finish line in Thief River Falls Monday, Lindsey, who drove a Polaris in the race, rubs his wind-burned eyes, removes his helmet, then grimaces as he rips off the tape used to protect his face and finally examines his numbed hands. Of the 136 racers who left Winnipeg Monday morning, 124 completed the day's course in times that varied from two hours and 55 minutes to five hours and 31 minutes. With approximately 80 penalties given at the evening drivers' meeting, official time of lead racer Larry Lorenson changed to 2:58:06.

Konnie Kompelien Weds Kenton W. Christensen

Miss Konnie Lynn Kompelien and Kenton Wayne Christensen exchanged marriage vows on Saturday, December 30, at a 7:30 p.m., candlelight service at the Evangelical Free church in this city.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Everett Kompelien and Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Christensen, all of Thief River Falls.

Rev. Curtis Anderson officiated at the double ring ceremony. At the organ was Randy Moe, an uncle of the bride. He played, "Jesu Bambino," and "Bridal Chrous," for the processional and "Joy To the World," for the recessional. During the ceremony several selections were sung. Kevin Kompelien, a brother of the bride, sang "O, Perfect Love," and "Of Love I Sing;" Kris Nygaard of Des Moines, Iowa, a cousin of the bride, sang "Wedding Prayer," and the bride's parents sang, "Wedding Guest Divine."

Forming the background for the wedding party were two flocked Christmas trees decorated with green satin balls; and two crystal globed hurricane candelabra and a unity candle trimmed with flocked pine boughs, holly and green and white satin bows. Similar trim graced the hurricane candelabra that marked the pews along the center aisle.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was attired in a white satin gown featuring a mandarin collar and long, fitted sleeves with lace inserts. An over-lay of re-embroidered Alencon lace, accented with pearls and iridescents, enhanced the molded bodice. Bands of hand-clipped Alencon lace flowed down the skirt and chapel-length train. Matching lace edged her veil of bridal illusion and trimmed her Alencon lace headpiece embossed with pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of red Yuletide roses, white starburst mums, holly and flocked pine. Her diamond earrings were a gift from the groom.

Serving the bride as her personal attendant was Kim Hanson, a friend.

Maid of honor was Kris Nygaard of Des Moines, Iowa. Bridesmaids were Joanne Wefald and Deb Mortrud, friends of the bride, and Valerie Christensen, sister of the groom. They wore identical, floor-length gowns of emerald green qiana topped by matching, long-sleeved, hooded jackets trimmed with white piping. Their bouquets were of white starburst pompons, fresh holly white miniature carnations, babies' breath and flocked pine.

Wearing identical attire and carrying a miniature bouquet, similar to the ones carried by the bridesmaids, was the flower girl, Bethany Dalager of Mentor, a cousin of the bride. The rings were carried by Bemjamin Eriksson of Grand Forks, N.D., also a cousin of the bride.

Curt Christensen attended his brother as best man. Groomsmen were Keith Christensen, brother of the groom, Kevin Kompelien and Ken Kompelien, brothers of the bride. Serving as ushers were Brent Anderson, Marshall; Edlyn Vatthauer, Plummer, cousins of the groom; Roger Eriksson, cousin of the bride; and Randy Trontvet, Fargo, N.D., a friend of the couple. The groom and his attendants wore forest green tuxedos with satin lapels and forest green bow ties. The attendants' shirts were white with a green edging. Fresh holly accented their white carnation boutonnieres. The groom wore an all-white ruffled shirt and his boutonniere featured white carnations with a red Yuletide rose.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Kompelien selected a light green Silesta floor-length gown with a long-sleeved jacket and cowl neckline. Her corsage was of red roses and white carnations. A similar corsage was worn by the groom's mother, who was attired in a light green Silesta gown fashioned with a rounded neckline and dolman sleeves.

Special guests at the wedding were Mrs. Bella Kompelien and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Moe, grandparents of the bride.

A reception for 300 guests followed the ceremony. Serving as reception host and hostess were Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Anderson, uncle and aunt of the groom. Lynne Anderson, a friend of the bride, registered the guests as Lin Christensen, sister-in-law of the groom, served the punch.

Centering the serving table was a three-tiered wedding cake, iced in white and trimmed with white wedding bells and holly. A cluster of white satin bells topped the cake. Lou Roos and Kathy Christensen, cousins of the bride and groom, cut and served the cake. Pouring coffee were Dorothy Kompelien and Pearl Ramsland, aunts of the bride.

Waitresses were Pam Grove, Laurie Hanson, Jeri Lundin, Cindy Reierson, and Renate Vathauer. Nathan Dalager and DeEtta and Jim Merry served as gift bearers.

Relatives and friends attending were from Des Moines, Iowa; Shawnee, Kans.; Omaha, Neb.; Fargo, Grand Forks and Carrington, N.D.; Minneapolis, St. Paul, Marshall, Walker, Bemidji, Moose Lake, Clearbrook, Greenbush and the Thief River Falls area.

For her going away attire, the bride wore a street-length dress of forest green qiana with ivory lace trim.

The bride is a graduate of Lincoln high school and is employed by the Klothes Kloset. The groom, a graduate of Lincoln high school and the University of Minnesota, Crookston, is presently engaged in farming.

The couple is at home at 712½ Red Lake Boulevard, Thief River Falls. Photo, LeMar Studio, Crookston

Young Musicians Capture Dorsey Big Band Sound

by Sverre Solheim

When the members of the Tommy Dorsey Band took their places on the Lincoln stage last Friday night, it was apparent to me that most of them were much too young to know anything about him or big bands.

They sat down — they played — the proved me wrong!

They were great. They were extremely effective in capturing the big band sound of that era, but, even better, the Tommy Dorsey sound came through in great style.

"All of Me," "Once In a While," "Marie", "Song of India" — all the old Dorsey favorites were there.

If there are good old days to remember from the '30s and '40s, Tommy Dorsey and the other big band leaders and musicians played a leading role in making them good.

Thank you, Buddy Morrow, for helping to keep those memories alive and solid.

Rotagilla Band Will Perform At Lincoln Monday

Northland community college and the Thief River Falls youth center will present "The First National Rotagilla Band" at the Lincoln high school auditorium Monday from 7 to 10 p.m.

Also appearing at this three-hour concert will be Steve Hauge of the musical group "Ivory" and the singing duo of Steve Hjelle and Diane Mosbeck of Northland community college.

Rotagilla (which is alligator spelled backward) band was a winner of the first annual top rock search contest and has appeared on a number of television programs such as the "Midnight Special". The group also has reportedly received rave notices in music publications and newspapers throughout the United States.

The group of entertainers will present some of their own musical scores as well as many popular numbers that the audience will recognize. Their program will include a variety of jokes, gags, stunts, skits and puns as well as music.

The Omaha entertainment guide "Best Bet" has referred to the Rotagilla band as "a deranged, delightful, weird bunch who will have the audience asking for more."

Northland community college students will be admitted to this concert by presenting their activity card with the public admitted through purchase of a $3 ticket.

were Richard Jorde of Thief River Grain, George Hannestad of Peterson-Biddick, Marvin Hutchinson of O'Hara Transit and a representative from Lyng Sunflower. All parties commented on the need for a scale and indicated that they thought the city should operate it.

Lang explained that he had investigated probable costs and found that the scale would cost $21,000; installation, $1,500; and a pit, from $21,000-$25,000. The businesses would be willing to guarantee a certain number of weigh-ins per year. Suggested as a possible site for the scale was the 400-500 block of Atlantic Ave. where the Standard bulk tanks were formerly located. The land is owned by Soo Line and a rental agreement would have to be drawn up. The council took no action on the matter but indicated they would consider the alternatives.

In a special meeting held Monday, January 22, council met to discuss gambling license for 1979. DID YOU KNOW?

A CLERGY SPOKE IN FAVOR OF DRINK

A number of years ago at a temperance meeting, a certain clergyman spoke in favor of wine as a drink, and quite to his own satisfaction demonstrated that its use was gentlemanly, healthful, and Scriptural. At the close of his speech, an elderly gentleman arose and asked permission to say a few words.

"A young friend of mine," he said, "who had long been intemperate, was at length prevailed upon, to the great joy of his friends, to take the pledge of entire abstinence from all that could intoxicate. He kept the pledge faithfully for some time, struggling fearfully with his habit, till one evening in a social party, glasses of wine were handed around. They came to a clergyman present, who took a glass, saying a few words of vindication of the practice. 'Well,' thought the young man, 'if a clergyman can take wine and justify it so well, why not I? So he took a glass. It instantly rekindled his slumbering appetite and, after a downward course, he died of delirium tremens — died a raving madman."

The old man paused and was just able to add: "That young man was my son, and that clergyman was the Reverend Doctor who has just addressed this assembly."

Durenberger Named To Sen. Committees

Senator Dave Durenberger will serve on the finance committee and the governmental affairs committee, according to assignments announced by the Republican committee on committees.

Senator Durenberger said he was extremely pleased with the two assignments. "I am particularly happy with finance since it will be dealing with many of the major issues coming before the 96th Congress," said Durenberger. Among the issues facing the finance committee will be tax reform, trade agreements, hospital cost containment and other pieces of major economic legislation.

"The finance committee will give me an opportunity to make a significant impact on legislation," said Sen. Durenberger.

He also said the governmental affairs committee will be especially important during this session of Congress since one of its major focuses will be efforts to improve the efficiency of the federal government and strengthen the roles of state and local government. Governmental affairs committee also has energy jurisdiction, which will be of critical importance to Minnesota.

Senator Durenberger also will receive an appointment to a third committee which has not yet been determined.

Nesland Has Top DHIA Herd In Nov.

Knute Nesland's dairy herd led the Pennington county dairy herd improvement association on average test for the month of November according to Jerry Hamre, supervisor. Nesland's herd averaged 47.8 pounds of milk and 1.79 pounds of butterfat a day during the month.

November's second place herd was the Mylo Carlson herd with an average of 43.4 pounds of milk and 1.67 pounds of butterfat. Other herds in the top ten for November were from the following farms with daily milk and butterfat production listed respectively: Ray and Roger Walter, 41.7 and 1.60; Duane Krohn, 37.9 and 1.36; Marvin Koop, 37.0 and 1.56; Clarence Swanson, 36.9 and 1.45; Gordon Wetterlund and Son, 36.7 and 1.36; Martin Hanson, 36.4 and 1.30; Duane Vatsaas, 36.0 and 1.39; and Warren and Lowell Hamrick, 35.0 and 1.52.

Hamre points out that herd averages are affected by the number of dry cows in the herd since the amount of milk or butterfat produced is averaged out over all the cows. This gives the farmer a record of his herd's earning power for the month. If many dry cows are included in the herd, the average for the month may be low even if cows in production are high volume producers.

There were 28 DHIA herds on test and four O.S. in the month of November. Assign Senator To Budget And Ag Committees

Senator Rudy Boschwitz has been named to both first-choice major Senate committees — agriculture and budget. Assignments were made by the Republican conference's committee on committees.

"I'm extremely pleased with the decision," commented Boschwitz. "Both assignments mean I'll be better able to accomplish some inportant things for Minnesota.

"During the campaign, I made a strong commitment to helping farmers develop overseas markets for their products, and there's no better place to be than the ag committee to accomplish this.

"I'm also excited to be serving on the budget committee. This will be an ideal spot to have some effect on cutting the rate of increase in government spending. After all, it's in budget that the buck stops."

Hills Plead Guilty To Tax Fraud Charges

Lloyd Hill, 67, and his son Gary, 42, operators of the Warren Grain & Seed company at Warren until its bankruptcy in 1977, will be sentenced on February 26 following their pleas of guilty to charges of tax fraud and falsifying corporate records. Their pleas were accepted at district court in Bemidji Thursday.

The Hills entered guilty pleas to four counts of tax fraud each in a plea bargaining arrangement by which deputy attorney general Tom Fabel agreed to defer prosecution for allegedly using more than $500,000 in corporate funds for private purposes.

Evidence presented to the court by the state attorney general's office showed that Gary Hill had received $289,096 in income that he failed to report on his state income tax returns and Lloyd Hill received $206,399 in unreported income.

The Hill's business went bankrupt in June of 1977, owing more than $5 million. A number of area farmers have sued the Hills and Cargill, Inc., a Wayzata grain handling firm that financed most of the Hills' transactions, in an effort to recover more than $2.2 million. Cargill is trying to recover more than $3.8 million from the Hills and other suits are pending by two Warren banks.

MN. Businesses Eligible For Safety Awards

Minnesota businesses and industries are invited to participate in the state occupational safety awards contest, according to the Minnesota safety council, sponsor of the competition. Awards program judges on-the-job safety performance by companies according to type of industry, amount and degree of hazard.

Safety awards in three categories will be presented as a part of the Governor's safety awards banquet at the Minnesota safety conference in May. Categories are: award of honor - for exceptional safety accomplishment; outstanding achievement award - for continuing improvement in incidence rate and-or a continuing outstanding record; meritorious achievement award - for better than average performance in incidence rate dependent upon type of industry. Entries are judged by a panel of occupational safety experts.

Deadline for submitting entry forms for the awards competition is February 15. Award entry forms may be obtained from the Minnesota Safety Council, 145 Hamm Building, St. Paul, 55102, or its northern area service office at 318 Missabe, Duluth, 55802. There is no entry fee.

AT THE FINISH LINE of the first leg of the I-500 is Scott Simenson of Grand Forks on a Polaris. Simonson, brother of the 1977 winner of the International 500 snowmobile race, reached Thief River Falls Monday with a time of 3:02:57 which put him in eighth place. After approximately 80 penalties were announced at an evening drivers' meeting, Simonson's time changed to 3:03:57 and he moved up to sixth place.

FIRST PLACE FINISHER in the Winnipeg to Thief River Falls leg of the 14th annual I-500 snowmobile race and winner of $250 lap prize, was Larry Lorenson (left) of Greenbush. Lorenson completed the first leg in tow hours, 55 minutes and 36 seconds, was given a penalty of two and a half minutes, but retained the first place time with 2:58:06. Second across Monday's finish line in Thief River Falls was Gerard Karpick of Eveleth on a Ski Doo. Karpik, who placed tenth in the timings, is a recent winner of three cross country snowmobile races. He received an eye injury during the first leg Monday but continued in the second leg moving up to ninth place with a total time of five hours, ten minutes. Lorenson ran into a little trouble on the Thief River to Bemidji stretch of the race but remains in the top 20.

Invite Area Residents To Join Chorale

Area people are once again invited to join the University of North Dakota collegiate chorale in the performance of Franz Joseph Haydn's "Nelson" mass, announced Tamar Read, director of the chorale.

Rehearsals for the Palm Sunday concert began recently and will continue each Tuesday through April 2, from 7 to 9 p.m. in room 152 of the Edmond A. Hughes fine arts center, Read said. She also said there will be no auditions for townspeople and all are welcome to participate.

Rep. Stangeland Renamed To Committees

Seventh district Congressman Arlan Stangeland said Thursday, "I am pleased to announce that I will be maintaining my positions on the House government operations committee and the House public works and transportation committee."

The government operations committee has the responsibility to oversee all operations of the federal government. Stangeland said "Congress, in the past, has not been exercising its oversight responsibilities. While serving on the committee, I will have the opportunity to press for more investigations into how the federal agencies are conducting themselves, and the rules and regulations they are drafting that, in effect, become law."

The congressman added that the government operations committee is very important to the battle against "wasteful and reckless spending," and the increasing size of bureaucracy.

The public works and transportation committee deals with the crops of engineers, flood control, reclamation, dams, bridges, highways and the transportation system, except the railroads. Stangeland said "We have a serious problem in the district in trying to transport grain and potatoes to market, and this committee will give me a chance to effect some reasonable solutions to that transportation problem."

As a member of the public works and transportation committee, Stangeland has served on the subcommittee for the public building and grounds, which deals with the general services administration. "This committee," he said, "gives me a prime opportunity to have some meaningful input into controlling the kind of waste, and expenditures, recently uncovered by investigations into the operation of this agency.

"I served on these two committees during the last session of Congress, and that experience has provided me with the knowledge necessary to work effectively during this session as a committee member," Stangeland said.

Bemidji Plans Second Annual Energy Fair

Second annual energy saver's fair will be held in Bemidji Friday, January 26, from 12 noon to 10 p.m. and Saturday, January 27, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. The fair, which will be set up in the armory, will include both exhibits and lectures on the latest developments in the field of energy saving.

Solar heating is expected to be one of the popular subjects of exhibits. One exhibitor will operate a solar collector out of doors in a parked van to demonstrate its efficiency in January in Northern Minnesota. Wind generators are now being manufactured in Minnesota and one inventor will have his wind generator present to demonstrate and explain it. Stoves, fireplaces and furnaces will be shown in great variety and other exhibits will include insulations, weathertight windows and doors, weatherstripping, microwave ovens, gasohol, watersaving shower heads and electronic light dimmers.

In a seperate lecture room, talks will run continuously and will cover gasohol, earth sheltered housing, solar energy, wood stoves, IRS credits for energy saving devices and the use of insulation, energy saving habits around the home and dressing to save energy.

Tours will be given Sunday, January 28, of a solar-heated home and other structures using solar heat. Any interested persons may register at the fair Friday or Saturday at booth number 1. A tentative schedule lists tours hourly from 1 to 4 p.m. Both the fair and the solar tours are free.

Unemployment In State Down From Year Ago

Minnesota's unemployment rate in December was 3.9 per cent, Marijo Olson, acting commissioner of the Minnesota department of economic security, announced today. Comparable national rate for December was 5.6 per cent.

State rate was up .6 of one per cent from November's 3.3 per cent. However, the December rate was down 1.1 per cent from December of 1977 when it was 5.0 per cent. Increase in the rate from November to December can be attributed to seasonal layoffs that follow the onset of cold weather.

Civilian labor force in December was 2,003,700; employment was 1,962,400; the number of unemployed was 77,300. In November the civilian labor force was 2,021,000; employment was 1,954,500; and unemployment was 66,500.

In December a year ago, the civilian labor force was 1,929,900; employment was 1,832,800; and the number unemployed was 97,100.

Production workers in manufacturing were paid average weekly earnings of $272.83 in December for working an average of 40.6 hours at $6.72 per hour. In December, 1977, production workers averaged 40.5 hours at $6.24 per hour for average weekly earnings of $252.72.

Propose Kunz For University Regents Board

Three 7th District Independent-Republican state legislators announced today that they intend to nominate Bemidji businesswoman, Donna Kunz for the board of regents of the University of Minnesota.

Sen. Dave Rued, Rep. John Ainley and Rep. Glen Sherwood said they would place Mrs. Kunz' name in nomination for the Seventh Congressional district seat on the board. That seat is currently being held by L.J. Lee of Bagley who has announced his retirement.

Mrs. Kunz' entire educational background is closely tied with the university. She grew up in southeast Minneapolis and attended Tuttle elementary school, a demonstration school for the university. She graduated from John Marshall high school, also connected with the university, in 1947. In 1951 she received her B.S. degree from the college of education at the university.

Since 1965, Mrs. Kunz has lived in Bemidji where she has managed the family business since the death of her husband. Minnesota Woods products is a wholesale manufacturing firm.

Speaking for the I-R legislators, Rep. Ainley said that Kunz' educational and business background "make her ideally suited for the board of regents."

"Donna Kunz has taught in a public school system and successfully managed her own business," said Rep. Ainley. "She's just the right person to represent the Seventh district. What's more, her personal philosophy reflects a strong commitment to education so necessary to service on the board."

Recommendation for the regent position will be made by the Seventh district legislative caucus and ratified by the full legislature this spring.

CAPT. JOEL FULLER, son of Mrs. Tom Fuller of Thief River Falls, is the first wing weapons systems officer (WSO) to be named a supervisor of flying (SOF), a job traditionally held by pilots. TAC commander Gen. W. L. Creech recently directed that all weapons systems officers be allowed to hold the position. Primary responsibility of the SOF is monitoring the operation of all F-4 aircraft. He monitors each flight during air operations, the base command post frequency for up-to-the-minute reports on all aircraft and has a position in the control tower for observation of air traffic patterns. "There has always been a resource of capable navigator personnel," Fuller said, "but because we don't have perfect 20-20 vision there was a reluctance to utilize our skills in some areas." Capt. Fuller is pictured while serving as a lieutenant at Luke AFB.

Brooks Native Named Deputy Commissioner

Commisioner Mark W. Seetin recently announced the appointment of Dr. Rollin M. Dennistoun, Ph. D., Apple Valley, as deputy commissioner of the Minnesota department of agriculture.

Dr. Dennistoun, as assistant commissioner the past four years of 15 with the state agency, has actually served his entire 32-year professional career to date promoting Minnesota's important industry of agriculture.

A native of Brooks and a graduate of Oklee high school both in Red Lake county, the new deputy commissioner earned three degrees from the university of Minnesota, bachelor of science in agricultural education in 1947, and his doctorate in agricultural economics and education in 1963. He is a World War II Air Force Veteran.

He served as vocational agriculture instructor at Freeborn for two years, then joined the faculty of the university of Minnestoa for the following 15 years. In 1964 he resigned as assistant superintendent and instructor at the university's Rosemount Agricultural Experiment Station to take the post of agronomy services director in the Minnesota department of agriculture.

Dr. Dennistoun has earned many state, regional and national honors for his professional and civic services. He is a past president of the American Association of Plant Food Control Officials and continues to serve as secretary of the Inter-state Pest Control Compact. He is a past chairman of the Governors' Great Lakes Interdisciplinary Pesticide Council and is the immediate past president of the Minnesota School Boards Association. He was 1975 winner of the Minnesota agri-growth council's superior service award. In 1974 he won the national agricultural "Spokesman of the Year" award sponsored by the Chevron chemical company.

In the past year, more than 6,300 persons lost their sight due to senile cataract.

Death And Dying Subjects Of UMC Course

Death and dying are the subjects of a credit course offered this winter by the University of Minnesota — Crookston (UMC). The course will begin at 7:30 p.m. February 1 in Dowell hall room 128.

The group will analyze the impact of complex social change on the modern way of death. History and recent research findings will be used to illuminate issues such as grief, euthanasia, suicide, life after death, the dying patient and widowhood.

Sessions will deal with changing meanings of death and dying, the personal experience of death, survivors of death and the dilemmas of death.

Instructor for the course is Lynnette Mullins, assistant professor of communications at UMC. The course reader and study guide can be purchased from UMC's bookstore.

For registration or for more information interested persons may call 281-6510, extension 241. The course may be taken for credit at UMC or through correspondence.

Retail Group Adds Symbol, Receives Grant

Minnesota retail merchants association (MRMA), a nonprofit trade organization, has recently launched a statewide campaign to familiarize retailers and consumers with its purpose, philosophy and services.

A new membership symbol has been created for the more than 1,400 MRMA independent retail stores which are represented by the association.

In addition to adopting a new name and introducing a new association symbol, MRMA has been awarded a grant from its Washington, D.C. affiliate, the American retail federation, to prepare a series of "consumer tip" advertisements that will be available to all state newspapers and magazines.

Although many of Minnesota's largest retail stores are currently MRMA members, more than 90 per cent of the voting membership consists of privately-owned, single-unit establishments. The independent merchant represents at least 20 different categories of stores.

Since 1952 MRMA members have been actively involved with initiating, supporting and endorsing legislation that improves retailer-customer relations. Legislative activity encompasses such areas as credit, product liability, employee benefits and wages, discrimination, insurance, consumerism and licensing.

The association publishes a monthly newsletter and other member services include educational seminars and conferences, group insurance programs, carpet and furniture pool services, a collection and billing service and a business tax control program.

The board of MRMA is comprised of 40 retailers, representing all geographic areas of the state and types of business.

More information about MRMA programs, seminars or membership can be obtained by writing to Minnesota Retail Merchants Association, 180 Metro Square Building, St. Paul, Minnesota 55101; or by calling 800-652-9773 toll-free in Minnesota, or contact Jon Larson of Larson Music company in Thief River Falls, a member of the board of directors.

Carlson Named College Prof.

Elwood D. Carlson, instructor in sociology at Bowdoin college in Brunswick, ME., has been promoted to the rank of assistant professor effective February 1, president Willard F. Enteman has announced.

Carlson, a member of the Bowdoin faculty since 1976, recently completed all of the requirements for his Ph.D. degree, which will be awarded by the university of California at Berkeley. A native of Greenbush, he is a graduate of Burns Union high school in Burns, Ore.

Arne Nelsons Earn Shaklee Trip To Calif.

Arne and Adeline Nelson of Goodridge recently attended a three-day Shaklee corporation sales leader convention in San Francisco, Calif.

The Nelsons earned the all-expense-paid trip to the San Francisco convention by increasing their sales volume sufficiently to qualify them for the title of supervisor.

During the convention, the Nelsons attended workshops, presentations and toured the company's manufacturing facilities in Hayward, Calif.

Sen. Boschwitz To List Home Phone Number

Although Senator Rudy Boschwitz has discarded his familiar flannel shirts in favor of more traditional dress around the Senate, he will still be departing from custom in another way.

"I'm going to have my home phone number listed so people can reach me more easily," Sen. Boschwitz announced this week. "We've learned that very few of the other senators have published numbers outside their office.

"Maybe they have good reasons for it, and I'll find out in a few weeks that a listed number just won't work. But I'm going to try it for awhile. Hopefully, no one will call collect."

That number, by the way, is (703) 734-0514. The regular Washington office number for the Boschwitz staff is (202) 224-5641.

Regent Board Votes On South African Issue

University of Minnesota board of regents recently voted not to sell $22 million in stocks and bonds it holds in American companies that do business in South Africa, and instead approved a resolution to pursue proxy issues relating to human rights in those companies.

Regent David Lebedoff's motion to "divest in a prudent manner, but as rapidly as possible," was defeated on a 7-to-4 vote at a special meeting of the committee of the whole, with Regents Lebedoff, Mary Schertler, Wenda Moore and Michael Unger voting for the motion. Regent Lloyd Peterson was not present.

This action is subject to full board approval.

After defeat of the Lebedoff motion, the regents voted unanimously in favor of a proposal by president C. Peter Magrath that the university:

"actively pursue proxy issues relating to human rights in South Africa in those corporations in which the university has investments;

"reinforce the university's position as a responsible, informed and active shareholder; and

"work actively on the follow-up and implementation of the Sullivan principles, and continue to provide leadership in this arena to other universities and institutions."

(The Sullivan principles, drafted by Baptist minister Leon H. Sullivan, urge the elimination of segregation in work areas; equality in employment, pay, hiring, training and promotion; and improvement of employees' quality of life. Since March of 1977, shareholder resolutions to adopt these principles have been presented at stockholders' meetings of many companies doing business in South Africa.)

Before the votes were taken, the regents heard presentations from 12 individuals, most recommending divestiture.

Lansine Kaba, history professor at the university and an African, said that Sullivan, in drafting his principles, "has not perceived the South African system in the most correct perspective. The Sullivan principles will not change apartheid."

Kaba said that through its investments in South Africa, the university is "participating in the repression of South African blacks."

In making his motion, Lebedoff proposed the university ask for a declaratory judgment from the courts to determine the legality of divestiture.

"The possibility for peaceful change and granting of rights to black individuals does not exist under the current government," he said. "The argument has been that the presence of American corporations in South Africa raises the standard of living for their employees, and is a road to freedom.

There is no road to freedom in South Africa. The Sullivan principles will do nothing to make those slaves more than slaves, ever," he said.

Legal opinion submitted by David Brink of Dorsey, Windhorst, Hannaford, Whitney and Halladay stated that divestiture of investment based on political or social considerations would be fiscally irresponsible and could lay the regents open to suit, either as individuals or as a board.

Lebedoff argued that Brink's opinion was not necessarily the only one possible. "It is by no means a unanimous view," he said.

Board chairman Moore said the investments in question could be disposed of on the basis of their value as healthy investments. "My conclusion is that South Africa is a poor investment," she said.

"The country is a powder keg waiting for a match," she said, adding that in the event of civil war or collapse of the current government, the capital investments held by American corporations in South Africa could be nationalized or destroyed outright.

In a statement he read to the board, Magrath said that "university investments in American corporations doing business in South Africa do not constitute an endorsement of the government policies of that country any more than our investments in American corporations conducting business in many other nations around the world imply an endorsement of those governments.

"There is little, if any, evidence that divestiture of university holdings would lead to any other outcome than simply having those stocks purchased by other investors either here or abroad," he said.

Magrath said the Sullivan principles are "aimed at compelling American corporations to conduct their business activities in South Africa in such a way as to recognize basic human rights.

"Although the results of his (Sullivan's) now well-organized campaign are still mixed, there seems to be some evidence that the Sullivan principles are making an impact," Magrath said.

After his recommendation was adopted, Magrath agreed to report to the board in six months on the progress of the companies in which the university holds stock in implementing the Sullivan principles.

New Date Set For Hearing On Dam Safety

Proposed rules designed to protect public health, safety and welfare relative to nonfederal dams in Minnesota will be the subject of a public hearing to be held by the Department of Natural Resources in St. Paul Feb. 12.

The hearing is scheduled to start at 10 a.m. in the Weyerhaeuser room of the Historical Building at 690 Cedar street.

The rules are required under provisions of a 1978 law and specify the manner in which the commissioner of Natural Resources exercises his authority over the construction, enlargement, repair, alteration, maintenance, operation, transfer of ownership and abandonment of dams.

Only dams more than six feet in height and with a storage capacity of more than 15 acre-feet are covered under the rules.

A free copy of the proposed rules can be obtained by writing to the DNR Division of Waters, Box 32, Centennial Office Building, St. Paul. Copies will also be available at the door on the date of the hearing.

At the hearing all individuals and representatives of groups or associations will have an opportunity to be heard. In addition, written statements or briefs may be submitted without personally attending the hearing.

A statement of "need and reasonableness" will be available 25 days prior to the hearing from the state office of hearing examiners.

Officials noted that some persons planning to testify at the hearing may be deemed lobbyists under state statutes. Questions regarding lobbying should be directed to the State Ethical Practices Board, Room 41, State Office Building, Wabasha Street, St. Paul, 55155. Phone (612) 296-1720.

The hearing had been scheduled for an earlier date but was postponed by the DNR to allow the agency additional time to refine its proposed rules.

TRF Hosts Wadena Friday

A struggling Lincoln high school basketball team will be a decided underdog Friday when the Prowlers host a strong Wadena team at 7:30 p.m. However, one of the season's biggest crowds should be on hand to watch the Prowlers challenge the Indians, regarded by some as a contender for a state tournament berth in Region 6A.

Wadena has a truly outstanding ball player in 6-5 junior center Brad Willis who is capable of dominating play inside. He doesn't have to do it alone, though, since the Indians also feature 6-1 guard Dave Hunnicutt, 6-1 forward Ron Grewe and 6-5 forward Ed Christopherson.

Wadena used to be a Class AA basketball school. The Indians were paired with Brainerd, Little Falls and Sauk Rapids in Sub Region 2 of Region 8AA, but petitioned the Minnesota State High School League for Class A status because of an enrollment figure of 518 in the top three grades. Region 8AA is still the only Class AA region in the state with a three-team grouping among its four sub regions.

In addition to the basketball game, fans will be treated to the second annual Lincoln band night. A great show when it was introduced a year ago, band night will feature the 50-member Franklin middle school eighth grade band before the game and the 100-plus member Lincoln marching band and flag corps at halftime, using the theme "disco."

Need Pictures Of State Champions

Thief River Falls athletic director Russ Smith needs help. He's trying to round up team pictures of the Lincoln high school state basketball champions of 1932 and 1938 and the Lincoln state hockey champions of 1954 and 1956.

The photographs, which would be returned, are needed for a state high school hall of fame display planned at the St. Paul Civic Center, site of the state hockey, boys basketball and wrestling tournaments.

Designed by Orv Bies of the MSHSL, the state high school hall of fame display will feature three screens positioned on a Civic Center wall, high enough for unobstructed view. By giving an operator just two facts — the sport and year you're interested in — you'll quickly see a picture of the championship team on the first screen. The middle screen will show the brackets and results of the playoffs. Pictures on the third screen may vary. For basketball and hockey, all-tournament teams will be shown. For wrestling, pictures of the top three finishers in each division will appear on the screen.

If pictures of the athletes are unavailable — some of the tournaments go back 60 years — the third screen will show scenes from the home town of the champions.

It's hoped the state high school hall of fame display will be ready for the boys state basketball tournament March 8, 9 and 10.

Persons with access to a photograph of a Thief River Falls state championship team should call Russ Smith at Lincoln, 681-2700.

+Thief River Falls hockey official Buzz Marvin whistled a bench penalty against Detroit Lakes head coach Ken Anderson Saturday after the Lakers' coach vehemently disagreed with a fighting call Marvin made against Detroit Lakes' Mike Nordby who scuffled with Grafton's Guy Demers in the third period. Anderson threw a cardboard box onto the ice in disgust, drawing the bench penalty. The ragged game, at times on the verge of disintegrating into a slugfest, according to the Detroit Lakes paper, was won by the Lakers 2-1. Detroit Lakes visits the Thief River Falls sports arena Feb. 16.

+Bemidji Pioneer sports writer Cliff Morlan said Moorhead "sure didn't look like a 7-6 club to me," following the Spuds' 57-51 Saturday victory over Bemidji. "They must really be playing a tough schedule to have lost six games," continued Morlan. "I thought Bill Quenette's squad was one of the best teams the Jacks have faced this winter. They could be a surprise in the Region 8AA tournament."

Score 20 Points Apiece In 97-75 Win . . .

Neelan, Parker Carry Northmen Past Spartans

Northland community college basketball coach Chet Engelman said he wanted his team to get off to a fast start in Tuesday's key MJCAA Northwest Division basketball game against Fergus Falls to avoid the Spartans' deadly slowdown game. Thanks to Jeff Neelan, he got it. Neelan began a magnificent night by scoring five points in the game's first 38 seconds, sparking the Northmen to an unexpectedly easy 97-75 win.

With Neelan, a 6-7 sophomore center from Thief River Falls, starting things, Northland raced to a 13-4 lead just 2:06 into the game.

And when Fergus Falls threatened to make a game of it by scoring seven straight second half-opening points that sliced a 58-41 deficit to a catchable 58-48, there was Neelan for the coup de grace — an eight-point burst in a game-sealing two-minute span that rebuilt the margin to 66-50 with 15:05 remaining.

"It was super," bubbled Engelman after the game that earned the Northmen a first place tie with Fergus Falls in the Northwest Division race. "I was particularly happy with the play of Jeff Neelan. He did an outstanding job."

Neelan finished with a school record 8-for-8 night from the field, 20 points and 14 rebounds.

In between Neelan's offensive displays was Vince Parker, a dynamic 5-5 guard from Inkster, Mich., whose mouth-dropping outside shooting produced 18 of his 20 points in the first half.

"I thought Vince Parker did a super job," praised Engelman. "He burned them. I finally conceded that Vince Parker is the boss out there, even though he's just a freshman."

Fergus Falls managed to overcome the early deficit to catch Northland at 15-15 with 12:40 left in the first half. The Spartans went in front for the first time when Randy Weiner, a smooth 6-4 forward from Sauk Centre had a great drive and a free throw for a three-point play and a 31-29 advantage with 6:43 to go.

It stayed close until Northland blitzed the referee-conscious Spartans 19-4 over the final 3:41 of the first half.

That surge started with a five-point play from Jon Nelson who utilized a Fergus Falls technical foul to sink three free throws and then hit a long base line jumper on the ensuing possession.

Fergus Falls' frustrations at a mounting number of calls against the Spartans reached a climax with 20 seconds on the clock when Northland's Tom Jordan made a controversial block on a shot that the visitors felt was obvious goal-tending. The ball was relayed to Parker who drilled a long jumper amid howls from the Fergus Falls bench.

Keith Charbonneau rubbed salt into the wound by coming up with a steal and a fast break lay-up at the buzzer for a 58-41 halftime score — the same final score in the women's game that preceded the men's contest. However, the Fergus Falls women were winners.

Northland shot 48 per cent from the field, hitting 40 of 83 shots. Fergus Falls shot only 37 per cent, making 29 of 79 attempts. In spite of the cries of protest by the Spartans, the free throws were nearly identical as Northland sank 17 of 25 at the line and Fergus Falls made 17 of 26.

The Northmen, 3-1 in MJCAA play and 10-5 overall, play another important Northwest Division game Saturday at 2 p.m. at Brainerd.

GOING BETWEEN a pair of Fergus Falls standouts for a defensive rebound during Tuesday's key Northwest Division basketball game was Northland community college center Jeff Neelan who starred as the Northmen beat the Spartans 97-75. Neelan scored 20 points and was 8-for-8 from the field as Northland pulled into a first place tie with Fergus Falls in the division race. Tim Aker (33) scored 19 points for the Spartans and Randy Weiner (31) 13.

AN OFFENSIVE charging foul was assessed Fergus Falls guard Marty Boulander who knocked Northland defender Joe Kraska to the floor on this first half play during Tuesday's MJCAA Northwest Division basketball game played in Thief River Falls. The Northmen surprised the Spartans 97-75.

Otters Expected To Win Arctic Cat Swim Meet

Fergus Falls is cast as the prohibitive favorite for the fourth annual Thief River Falls Arctic Cat invitational high school swimming meet scheduled to be held Saturday in the Franklin middle school pool.

A keen second place struggle is expected to be waged between northwestern Minnesota rivals Thief River Falls, Fosston and Bemidji, with International Falls, Moorhead and Detroit Lakes rounding out the seven-team field.

Competition starts with the 12 noon diving prelims. The swimming and diving finals will begin at 3 p.m.

"Fergus Falls should walk away with it," conceded Thief River Falls coach John Kopari who serves as meet manager. "They're very strong, especially in a big meet."

However, the easy victory that apparently awaits the Otters should not detract from the fine show the swimmers put on. "It should be a really good meet," pointed out Kopari. "The only reason Fergus Falls is going to outscore everyone is their thirds and fourths. Each individual race should be close."

Diver Kevin Stich of Fergus Falls, sprinter Eric Rustad of Fosston and distance swimmer Dave Beito of Thief River Falls rank as sure first place performers.

Stich is the premier diver in the area. He set a Franklin pool record a year ago when he won an Arctic Cat title with 342.60 points. "He's a top-notch diver," praised Kopari. "People usually grunt and groan when diving starts, but he's fun to watch."

Rustad is the fastest swimmer in these parts, and one of the best in the state. He was a state meet place finisher last year and teams with Scott Daniels to guarantee the Greyhounds points.

Beito, Bruce Storhaug and Kevin Murphy represent the Prowlers' "big three." They'll be together, along with Jon Pinkerton, in the meet-ending 400-yard freestyle relay that Kopari promises will be "a super race" between the Prowlers, Otters and Lumberjacks. Beito swam an excellent 5:23.6 in the 500-yard freestyle Saturday when Fergus Falls defeated Thief River Falls 93-76 in a match-up of unbeaten dual meet teams.

If Fergus Falls earns an expected win Saturday, the Otters will become the first two-time Arctic Cat winner. The event began with a Minot victory in 1976. Fergus Falls won it in 1977 and Alexandria walked off with an easy triumph in 1978.

TRF Decisions Warroad 4-1

Goals by Jeff Ulrich and Scott Sabo spaced just 72 seconds apart capped a strong Thief River Falls first period Tuesday, carrying the Prowlers to a 4-1 high school hockey win at Warroad.

The victory improved Thief River Falls' season record to 8-3 heading into a Saturday game in the sports arena against Bemidji, a surprise 3-2 winner over the Prowlers a month ago but a one-sided 9-0 loser at Roseau last night.

"We played one good period — the first one," pointed out Thief River Falls coach Wendell Grand. "With the style of play they play, they can really disorganize you. They're quick. They have good forwards. Their forechecking really gave us a lot of problems in the second period."

Murray Dicken's goal at 5:15 of the second period made it 3-0 but Warroad's Eddie Christian, who spent most of the night in the penalty box with five penalties, cut the margin to 3-1 at 11:05.

Sabo scored his second goal of the game in the third period to ice the decision, giving Thief River Falls a remarkable 4-1 record during a rugged two-week stretch in the schedule that featured wins over East Grand Forks 3-1, Greenway-Coleraine 4-3, Grand Forks Central 5-4 and Warroad. Only loss during that span was a 5-3 setback at the hands of Roseau.

Warroad hurt itself by accumulating 12 of the game's 15 penalties — five in the final two minutes of the third period.

"The best thing, other than the win, is that our kids maintained their composure when the game got out of hand at the end," mentioned Grand.

Goalie Bill Jury continued his fine play for the Prowlers with a 28-save performance that included 14 second period stops. "Billy had another good game in the goal," acknowledged Grand.

Prowlers Edge Indians 62-57 In Overtime Game

It required overtime, but the Lincoln high school basketball team was able to snap a four-game losing streak Tuesday by beating Mahnomen 62-57 behind the one-two punch of guard Steve Enderlein and center Todd Young.

Enderlein poured in a game-high 27 points and pulled down 14 rebounds while Young shook off the effects of an ankle sprain suffered in practice Monday to score 10 points, grab 17 rebounds and block nine shots.

Following an all-too-familiar pattern, Thief River Falls spoiled a strong first half performance with a sub-par effort after intermission to turn what could have been an easy victory into a struggle. The Prowlers expanded a 14-10 first quarter lead into a 35-24 halftime advantage but then got out-scored 15-7 in the third quarter as their lead shrank to a mere 42-39.

"I thought the first half again was another good half of basketball," explained Thief River Falls coach Glen Peters. "We shot well and we moved the ball. In the second half we got too complacent. We weren't moving."

Mahnomen went ahead for the first time since early in the ball game when Murray Hanson scored with 3:53 remaining to break a 47-47 tie. A basket on an offensive rebound by Enderlein and single free throws by Young and Ricky Peterson put Thief River Falls ahead 51-49 with 1:22 left.

The game went into overtime when Mahnomen forward Dave Muckenhirn scored with 28 seconds on the clock. An Enderlein jumper with three seconds to go hit the rim but fell off, bringing on a three-minute overtime.

Thief River Falls then decided the issue at the free throw line where Enderlein and Kyle Hams sank two shots and Young added a single point in the extra session to improve the Prowlers' record to 5-6.

"Free throws won it for us in overtime," confirmed Peters.

Doug Hedman, a 6-2 center, scored 22 points for the visitors, but he was the only Mahnomen scorer in double figures. Ricky Peterson joined Enderlein and Young in double figures for the Prowlers with 11 points.

Thief River Falls shot 40 per cent from the field, hitting 24 of 60 attempts. Mahnomen shot 31 per cent, making 21 of 67 tries. The Prowlers were 14-for-24 at the free throw line where the Indians were 15-for-24. Thief River Falls finished with a 39-34 rebound edge and Mahnomen topped the turnover figures 18-15.

Beaten 64-34 by Thief River Falls a month ago, the improved Indians took a 7-5 record back to Mahnomen.

Dostal, Modahl Defeat Eagles

Badger used a flood of whistles against Grygla to pick up a 53-50 North Border Conference high school basketball victory over the visiting Eagles Tuesday.

Grygla out-scored Badger 42-38 from the field, but the Eagles were given half of the Rockets' 31 free throw opportunities. "We played a good ball game under the circumstances," said Grygla coach Van Swanson who was most unhappy with the officiating.

Grygla led in the first half, 16-11 after the first quarter and 31-22 at intermission. Badger narrowed the gap to 38-36 at the close of the third quarter.

Badger's BB guns — Bob Dostal and Bryan Modahl — scored 47 of the Rockets' 53 points. Dostal finished with 25 points and Modahl 22. Grygla's attack featured Richard Nordby with 16 points and 10 rebounds, Jim Morrissey with 13 points and 13 rebounds and Randy Larson with 12 points.

Grygla was 21-for-63 from the field for 33 per cent. Badger was 19-for-62 for 31 per cent. The Eagles were 8-for-16 from the free throw line where the Rockets were 15-for-31. Grygla owned a 43-32 rebound advantage.

Two weekend games await the 3-9 Eagles who will host Warroad in a rescheduled contest Friday and entertain Mentor Saturday.

Northmen Will Host Voyageurs

Tagged with the fewest losses in MJCAA play but sitting in fourth place in the six-team league points standings, the Northland community college hockey team will face familiar faces this week when the Northmen travel to Crookston tonight (Wednesday) and host Rainy River in a weekend series that features games Friday night at 7:30 and Saturday afternoon at 1:30 in the Thief River Falls sports arena.

Northland out-scored Crookston 11-7 a week ago tonight in a penalty-marred game played here. People are anxiously awaiting the rematch to see if a repeat of the 22-penalty fiasco develops.

A mid-December series at International Falls found Northland splitting a pair of games against Rainy River. The Northmen opened with a 9-5 victory but the Voyageurs matched that with a 9-4 decision the following day.

"In my opinion, Rainy River is the best team we've faced," said Northland coach Bob Lundbohm. "They're very fast. They use their speed very well on the breakouts." Since Northland's strength also rests with its speed, hockey fans should be treated to a fast-paced series.

Rainy River will play Mesabi at Virginia tonight. In other MJCAA weekend action, Rochester plays Mesabi at Virginia Saturday and Sunday and Hibbing has a quick Friday-Saturday rematch at Crookston. The Cardinals solidified their hold on the MJCAA lead by sweeping the Trojans 10-4, 13-8 at Hibbing last weekend.

Section Eight Hockey Scoring Race Tightens

Red Lake Falls' high-scoring Dennis LaCoursiere, Jim Violette and Mark Herren continue to rank 1-2-3 in the section 8 high school hockey scoring charts, but the gap between the Eagles' marksmen and the rest of the section snipers is closing.

In fact, Bob Calusen of Crookston has caught Herren to share third place in the scoring charts with 21 points. And close behind are noted scorers Ed Christian of Warroad, Mark Perreault of Crookston and Aaron Broten of Roseau.

JULIE ANDERSON of Northland community college scored 15 points Tuesday against Fergus Falls in a women's Northwest Division basketball game played in Thief River Falls. Joyce Ennen, the Spartans' leading scorer with 12 points, tired to stop Anderson on this play. Fergus Falls won the game 58-41.

Argyle Drills Huskies 80-41

Argyle spoiled its reputation as a low-scoring proponent of slow-down basketball by drilling Goodridge 80-41 Tuesday. The visiting Eagles raced to a 26-4 first quarter lead to quickly decide the issue.

Four different Argyle scorers reached double figures, led by David Eckman and Jason Anderson with 19 points apiece. Troubled by the flu, Goodridge could only counter with Gerry Sunsdahl's 14 points.

The full-court pressure put on by Argyle forced 40 Goodridge turnovers that cost the Huskies their seventh loss against five wins. Argyle also owned a 26-18 rebound advantage.

Netting numerous fast break buckets, Argyle finished with a 58 per cent shooting night from the field, making 34 of 59 shots.

Goodridge will play at Climax Friday.

Spartans' Numbers Beat Northland Women 58-41

A simple numbers game beat the Northland community college women's basketball team Tuesday as the Northwomen fell to Northwest Division-leading Fergus Falls 58-41.

Platoon basketball — five substitutions at a time — enabled the Spartans to remain fresh while the short-handed Northwomen tired. Fergus Falls led 26-17 at halftime.

"We were a little outnumbered," acknowledged Northland coach Deb Jacobson. "They brought five in at a time — five that could play. If they had five that couldn't play it wouldn't be so bad."

With the liberal substitution, Joice Ennen, a 5-8 forward from Underwood, was the only Fergus Falls scorer in double figures. She finished with 12 points. However, 10 Spartans got into the scoring column, including Tina Rutten and Marianne Von Ruden, a pair of freshmen from the 1978 Minnesota state Class A champion New York Mills high school team.

Georgine Troska and Julie Anderson collected 31 of the 41 Northland points. Troska, a sophomore from Goodridge, finished with 16 while Anderson, a freshman from East Grand Forks, contributed 15. Only four Northwomen scored.

Northland shot 21 per cent from the field where the Northwomen were just 13-for-62. Fergus Falls shot 35 per cent from the floor by making 24 of 69 shots. Northland enjoyed a solid 15-for-22 night at the free throw line where Fergus Falls was only 10-for-25.

Northland, now 3-9 overall and 1-3 in division play, will be at Brainerd Saturday for a 12 noon Northwest Division contest.

Verbout, Grygla Girls Knock Off Roseau 35-31

Sophomore Lois Verbout scored 10 points, grabbed 10 rebounds, came up with seven steals and handed out four assists Monday to lead Grygla to an important 35-31 District 32 high school girls basketball victory over Roseau.

The win improved the Eagles' record to 9-1 and avenged a 27-26 home court loss to the Rams two weeks ago.

"It was a good win for us," said Grygla coach Bill Raduenz. "We out-hustled them, that's all."

Grygla held narrow leads at every quarter break, 7-6 after one, 15-12 at halftime and 25-22 after three.

Rae Derry scored 12 points for the Rams. Grygla lost the services of high-scoring Jill Saurdiff who sprained an ankle early in the third quarter.

"The bench really helped us," praised Raduenz whose club will host Lake of the Woods Thursday. The Eagles play at Badger Monday.

MCC - Badger

Marshall County Central held Badger without a point in the fourth quarter Monday to pull away from the host Rockets 31-19.

The Nordics, who won for the third time in their last four outings, led only 23-19 after three quarters. The visitors also led at the end of the first two quarter stops, 7-6 and 11-9.

"We played very good defense in the fourth quarter," reported Marshall County Central coach Tom Mjelde who switched from a press to a zone in the final eight minutes. "They just couldn't penetrate inside."

Rosalyn Knutson of Marshall County Central was the game's only double figure scorer, finishing with 14 points.

The Nordics, now 4-6, host Lancaster Thursday and entertain Roseau Monday.

Plummer - Alvarado

Plummer turned in one of the highest scoring performances of the year in the area with an 84-27 drubbing of Alvarado Monday.

The host Cardinals ran up a 19-2 first quarter lead, raised the difference to 43-8 at halftime and carried a 74-12 cushion into the fourth quarter.

"Our shots went in," offered Plummer coach Rick Koivisto whose team shot nearly 50 per cent from the field. Diane Fisher led the rout with 22 points in 2½ quarters of basketball. Melanie Skjerven scored 18 points, Rebecca Sorenson 16 and Jodi Pahlen 10.

It was the seventh win in eight starts for the Cardinals who play at East Grand Forks Sacred Heart Thursday and host Stephen Monday.

Research Being Done On PCB's In River Systems Of Midwest

PCB's and midwest weather have much in common. Both are cussed and discussed at great length, but there is not much that can be done with either.

PCB's represent a family of chemicals known as Polychlorinated Biphenyls. They are a highly stable, nearly indestructible compound once used in electrical transformers, hydraulic fluids, plastics, paints and a host of other products of a modern society. High temperature incineration (2700 degree F.) is the only approved method for their disposal.

Although they have been manufactured since the 1920's, an accidental discovery in 1966 found the contaminant to be widespread in the environment. The discovery caused a clamor among ecologists and health authorities in speculation about their effects in the food chain, especially in aquatic organisms where toxic levels of PCB's can be found.

Chronic exposure to PCB's can cause serious health effects to animals and man. In 1968, over 1,000 Japanese developed physical abnormalities when exposed accidently to large doses of PCB's in rice oil. Their symptoms involved severe acne, eye discharges, darkening of the skin, birth defects and miscarriages in pregnant women.

PCB's characteristically accumulate in the body fat of animals including man, and because of their stability organisms rid themselves of the contaminant at extremely slow rates.

Production for domestic use of PCB's was finally halted by the passage of the toxic substance control act of 1977. The catch is, roughly one-half (250 million pounds) of all PCB's ever manufactured are still in existence and much of it will be entering the environment for a long time.

Their entry into the environment through the "back door" via leakage from landfills, runoff, accidental spills and other means has been a concern to the Interior Department's U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service (FWS).

Researchers from the agency are attempting to get a better handle on just what happens to PCB's entering the environment, particularly through our river systems.

"There is very little known about contaminants in river systems" according to Gerry Jackson, a (FWS) biologist who heads an interdisciplinary team of researchers stationed at the national fishery research lab at LaCrosse, Wis.

Previous research has concentrated on freshwater bodies such as the Great Lakes, which act as a catch basin for the by-products of human society.

The present FWS concern is what happens to PCB's and similar contaminants entering the environment through river systems. In addition, they are trying to see what happens to living organisms that come into contact with the contaminant.

Their strategy is to concentrate their efforts on the Mississippi river and apply the knowledge to other similar rivers throughout the United States.

PCB levels in the Mississippi below Minneapolis and St. Paul are rather high, but no where near the level at other locations.

Lake Pepin, location 80 miles down river from the Twin Cities, receives a rather stiff doese of contaminants which tend to settle out in the lake. High water levels during the spring thaw carry much of the sediment and contaminant load to Lake Onalaska, 70 miles further down river at LaCrosse, Wis. where research efforts are concentrated.

"There should be no cause for alarm or panic along the Mississippi in regards to PCB levels" Jackson assured. "They are there, but not in excessive quantities."

Various fish in the Great Lakes system contains PCB levels in excess of the "five parts per million" health authorities have established as safe to eat.

Certain fishes, namely carp, exceed this five ppm base in Lake Pepin. The commercial sale of this fish was banned in the lake curtailing a localized business.

"I eat most fish out of the Mississippi and don't worry about it," Jackson added.

He is also quick to point out that very little is known about the long-term effects of PCB's on human health. PCB's are virtually indestructible and possibly more insidious than ddt and other well known contaminants.

The FWS study is not a traditional lab oriented research project. Team members come from many disciplines and several agencies and organizations are providing input.

Jackson's researchers are studying the bottom sediments. They range from clay and silt to sandy material. They hope to correlate bottom types and PCB levels with the living organisms found in this type of habitat.

The research pays particular attention to fingernail clams and the mayfly, which act as indicator species because they are common, widespread and act as carriers for contaminants found in bottom sediments.

Fingernail clams and mayflies are fed upon heavily by other wildlife species. Fish are fond of mayflies and waterfowl, particularly scaup dine on the tiny fingernail clam.

Various wildlife species are affected by PCB's and other contaminants due to prolonged exposure to these materials in their food.

"The natural health and reproductive efficiency of wildlife is decreased," according to Jackson. "We also know the animal's ability to

Nordics Stop Skippers 61-50

Dan Engen came off the sick list after missing two games because of the flu to score 19 points Tuesday, leading Marshall County Central to a 61-50 North Border Conference high school basketball triumph over rival Middle River.

"We were happy to win because they're really an improved team," noted Marshall County Central coach Ron Ueland. "Eldon (coach Eldon Sparby) has done a terrific job with them this year."

The host Nordics doubled the Skippers 14-7 in the first quarter and carried a 31-21 lead into halftime. It was a 50-42 game after three quarters.

Kevin Anderson and Jim Sethre joined Engen in double figures with 14 and 10 points, respectively. Middle River standout Scott McKeever produced a game-high 27 points.

Both teams shot well. Middle River was 21-for-41 for 51 per cent while Marshall County Central was 26-for-53 for 49 per cent. The Skippers were 8-for-18 at the free throw line. The Nordics made nine of 16 free throws. Marshall County Central held a 27-17 rebound advantage.

The win enabled Marshall County Central to square its record at 6-6 for the year. The Nordics pull double duty this weekend, playing at Roseau Friday and hosting Kennedy Saturday. Middle River, now 5-6, hosts Lake of the Woods Saturday.

Al Lindner's In' Fisherman Tips

THE REEL THAT REVOLUTIONIZED FISHING

Years ago fishermen had only two choices of reels which they could use. There was the baitcasting reel and the fly reel. Since then, however, the invention of the open-faced spinning reel has revolutionized modern angling.

Open-faced spinning reels are excellent for the angler who intends to fish with lines ranging from 2 to 12 lb.-test. Heavier line can be used on these reels, but the very nature and design of the open-faced spinning reel makes it an ideal tool for light lines and small-to-medium-sized lures. When an open-faced reel is combined with a well-balanced rod and light line, long casts can be made with relative ease.

I use open-faced reels exclusively when I am fishing small-to-medium-sized baits. I like them because they are designed for maximum casting accuracy, and, when used correctly, these reels will seldom tangle up. They are also easier to learn to cast than a baitcasting reel, which makes them the ideal reel for a novice to learn to cast with.

Some open-faced spinning reels come in either right-hand or left-hand versions. Others are designed so that the same reel can be used for either right-handed or left-handed persons. On these models, the reel handle can be repositioned to suit the personal preference of the owner.

One feature of the open-faced spinning reel that is often misused is the drag mechanism. Few things will help a large fish escape faster than a faulty drag. During my guiding days, I saw countless anglers lose big fish because they depended on the drag. Personally, I do not use the drag. I do set it, however, to the proper resistance for hook-setting purposes.

Instead of using the drag, I prefer a method called "backreeling" whenever I fight fish with an open-faced reel. I leave the anti-reverse lever in the "off" position. This allows me to reel without making the clicking sound that indicates that the anti-reverse lever is "on." During the powerful surges of a large fish, I like to "backreel" the reel handle or allow it to "free wheel" backwards by itself. This avoids the possibility of losing the fish due to a faulty or improperly adjusted drag. In other words, the fish is allowed to make its runs under the pressure of the rod tip rather than the drag.

Another thing to watch when you're using an open-faced reel is the line guide on your pole. It is a major point of friction on the line when your using an open-faced reel. When monofilament line is pulled swiftly across the guide, heat is generated by friction. If enough of this heat is generated, it's "goodbye fish." Also, the line guides are made of steel or carbide and should be smooth and free of nicks. If the line guides are bad, your line may break frequently near the reel while you are setting the hook. Be sure to check these guides often and keep them in smooth shape.

So if you don't already have one, join the IN' FISHERMEN and get an open-faced spinning reel. They sure do make a difference.!

KEEP ON PLUGGIN'!

Most of my walleye fishing is based on the used of live baits, but this is not the only method I use to take them. Walleyes will also strike artificial baits. In many areas of the northern states, for example, plugs were once the number one bait used for catching walleyes. Even today, in some areas, artificial lures are used exclusively to taking walleyes at dusk and at night. Plugs used in this manner are usually cast or trolled slowly. But more fish are caught by trolling than casting, because the lure is in the fish's feeding zone much more of the time when trolling.

There are several walleye plugs that have proven effective. The Rapala and the imitation minnows work well, as do the banana-type plugs like the Flatfish and the Lazy Ike. I tie the plug directly to the line instead of using wire leaders. I do this because walleyes can see a heavier wire and leader, and because the leader also disturbs the lure's action and movement.

I like to run the plug just above the bottom, allowing it to bump occasionally. I also like to let out at least 100 feet of line, depending on the type of plug I am using and the depth I want it to run at. Most of this trolling is done in 12 feet of water or shallower. Dropoffs, points, sunken islands, rock reefs, and weedbeds are all good structure to cover. I begin trolling at a certain depth and I make sure to maintain a close contour throughout the run. When I catch a fish, I note the depth, speed, lure, and area that it was taken from. This helps me to note a pattern that I can use in similar areas.

Many IN' FISHERMEN prefer to fish for walleyes with plugs at night, so they use the lights on shore as points of reference to mark the area. Night trolling is intriguing. I try to be prepared and orderly. This includes having the proper lighting and a sonar depth finder, which lets me stay in the fish zone constantly. Also, I like to have a good knowledge of the lake bottom terrain, so that I don't end up with a broken propeller on a shallow reef.

Trolling speed should be varied until a pattern is found that works. When a walleye strikes, the hook must be set immediately. And if you are night fishing, other fishermen in the boat should reel in whenever someone has a fish on. This helps to avoid aggravating tangles.

IN' FISHERMAN Gearhardt Block, who fishes Big Stone Lake near Ortonville, Minnesota, hooks a lot of big walleyes with plugs. He fishes near the Ottertail Outlet, where warm water is discharged. He likes to use Hellcats, which account for many of the bragging size walleyes he takes. He attaches a small sinker to his line about eight inches above the lure, and then he casts and retrieves the lures just above the bottom. Needless to say, he has been very successful with this method.

It seems as though river walleyes take artificial lures more readily than lake walleyes do. I believe this is because the river water is a murkier environment for the fish, so plugs which kick out vibrations seem to trigger walleyes into striking more readily. River walleyes may also be more attuned to locating food by sound, and thus will strike lures more readily than lake walleyes do.

In order to learn more about the fantastic work that is being accomplished in the study of the sport of fishing, the IN' FISHERMAN SOCIETY has prepared a special FULL COLOR pamphlet for YOU that is chock full of maps, charts, drawings, and photos that show how the experts go about unraveling the mysteries of fishing. Basketball JV Snaps Losing Streak, 54-48

Lincoln high school junior varsity basketball team snapped a five-game losing streak Tuesday with a 54-58 win over Mahnomen.

Hal Swanson scored 13 points and Greg Miller 12 for the winners who led 14-12 at the end of the first quarter, remained in front 26-21 at halftime and opened a 44-37 third quarter lead.

The win improved Thief River Falls' season record to 5-6.

Research Being Done On PCB's

cope with stress is reduced. This is particularly true in winter when wildlife is under stress and PCB's concentrate in fatty tissues during hunger periods."

Jackson added that his research is looking at "pre-crisis" information rather than being forced into a reactionary approach following a contaminant alarm.

An organized data base regarding PCB movement in the environment should prove helpful, since cleanup of the material seems impossible because of cost and technical practicality.

"Avoidance of PCB's in the environment and proper disposal of them seems to be the key," Jackson concluded.

According to the U.S. Labor Department's Employment and Training Administration, nearly 215,000 veterans participated in Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) Programs in fiscal year 1976. CETA is the principle legislation authorizing employment and training programs for the Labor Department.

ABRUPT END TO I-500 COMPETITION was experienced by Jon Wilson of Goodridge when he wiped out with his sled only two miles from the starting line in Tuesday's second leg of the race. Wilson, who was driving a Polaris, was in 48th place at the start of Tuesday's competition with a time of 3:26:33. He lost control of his sled when he came over a high spot along the ditch on highway 32 and the accident took off the seat of his sled. Wilson crawled out of the way of oncoming sleds and received no serious injuries. His sled was hit by one of the other racers but the driver of that machine was able to maintain control and continued on in the race. Minutes later a second driver tipped coming off the high spot. Windshield of the vehicle was broken off but the driver righted his sled and rejoined the race.

IRONING OUT the rough spots was the unwanted task of I-500 racers heading for Bemidji from Thief River Falls Tuesday. Tom Feierabend of Brainerd is shown piloting his sled through a particularly bad part of the race course east of Thief River Falls. At least two major spills happened in this area, including one which wrecked the machine driven by Jon Wilson of Goodridge and put him out of the race.

MASTERS' CLASS DRIVERS in the I-500 snomobile race, Dick Kolp (left), 47 year old driver from Walker, and Larry Hewes, 57 year old driver from Tonka Bay, are pictured at the drivers meeting in Thief River Falls which followed completion of the first leg of the Winnipeg to St. Paul race. Both Kolp and Hewes, who have been running the I-500 eight and seven years respectively, requested and received the same number they have had each year in the race. Kolp, who earned himself a ninth place standing on the Winnpeg to Thief River Falls stretch of the race, wears number 159 and Hewes, brother of local veteran of the I-500, Lenny Hewes, wears number 2. Following the second leg of the race Kolp moved up to fifth place with a total time of 5:04:47.

EASY RIDER was Glenn Pumper of Savage who took four hours and 37 minutes to reach Thief River Falls from Winnipeg and was in 120th place heading for Bemidji Tuesday on the second leg of the I-500 snowmobile race.

ROUGH GOING east of Thief River Falls on the second leg of the I-500 snowmobile race was encountered by John Buck of Alexandria. Several riders took spills in this area of the course several miles from the Tuesday starting line.

LOW County To Get Funds For Bridge Repair

Thirty-three deficient bridges on the state trunk highway system in 22 counties are being replaced or reconstructed at a cost of more than $19 million, according to commissioner Richard P. Braun, Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT).

Federal funds make up about a fifth of the 119.2 million put under contract during 1978 to replace these bridges.

In northwestern Minnesota, only Lake of the Woods county is included in the program with work to be done on a bridge over Hay Creek on CSAH 16, 12 miles south of the junction of highways 72 and 11.

"We anticipate," Braun said, "letting contracts during 1979 totaling about $34.9 million to replace or reconstruct an additional 70 deficient bridges. Of that amount, about $13.4 million will be federal funds."

During 1977, contracts totaling $33.6 million ($17.9 million federal funds) were awarded to replace or reconstruct 48 bridges.

Another 420 of the 3,400 bridges on the trunk highway system are currently identified as inadequate and will need to be replaced under a long-range program. "Because of the lead time required to bring a project to contract," he said, "it is important now to idenitfy the bridges for future replacement."

Before being able to use the $75 million appropriated by the Minnesota legislature to replace or reconstruct trunk highway bridges, Mn-DOT had to develop rules, standards and specifications for administration of the program in cooperation with local units of government and the regional development commissions.

Minnesota's bridge inspection program provides Mn-DOT with a rating for every bridge in the state. Each bridge has a full inspection report on file. Computer programming makes detailed information for each bridge on the trunk highway system easily accessible.

Deficient bridges are those structures which do not meet minimum standards in one or more of the following categories:

(1) Less than legal load-carrying capacity.

(2) Advanced state of deterioration which will lead to load-capacity posting and high maintenance costs.

(3) Too narrow to safely carry current traffic.

(4) Insufficient horizontal clearance to safely handle current traffic or less than legal vertical clearance.

COMMITTEE APPOINTMENTS for Representative John Corbid for the 71st legislative session were announced by DFL house leader Irv Anderson. Corbid will serve on appropriations and the health and welfare division, financial institutions, and insurance and energy. Although the energy committee is a new assignment for Corbid, he was chosen as the ranking member of that committee because of his work on the select committee on energy. "One of the issues I am particularly concerned about," he says, "is peat land development. I feel it should proceed slowly so that flood control values and wilderness values are not lost." Corbid invites anyone interested in solar energy, pipeline routing or peat land development to contact him at 612-296-4329 during the week or at 796-5064 on weekends.

Roseau Added To 4-County Health Board

The quin county board of health was the new name chosen for the board formerly known as the K-M-P-RL board of health. The name change was necessitated by the addition of Roseau county to Kittson, Marshall, Pennington and Red Lake as the local community health services agency.

The expanded board and the expanded advisory committee met January 8 and the adoption of a new name was a major item of business.

Other business included approval of a revision of the 1979 C.H.S. plan. Each county receives an additional 25 cents per capita as allowed by law when the combined population of the agency exceeds 50,000 people. Marshall and Kittson counties elected to use these funds to expand maternal and child health services. Red Lake county proposed to eliminate the position for sanitarian from the original plan and to use the combined funds to subsidize the Oklee ambulance service the the Red Lake Falls ambulance service. Each of the ambulance services would receive $2,434. The Red Lake county health planning council would receive $2,500, to aid in recruitment of medical personnel for the county.

Public comment on these revisions is invited and should be directed to Gladys LaCrosse, chairman, Quin County Board of Health or to Viola Rud, administrator, Quin County Board of Health, courthouse in Warren. After public review and comment the proposed plan will be submitted to the Minnesota department of health for approval.

Aliens Urged To Report Address Soon

Jay. A. Palmer, District Director, immigration and naturalization service, St. Paul, urges all aliens who have not reported their address to the Government to do so no later than January 31st to avoid possible penalties.

Law requires that every alien except those having diplomatic status and representatives of certain international organizations must file the address report during January of each year.

Forms with which to make the reports are available at all post offices and immigration and naturalization service offices. It is an easy matter to fill out one of these cards, form I-53, and then placing a postage stamp on the reverse of this card and dropping the card in the mail box.

Social security number should be shown on the registration card. Aliens and employers are advised that the possession of a social security card does not entitle aliens to work in the United States. Only aliens admitted for permanent residence or certain classes of nonresident aliens authorized to do so by the immigration and naturalization service may take employment. Violators of this restriction are subject to certain penalties.

UND Announces Fall Semester Deans' List

University of North Dakota at Grand Forks has recognized students for superior academic achievement by naming them to the deans' list for the 1978-79 fall semester.

Deans' list includes the top 15 per cent of the students in each of the undergraduate degree-granting colleges and schools in the university. This requires achieving at least the minimum grade point average of 3.5 (4.0 equals straight A) while enrolled in no fewer than 12 semester hours of academic work, of which eight or more must be graded work rather than pass-fail.

Named to the dean's list from Thief River Falls were Debra Drees, Barbara Eriksson, Roger Eriksson, Diane Hellie, Kevin Kompelien, Jay Narverud, Jenny Prestebak, Pamela Prichard, Pamela Smith, Robbin Trontvet, Kim Wigness and Douglas Williams.

Also included on the list were Rebecca Nelson and Pamela Renner of Goodridge and Lex Prenevost of Red Lake Falls.

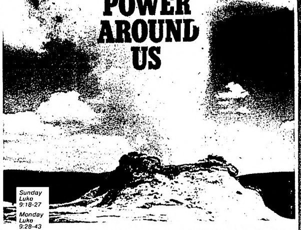
THE POWER AROUND US



Sunday Luke 9:18-27
Monday Luke 9:28-43
Tuesday Luke 11:1-13
Wednesday Luke 18:1-14
Thursday Luke 18:31-43
Friday Luke 21:29-38
Saturday Acts 1:12-26

Geysers have been spouting for centuries, periodically relieving the pent-up pressures from hot subterranean springs. For some people letting off steam at regular intervals is now a way of life.

Only when man developed the steam engine did he begin to understand what geysers were all about. Are there other secrets of Life and the Universe which we'll comprehend only when we start seriously to work with them?

The Power of God is all around us . . . evident in every wonder of creation.

Yet only when we seek that Power as the motivating force in our life, do we begin to sense its nearness, its soul-stirring effect. Then that vast, mysterious Power becomes suddenly warm and very personal.

You'll begin to know that Power when you enter the door of your church.

Answer Questions On Energy Tax Credits

Recent legislation will allow many people to claim two new income tax credits that can offset expenses for installing energy-saving devices and renewable energy source property in the home. Following questions and answers from the IRS explain some of the features of these new credits:

Q: Credits reflect the two catagories of equipment that qualify — (1) energy conservation devices such as insulation or storm doors, (2) solar, wind and geothermal energy equipment — and the costs of installing these devices and systems.

Q: What is the credit for energy conservation devices?

A: Homeowners and renters can claim a tax credit for energy conservation devices installed between April 20, 1977 and December 31, 1985. Items eligible for the credit are limited to insulation, storm or thermal windows and doors, furnace replacement burners, weather stripping and caulking, flue-opening modifications, an electrical or mechanical furnace ignition systems which replace gas pilot lights, clock thermostats and meters which display cost of energy usage.

Q: How much is the credit for energy conservation devices?

A: Credit is 15 per cent of the first $2,000 in eligible expenses, to a maximum of $300. Credit must amount to at least $10 in order to be claimed and it cannot exceed your tax liability, meaning your tax bill.

Q: Do I have to spend the entire $2,000 in one year?

A: No. The credit is cumulative. It applies to expenditures made between April 20, 1977 and December 31, 1985. Total credits claimed for all years may not total more than $300.

Q: Are there any other requirements?

A: Yes. You must actually install the device in your home to be eligible. Just purchasing the equipment and storing it in a basement, for example, is not enough. Also, the home must be your principal place of residence; vacation and summer homes do not qualify.

Q: I don't own my home. Can I claim the credit even though I rent?

A: Yes. Renters are eligible as well as tenant-stockholders in cooperatives. Also, members of condominium management associations may claim a share of the credit for their organizations' qualifying expenditures.

Q: What does the other credit involve?

A: This credit offsets the costs of installing renewable energy source property, such as solar, geothermal, or wind energy equipment, to heat or cool your home, or to heat water for your home.

Q: Are the amounts the same as for the other credit?

A: No. For solar, geothermal or wind energy equipment, the credit is 30 per cent of the first $2,000 in expenses, plus 20 per cent of the next $8,000 spent, to a maximum credit of $2,200. For example, if you install a solar heating system which costs you $5,000 and you meet the other requirements, your credit would be 30 per cent of the first $2,000 or $600, plus 20 per cent of the remaining $3,000 or $600, for a total credit of $1,200.

Q: Is this credit cumulative too?

A: Yes. If your credit for this year totaled $1,200, for instance, you would be able to claim another $1,000 in credits in subsequent years.

Q: Are there any other requirements if I install solar energy equipment?

A: Yes, the system must have been installed in your home between April 20, 1977 and December 31, 1985. You can either own or rent, but your home must be your principal place of residence and it must be located inthe U.S. In addition, the credit cannot exceed your tax liability. Renewable energy source credit is available for items installed on either existing or newly constructed residences.

Rate Heating System For Efficiency

Your family's comfort, health, energy and sense of well-being all are affected by the evenness and quality of your home's heating. With the current emphasis upon fuel savings, the efficiency of your system takes on another important dimension.

You can't have your heating system shut down for inspection during the height of winter, but this is a good time to evaluate its performance and, if improvements in efficiency are needed to have them made before the next heating season, the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling information bureau points out. Perhaps all it needs is cleaning and the replacement of parts. If it seems to gobble up fuel and still leave cold spots in the house, it will pay you to have it completely overhauled or replaced.

Hydronic heat is a quality type. It uses water as the heating medium and is efficient, clean, quiet and draft free. Baseboard radiation makes placement of furniture and the hanging of drapes easy.

Another desireable feature of hydronic heat is the ease with which it can be "zoned" to vary the temperature in different areas of the home according to the activity there. Thus bathrooms can be keep warm and bedrooms cooler for sleeping. Rooms occupied by babies or older folks can be kept warmer, while rooms used by active teenagers such as recreation rooms can be kept cooler. Temperatures in seldom-used rooms such as guest rooms can be kept low. All this means not only maximum comfort but fuel savings as well.

Home Dialysis Considered In Federal Plans

Prposed changes in federal funding will create a change in treating kidney disease by leading to more hemodialysis at home, according to an article in the "Annals of Internal Medicine."

This change will not only reduce costs, it will also impose added tasks on physicians. Selection of patients will be from dialysis centers of hospitals and the centers must select patients with a reasonable amount of intelligence and who are capable of proper training to achieve results at home. To achieve these results, they must have a vascular access constructed at least six to twelve months before they actually need it.

In the September issue of the publication, Capt. Lucius F. Wright, MC, USA and Lt. Col. W. Duke Myers, MC, USA discuss the entire situation, with emphasis on vascular access, the cardiovascular, hematologic, and renal failure problems. "Annals" is the official journal of the American college of physicians, a national professional association of more than 40,000 specialists in internal medicine and related areas.

The report goes on to say the access infections are usually caused by Staphylococcus aureus. Treatment is with intravenous vancomycin (500 to 1,000 mgs and 250 ml of five per cent dextrose in water) at the end of dialysis. Clotting, a far more common problem than infection, occurs when blood flow through the access is impeded. Many patients suffer from cardiovascular problems, such as hypertension, angina pectoris and myocardial infarction which are hard to manage in the dialysis patient.

Hematologic problems, such an anemia, are common. Routine tests — and dialysis itself — cause blood loss and the authors favor taking blood samples once a month.

Bone problems are intensified; hypocalcemia appears early in progressive renal failure. Thus, patients with chronic renal failure are usually in negative calcium balance. Muscle cramps are common, too.

Neurologic disorders may be encountered; and the area of drugs whose prescriptions must be changed for dialysis patients is of growing concern.

Sexual problems in both men and women can cause psychologic disorders. Still, the article notes that home dialysis patients do not get all of these problems and the internist should guard against a negative attitude.

The home dialysis patient should be aware of technical errors and avoid them, the authors state. Two most common errors are hypotension and disequilibrium and if they do happen, the patient should return to the dialysis center and wait for reevaluation of the dialysis procedure.

Begin Plans For Vegetable Growers Co-op

Magic number is 100 acres. If that many are signed for and shares of non-voting stock are purchased for $150 per acre, a vegetable growers and processors co-op will be in business this year in an area that takes in territory in eastern North Dakota and northwestern Minnesota.

According to Dr. Earl Scholz of the North Dakota state university department of horticulture, who has been active in researching and promoting commercial vegetable production in the area, the cooperative operated successfully on a trial basis in 1978, with 24 acres harvested. Five crops — muskmelons, cabbage, squash, peppers and cauliflower — were grown. Because of its rather exacting growth conditions, cauliflower was not considered completely successful, and in 1979 cucumbers will be grown instead as a fifth vegetable variety.

Territory in which the vegetables will be grown extends approximately from Thief River Falls to Devils Lake, N.D., south to Jamestown, N.D., then east through Wahpeton, N.D., to the Frazee area.

Growers will all have small acreages, at least for the foreseeable future. Right now the largest acreage in the co-op, nine acres, will be planted by a grower with considerable experience. It is strongly advised by the steering group and those already in the co-op that growers start small and not attempt anything that they cannot do profitably and well.

Two kinds of stock are available. Each grower is entitled to buy one voting share for $25; 100 shares of non-voting stock will be available at the rate of $150 per acre. Small grant has been obtained that will pay the salary of a manager. First grading line will be set up in Frazee, where a suitable building with refrigeration has been offered for a five-year period. Money obtained from sale of stock and from the pledged backing of Minneapolis bankers will be used to purchase a truck and other necessary equipment.

Co-op will be a strictly wholesale organization, and wholesale market outlets also are pledged, including some who successfully dealt with the co-op in 1978. As the organization expands, other grading lines and packing facilities will be put into operation, with the preferred plan being to develop slowly and soundly, not taking on new facilities until enough high quality produce and assured markets are available.

QUALITIES In Sound

Little Known Facts

The most beautiful-sounding word in the English language is "cuspidor," said writer James Joyce. Poet Charles Baudelaire said the most beautiful-sounding French word is "hemorroides," which in English means exactly what you think it means.

To capture the most beautiful sounds of any language, you need a fine stereo receiver like that from Realistic and available only at Radio Shack's more than 6,000 nationwide outlets. The Realistic STA-85 stereo receiver features exclusive Auto-Magic for instant and accurate FM tuning, plus Glide-Path combined volume/balance/loudness controls.

For an unusual adventure in sound, probably few operas can beat Giacomo Meyerbeer's 1849 opus, The Prophet. The rage of Europe, it featured an athletic roller skating scene featuring a busty diva and rotund baritone attempting a duet while doing figure eights. The rumble of the skate wheels on the wooden stage was reportedly deafening, and that was before the microphone era.

An informational meeting to explain the opportunity for raising vegetables for the wholesale produce market will be held January 22 at 1:30 p.m. in the Multi-purpose room of the Detroit Lakes area vocational technical institute.

At this meeting the formation of a marketing co-op will be discussed, as well as grading and packing facilities that are to be established, availability of wholesale markets, and the potential return to the grower for various crops that will be sold on the wholesale market.

There will be a report on the 1978 venture into the wholesale market, and detailed reports on each of the five crops grown and marketed last year.

Anyone who has ever thought of raising vegetables commercially is urged to attend this meeting, and, if interested, to become a part of the cooperative and the wholesale produce market. Speakers will be people who have been successful members of the 1978 cooperative effort.

Humidifiers Can Add To Home Comfort

Everyone knows by now that you can save fuel by turning down your thermostat to 68 degrees or less. The problem is — how do you stay comfortable at the lower temperature, especially if you're one of the majority of people who like it 75 or 82 degrees?

You can do it by introducing moisture into the air, says the Plumbing - Heating - Cooling information bureau. Grandma used to do it by putting pans of water on radiators or in heating ducts. The modern way is with a humidifier. You can actually increase comfort at lower temperatures with a humidifier, the Bureau notes.

Here's why, according to Ken Fournier of Skuttle Manufacturing company, a pioneer in the humidification field: Excessively dry air evaporates moisture from your skin, automatically lowering the temperature on its surface and making you feel cooler. Putting moisture into the air slows the evaporating process, so you feel comfortable at a lower temperature.

If your home is like the average, it's probably too dry. In fact, in most homes the relative humidity drops to around 15 per cent during the heating season — and that's drier than Death Valley! A home heated to 68 degrees should have a relative humidity between 30 and 35 per cent.

Static electricity is probably the most obvious sign that your home is too dry. However, dryness is also repsonsible for itchy skin, irritated nasal passages, shrinking woodwork and drawers that stick.

There are humidifiers available for every type of heating. For more information, write to the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau, 35 E. Wacker Dr., Chicago, Ill. 60601.

The Hired Hands

As we sifted through the clutter which obliterated our desk recently, a yellowed clipping from a couple of years ago came into view. It was an editorial from the Wall Street Journal discussing the power being allowed and used by Congressional staffs in Washington. The conditions mentioned then have not lessened, and it is appropriate to comment on them as the current congressional session is underway. The editorial follows:

A few years ago, people who worried about making government accountable for its actions used to point to the federal bureaucracy as the major obstacle standing between hapless citizens and the elected officials they're supposed to control. These days, as Congress takes an increasingly active role in setting national policy, observers are shifting their attention and concern to another group of unelected decisionmakers — congressional staffs.

In two recent articles in The Public Interest, Michael J. Malbin and Michael Andrew Scully have described the growing power of these staffs and the special problems that arise from this power. At the end of World War II, Mr. Malbin reminds us, Congress had not yet seen any need at all for its committees to be permanently staffed by professionals. But since that time the congressional budget has grown to be 45 times as large as it was then. The Senate alone now has a staff of 7,000.

Even more important than the growth in staff numbers has been the kind of jobs they have come to do for their Congressmen. Mr. Scully points out that today staffers not only set the agenda for our legislation and organize the hearings and negotiations that shape it, but actually draft the laws themselves and write the reports of legislative intent that accompany them.

And when they do all these things, the staffers are not just mirroring the congressional will. For one thing, their very numbers and levels of activity change the shape of the lawmaking process; instead of merely carrying out a legislative program they also help create one, inventing things to do where there were none before. For another, they are highly partisan; they tend to seek not dispassionate knowledge but the knowledge that brings advantage. And to add to these problems that Mr. Malbin and Mr. Scully describe, too many of these staffers seem to have been schooled to the assumption that the private sector may best be thought of as an insidious disease requiring a federal remedy.

To hear all of this, it would seem congressional staffs are good candidates for the next leading example of the arrogance of irresponsible power. But before people start blaming too many of the nation's legislative disasters on them, it might be well to remember that the staffers are doing pretty much what their congressional bosses want them to do. Congressmen themselves are the ones who try to attach their names to as many laws as possible, as if this were the true measure of their devotion to the public interest. Congressmen themselves would rather leave the actual grubby details of policy formation to someone else.

The only wonder is that the same Congressmen are heard to complain about their tight schedules, crowded with constituents who not surprisingly have come to see the Congress as the home of a lot of activity that's significant to their lives. But complain they do — and ask for more staff to ease the burden.

Staff power in today's Congress isn't some undemocratic conspiracy against citizens and their elected officials; it's the more or less natural result of our politicians' commitment to overgoverance. And it's going to prove pretty futile to complain about one without relinquishing the other.

Social Comment

Changes in our social structure seem to be too easily accepted these days as improper behavior is considered normal simply because people can readily be expected to exhibit it.

This realization struck us while reading an article about a crime prevention experiment in Fridley, a Minneapolis suburb. In one area of that community a concentrated effort was exerted to have people watch for suspicious activity in their neighborhoods, upgrade their home security and mark valuable property for easy identification.

The Benjamin-Briardale district of 104 new homes had been a target of criminals with one out of 10 houses being burglarized annually, compared to "only one out of 32 homes during a year" in the rest of Fridley. A police spokesman said there had been no successful burglaries in the Benjamin-Briardale district since August, a month after efforts were begun to organize the neighborhood.

"There's also been a drastic reduction in vandalism and theft from yards," the spokesman said. "These are just petty now, such as teenagers throwing eggs at a friend's house or stealing of bicycles left carelessly in a yard."

Our belief is that any form of burglary or theft is improper and that only a zero incidence of this type of activity is acceptable. "Only" one out of 32 homes being burglarized annually is patently excessive. Having one out of 10 homes burglarized annually is ridiculous. Apparently the neighborhood residents got "fed up" after 16 cases of burglary and vandalism in the 104-home area in a two-week period last July.

But as excessive and unacceptable as these burglaries may be, the social commentary we wish to make concerns the statement which tells of the "stealing of bicycles left carelessly in a yard". Since when should it be careless to leave your personal items on your own property and expect them to remain there? Has our social structure changed to the degree that people should assume that anything not fastened down or behind locked doors is free for the taking? We think not.

As we come to expect things, however, we also tend to accept them. In theft, morals, politics, you-name-it, there is real danger in complacency which allows less than acceptable conditions to become accepted.

Farmers Need Support

Following editorial from the "Badger Farm Bureau News" in Wisconsin appeared recently in the "Land O'Lakes Mirror":

A recent national survey conducted by Leo Shapiro and Associates of Chicago indicates that although farmers have a broad base of public support, their fellow Americans can be persuaded to vote for programs that can damage the farmer, farm life, and America if the public fails to get realistic information about the needs of farmers. The survey more than ever points out that farmers need the active support of knowledgeable friends outside the agricultural community.

A majority of those surveyed cited rising prices and inflation as the nation's number one problem and most expect prices to climb even faster in coming months. Who gets the blame for these rising prices? Fortunately, very few point to farmers; most feel that the illusive middleman is the guilty party with the government not far behind. While farmers may view that as encouraging, other findings of the survey leave some doubt as to how well the public understands the economics of agriculture.

Although 91 per cent favored reduced government spending as a solution to help deal with rising food prices, 68 per cent were in favor of consumer boycotts, 54 per cent favored cutting demand by prohibiting food sales to foreign countries and 32 per cent felt that food imports should be increased.

It is clear that the American public does not fully realize the long-range impact of those actions on the food production cycle. Boycotts, no exports and more imports may bring down prices for a short time, but as farmers see their profit margin narrow, they'll milk fewer cows, feed out fewer beef and hogs, and plant fewer acres with the result in prices skyrocketing to new all-time highs.

It's interesting to note that although only six per cent blamed farmers for rising food prices, 19 per cent favored limiting the profits of farmers as a solution to the problem. A majority also favored freezing food prices at their present level. The public wants relief from rising prices and they're not likely to notice who gets hurt in the process.

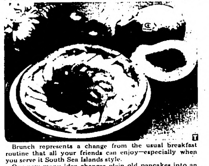
As Shapiro and Associates noted, "There is no indication that the mass of consumers will throw themselves on the live grenade of inflation to protect anyone's finances — even the farmers."

Borrowed Nonsense:

Marriage teaches you loyalty, forbearance, self-restraint, meekness — and a whole bunch of other qualities you wouldn't need if you had stayed single.

The big game hunter took his wife along on an African safari. The first night they returned to camp with a huge lion killed by the wife. ".458 Weatherby magnum?" asked one of the white hunters. "No," the hunter replied, "a 1968 Chevy truck."

INVITE A BUNCH TO BRUNCH



Brunch represents a change from the usual breakfast routine that all your friends can enjoy—especially when you serve it South Sea Islands style.

Our new menu idea changes plain old pancakes into an enchanting late-morning meal with the addition of two succulent fruits straight from paradise: kiwifruit and papaya.

One associated only with Hawaiian and New Zealand vacations, both kiwifruit and papaya are being touted as "fruits with a future," according to Calavo Growers of California, because of their versatility and year round availability.

No need to worry about weight gain when you serve these low-calorie fruits, or about selection and storage techniques. You can gauge their ripeness with finger pressure. If they yield, they are ripe.

Papayas and kiwifruit can be purchased while still firm and ripened at room temperature. Then you can store them in the refrigerator for up to a week. Unripe kiwifruit will keep in the refrigerator for several months.

PAPAYA-KIWI OVEN PANCAKES

- 1/2 cup butter or margarine
- 5 eggs
- 1 1/4 cups milk
- 1 1/4 cups flour
- 2 ripe Calavo papayas, seeds removed, peeled and sliced lengthwise
- 2 ripe Calavo kiwifruit, peeled and sliced
- Juice of 1/2 lemon
- Powdered sugar

Melt 1/4 cup butter in each of two 9-inch pie pans in 425° oven. Meanwhile, whir eggs in blender for 1 minute; add milk and flour, blending until smooth. Pour batter into pie pans, dividing equally. Bake 20-25 minutes, or until pancakes are fluffy and lightly browned.

While pancakes are baking, toss papaya and kiwifruit slices in bowl with lemon juice.

To serve, spoon fruit over pancakes and sprinkle with powdered sugar. Cut pancakes into pie-shaped wedges. Makes 8 servings.

QUESTIONS Answered for VETERANS

Q—I was released from active duty April 30, 1978, with my Servicemen's Group Life Insurance in force. But I did not apply for Veterans Group Life Insurance (VGLI) within 120 days following separation. Can I apply within one year following the 120-day period, or must I apply for VGLI only within one year following my separation?

A—Application may be made up to one year following the 120 days after separation, but medical questions must be answered. The application for this purpose may be obtained from the Office of Servicemen's Group Life Insurance, 212 Washington St., Newark, N.J. 07102, or from any Veterans Administration regional office.

Q—Is there any time limit on when a veteran's widow must apply for burial allowance from the Veterans Administration?

A—Application for burial allowance must be made within two years after the veteran's burial or cremation.

Q—Did the Veterans Housing Benefits Act of 1978 increase the amount of loan guaranty from the Veterans Administration?

A—The maximum home loan guaranty was increased from $17,500 to $25,000. The law provides for a guaranty not to exceed 60 per cent of the amount of the loan, or $25,000, whichever is less. The effective date of this provision was October 1, 1978.

Q—I am the widow of a veteran of World War II and the Korean Conflict. My husband never used the GI home loan benefit provided for such veterans. Am I entitled to this loan?

A—Only if your husband died as a result of a service-connected disability incurred during his World War II or Korean service, and you are presently unmarried. The fact that your husband may or may not have obtained a GI loan would not affect your entitlement. Contact your nearest Veterans Administration regional office or veterans' service organization for specific information.

Q—I held on to the National Service Life Insurance term policy after World War II. Is it true that if I continue to hold this policy during my older years it could cost me as much as $554 a month for this $10,000 policy?

A—That's correct. Term insurance while you're young is excellent, inexpensive coverage. As you grow older, the cost increases dramatically. You may convert to a permanent plan which will build cash reserve, and the premium will not increase in cost with age. Check with your nearest Veterans Administration regional office.

Q—What is the amount of the new Veterans Administration automobile grant which became effective October 1, 1978?

A—$3,800.

Q — What is the Veterans Administration work-study program?

A — Veterans enrolled as full-time students may agree to work up to 250 hours per semester or quarter for which they are paid a maximum of $725 as of January 1, 1979, when the new minimum wage provision became effective. Work sites may be VA regional offices, medical centers or national cemeteries, as well as the college campuses at which the veteran is enrolled.

Q — Is it possible for the Veterans Administration to issue a burial flag after the veteran's burial?

A — Flags will not be issued after burial except where circumstances made it impossible to obtain a flag in time to drape the casket of a deceased veteran prior to burial.

Q — What is the Veterans Administration's definition of a "helpless child?"

A — A child who becomes permanently incapable of self-support due to a mental or physical defect before reaching age 18.

The leading cause of blindness in the U.S. today, cataract is responsible for an estimated total of 76,500 cases of blindness.

Union Stockyards At St. Paul Lead In Market Receipts

Joel Bennett, president of the St. Paul Union stockyards, announced that on the basis of livestock marketing receipts, the stockyards had the highest total salable receipts of all public livestock markets in the world. The dollar value of 1978 salable receipts was more than $320 million.

"During 1978 South St. Paul handled a grand total of 2,567,681 head of livestock. That total includes 754,032 cattle, 85,064 calves, 1,501,522 hogs, 101,550 feeder pigs and 125,513 sheep and lambs," Bennett said. "Our toughest competition came from Sioux City, Iowa in 1978. Their receipts total 2,278,272 head."

Steve Bonfig, director of the livestock market institute in South St. Paul, noted that numbers of livestock moving through all public markets are down this year. "In South St. Paul total livestock marketings were down 5.1 per cent from 1977," he said. Cattle marketed were down 10 per cent, calves marketed dropped 24.5 per cent, hogs marketed remained about the same as in 1977, feeder pigs marketed were up 15 per cent over 1977 and sheep and lambs marketed during 1978 were down 24 per cent from 1977 levels.

"Demand for red meat is expected to be strong in 1979 and we are expecting to market slightly fewer cattle in 1979 than in 1978. This would indicate that prices will tend to rise according to the strength of demand."

Price of live beef reached record levels during the second quarter of 1978. South St. Paul set a local price record of $61.50 per hundred weight for live steers in late May and early June, 1978. Choice steers averaged a little better than $52 per hundred weight for the year.

While hog numbers at South St. Paul were little changed from a year ago a dramatic increase in marketings of feeder pigs was seen in 1978. Because of the large increase in hog production during the second half of 1978, a downward price level for hogs is anticipated in early 1979. Prices should average closer to $50 per hundred weight in the first half of 1979.

It appears that sheep and lamb numbers will be up in 1979 after five years of decline. The drought of 1975-76 caused producers to liquidate breeding stock causing a decline in the area's sheep population.

Livestock producers report that production costs continue to rise. Labor, energy, machinery and building costs all continued their upward trend. That means that in spite of a year of higher prices for livestock, the profitability for American Farmers and livestock producers only kept pace with inflation.

Record corn and soybean crops were harvested in 1978 but record demand for feed grains should help hold grain prices steady or to a slight increase in 1979.

In spite of these adverse economic conditions, as well as the poor weather conditions of a few years ago, the region's farmers continue to provide food and fiber for approximately 50 people per farm worker.

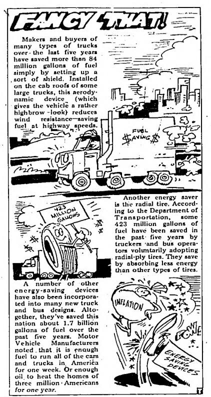
An announcement by Armour and Company earlier in 1978 that it would close its doors in South St. Paul by April of 1979 will have little projected effect on South St. Paul marketing operations. Market observers feel that Armour will keep part of its buying force in South St. Paul to purchase live hogs for shipment to their processing plants.

According to livestock marketing analysts, consumers will see higher beef prices in 1979. Hamburger prices may reach as high as $1.80 per pound. Moderation in the price of hamburger and other red meat cuts is expected late in the fourth quarter of 1979 due to anticipated increased marketing of beef cattle from herds that are beginning to recover from the culling and selling which occurred in the mid 1970's.

Stockyard officials pointed out, however, that even at $1.80 per pound, Minnesota and United States consumers are still getting a bargain at the meat counter. Hamburger is an American phenomenon. While current hamburger prices are approximately $1.19 per pound, prices for boneless roast chuck, which is similar to hamburger and is consumed virtually worldwide, indicate that American consumers are indeed getting a bargain in meat. Bonless roast chuck ranged in price from $2.07 per pound in London to $10.47 per pound in Tokyo, according to November 1, 1978 United States department of agriculture figures.

According to University of Minnesota agricultural economist Ken Egertson, this region should see increased marketings of livestock during 1979. Specifically, Egertson projects area hog marketings to increase seven to 10 per cent. He felt the first half increase would be five to seven per cent with second half marketings up as much as eight to 11 per cent. Egertson points to the expansion phase of the current hog cycle to substantiate the increase in production. Expansion should continue into 1980.

As a result of the rebuilding phase of the cattle cycle, optimistic profit estimates and this area's generally good feed grain and pasture situations, Egertson forsees five to seven per cent more fed cattle available for market in 1979. But, non-fed slaughter will decline enough to pull total slaughter slightly below the 1978 level. Cow slaughter will be significantly lower in 1979.



FANCY THAT!

Makers and buyers of many types of trucks over the last five years have saved more than 84 million gallons of fuel simply by setting up a sort of shield. Installed on the cab roofs of some large trucks, this aerodynamic device (which gives the vehicle a rather highbrow look) reduces wind resistance—saving fuel at highway speeds.

Another energy saver is the radial tire. According to the Department of Transportation, some 423 million gallons of fuel have been saved in the past five years by truckers and bus operators voluntarily adopting radial-ply tires. They save by absorbing less energy than other types of tires.

A number of other energy-saving devices have also been incorporated into many new truck and bus designs. Altogether, they've saved this nation about 1.7 billion gallons of fuel over the past five years. Motor Vehicle Manufacturers noted that it is enough fuel to run all of the cars and trucks in America for one week. Or enough oil to heat the homes of three million Americans for one year.

Angus Official Raps Carter On Policies

An open letter to President Jimmy Carter from C.K. Allen, executive vice president of the American Angus association, contains an expression of deep concern on the part of the leadership of the largest beef cattle registry association in the world, about the administration's handling of beef import legislation, and the message administration actions are sending to cattle producers.

It is affecting the price of beef today, and will have a continuing effect for a number of years, Allen said. His letter follows:

Dear President Carter:

The message your administration is sending to beef cattle producers is being received loud and clear. Unfortunately, I doubt the message they are receiving is the message you think you are transmitting.

I represent 35,322 producers of Angus cattle who are working to increase the production of high quality beef cattle in this country. And they will, if they are allowed to make reasonable profits on their investment, get a return for their labor, and are confident that these reasonable returns will continue for at least a few years. They need this assurance in order to justify investing in long range production expansion.

These American Angus Association members represent more than 106,000 consumers. This is not a lot of people compared to the total population, but agriculture producers consume more products per capita than other segments of the population because they buy goods for production in addition to what they need for day to day loving. Cattle producers therefore are extremely conscious of rising costs and the need to keep inflation under control.

It is for these reasons that I am concerned about the communications gap between you and the cattle producers. I believe that you are trying to encourage beef producers to expand production. But your actions and comments along with those of Secretary Bergland are having the reverse effect.

Livestock producers received no federal subsidy when they were losing their shirts. Many producers in business in 1974 went bankrupt. Others lost their life savings at retirement age, with little chance of ever making it back. Many of the producers that survived did so by increasing their debt load and almost all survivors found other sources of income.

These losses incurred by livestock producers were a subsidy to consumers who enjoyed beef from 1974 through 1977, priced below the cost of production. These low prices helped keep the inflation index down, and made your administration's inflation fight look better than it deserved in 1976 and 1977.

Beef prices in 1978 moved to profitable levels for the first time since 1973. Instead of praising cattlemen for helping keep inflation down in previous years and pointing out to the public that the new higher prices were justified, you and your administration spokesmen started to label beef an inflation leader. And this at a time when beef prices still had not reached the level of a few years earlier.

Administration efforts to expand production should have started in 1976 when cattlemen were still losing money, but nothing was done. The solution to the problem, then as now, was to assure cattlemen that profitable times were just around the corner and could be counted on for some time to come. This would have helped slow herd liquidation and brought about earlier expansion.

To make matters worse, your efforts in 1978 and 1979 are still not doing this. Expansion of beef imports by 200 million pounds in 1978 and an additional increase of 78 million pounds in 1979, has discouraged beef cattle expansion. The same is true for your veto of the beef import bill. These actions say to cattlemen that long term herd expansion may not be profitable. It encourages them to take profits now rather than to retain cows and heifers for breeding and future expansion. To put it briefly your actions have made cattlemen leery of the future.

Cattlemen, agricultural producers and all consumers are waiting for signs that you are going to take a realistic approach to slowing down or stopping inflation. As president of the United States you are in the best position to curb deficit spending and bureaucratic inefficiency.

Putting the blame for much of our inflation on the beef cattle industry will not even slow down inflation's growth. Worse, it will cause cattlemen to hold back on plans for increased production, and will work against your campaign promises of reducing inflation to manageable levels and balancing the federal budget in 1981.

THE FOREST AND YOU

Could America Run Out Of Trees?

This article has been prepared by Georgia-Pacific, the growth company, interested in protecting our natural resources.

This year, every man, woman and child in America will use at least one tree, in the form of lumber and furniture, paper and thousands of other products made from wood and wood fiber.

As there are more than 200 million Americans, the equivalent of over 200 million trees must be harvested for our use, and the demand for wood is expected to double by the year 2020.

Fortunately, despite all the wood we've used over the past hundreds of years, America has nearly 75 percent as much land in forests as it did when Columbus landed. Much of the credit for the preservation and restoration of our timberlands goes to good forest management.

Today we know how to grow trees faster than nature, using superior seedlings and effective fertilizers.

Foresters and scientists are developing superior Douglas fir and Southern pine. To develop superior trees, foresters first find the fastest-growing, healthiest trees in the forest. They then take the tips off a few branches. These are grafted to small trees in seed orchards. The seed cones from the superior orchard trees are then fertilized with pollen from other superior trees, and the resulting seedlings are planted in nurseries. When the seedlings are a few months old, they are hand planted in the forest. The seedlings develop into supertrees, which often grow twice as fast as ordinary trees. Supertrees are more resistant to disease, have higher survival rates and have more usable wood fiber.

As a result of intensive forest management, the development of supertrees and new manufacturing processes, the time cycle between planting and harvesting has been shortened by about half.

Our country has the know-how to keep up with—even keep ahead of—the growing demand for wood. There are hundreds of billions of board feet of standing softwood saw timber in America, with more than half of it owned by the federal government. If these lands are managed as wisely as privately owned lumber lands, America is in no danger of running out of one of its most valuable renewable resources, trees.

A SUPERIOR SORT OF TREE is being grown by America's forestry companies.

THESE TREES are planted and tended carefully to help make sure we have all the wood we need.

Protecting your dollar!

Have you ever been contacted by an enthusiastic man or woman who comes to your door, tells you he or she is taking "a survey" but then tries to sell you a vacuum cleaner, magazines, smoke and heat detectors or some other merchandise or service?

Complaints about dishonest door-to-door sales fall into three main categories — use of deception to get into homes, high pressure sales tactics and misrepresentation of the price and quality.

There are a number of steps you can take to protect yourself from these sales practices.

First, when someone comes to your door, find out what he or she wants to sell you, if anything, before you open the door. A Minnesota law requires door-to-door salespersons to disclose to you immediately who they are and what they are selling. Nevertheless, unscrupulous salespersons may try to force their way into your home by claiming that they are conducting surveys or have free gifts or free demonstrations for you. Very seldom will these salespersons volunteer that they are selling something. Thus, the first rule of thumb should be: Don't let anyone into your home before you ask what he or she is selling.

Second, once a salesperson has entered your home, he or she may begin to use a fast-talking, free-wheeling sales pitch calculated to win you over. Consider and reconsider what the salesperson is selling. Do you really need it? Can you afford it? Are you being pressured to buy without truly evaluating the product and its price? Remember, salespersons are guests in your home. Do not be afraid at any point to say "no" or ask them to leave.

Third, beware of misrepresentations concerning the quality and price of merchandise and services. In some instances, goods and services sold in the home may be inferior to the same types of goods and services sold in stores. A salesperson may deceive you with regard to the savings you will realize by making a purchase at home. To avoid falling victim to misrepresentations, do not buy on the spot. Tell the salesperson that you want to check the price at a few stores. Then go to at least three stores to compare quality and price.

If you decide to make a purchase from a door-to-door salesperson, read every word before you sign a contract. Never rely on a salesperson to interpret or read a contract for you. If you do not understand a provision, do not sign the contract. Wait until you have had time to ask someone else.

In determining whether you can afford merchandise or a service, make sure you calculate what the total price is, including finance chanrges. Interest charges often can double the price.

If after following these rules of thumb, you still fall prey to an unscrupulous salesperson, all hope is not lost. A Minnesota law provides that every consumer may cancel within three business days a contract he or she signs at home for more than $25. This 1973 "cooling off" statute requires that the seller in a door-to-door sale give a buyer:

—Oral notice of his or her right to cancel.

—A written statement giving the buyer notice of the three-day cancellation rights.

—An easily detachable form, in duplicate, that the buyer can use to give notice of cancellation to the seller.

If you have any questions regarding door-to-door selling, contact the Consumer Protection Division, Minnesota Attorney General's Office, 102 State Capitol Building, St. Paul, Minnesota 55155.

Hospital Warns Of Snowmobile Dangers

Would you allow your twelve-year-old child to drive a car or a motorcycle? Probably not. Yet some parents allow young children to operate another powerful and dangerous vehicle — the snowmobile.

Snowmobiling has grown rapidly as a family winter sport in recent years.

Like many hospitals throughout the state, St. Paul Children's hospital has seen an increasing number of children involved in snowmobile accidents that result in painful injuries, long hospital stays and long absences from the school Dr. Paul Kubic, assistant medical director of the clinic at St. Paul Children's hospital also stresses that frostbite is a common and sometimes serious problem.

Doctors and staff have some recommendations for parents of young snowmobilers to make this winter a safer one for your family.

First, consider the law. In Minnesota children under 14 years of age may not operate a snowmobile on public lands or lakes unless accompanied by a parent, gaurdian or person over 18. There is an exception to this law.

Children 12 and 13 may operate a snowmobile alone if they have taken and passed a safety training course and earned their snowmobile certificate through the department of natural resources. This eight-hour safety training course is offered through local park departments as well as the department of natural resources. Call for details.

Minnesota state laws also say that no person under 18 may drive a snowmobile across a state or county road. There is an exception to this law also. Children 14 and older who have earned their snowmobile certificates are permitted to cross these roads. However, no one under 18 may drive on any roads.

Instruct your child never to ride with anyone who has been drinking.

Snowmobileing, like any winter sport, requires careful dressing. To combat wind chills, children should wear windproof, light clothing that allows free movement.

Strong wind chill factor, combined with bitter sub-zero weather, can often cause frostbite in less than an hour, according to Dr. Kubic, and often times, because the affected area is numb, individuals don't even realize they have frostbite.

Frostbite appears most frequently as white spots on exposed ears, nose and cheeks, but often has a deceitful onset, Dr. Kubic says. "You can usually tell it's happened within 24 hours, but the total extent of the injury is not apparent immediately," he said.

However, if frostbite is suspected, Dr. Kubic warns, let it warm normally. Never rub frostbite with snow or place the affected area in hot water because frozen skin tissue may be damaged.

Minor frostbites can be thawed with a warm hand or compress. And if frostbite is extensive, see a doctor as soon as possible.

Doctors also recommend that children wear safety helmets over wool hats to prevent head injury. Loose scarves or clothing can get caught in moving parts—or snagged by branches, they say, so leave them at home.

Operate snowmobiles on designated public property only, unless you have direct permission from private land owners. Some poeple have booby-trapped their property against unwelcome snowmobilers with posts and wires across paths. Caution on your part may prevent an accident.

Even on public lands there are hazards. Tree stumps and fallen trees may not be visible under freshly-fallen snow or unbroken trails.

Tough terrain or uneven snow, taken at high speeds, can overturn the machine.

Snowmobiling is best in below-freezing temperatures when the snow cover is just right. Slushy snow is dangerous and ice is a hazard. Currents from contributary streams and rivers make lake shorelines particularly dangerous if they cut away the underside of ice and are not seen by the snowmobiler.

A snowmobile can carry your child long distances. If the machine fails, it may be too far for your child to walk back to the starting point. If you or your children are planning to go any distance, use the buddy system to make sure that one of you can get back or go for help. And when you leave home, always let someone know where you are going and when you will return. Require this of your children, especially.

Teach your children the dangers of the spring-loaded throttle. A first-pull start with a frozen throttle can send the machine out of control.

For many families, snowmobiling is a pleasurable winter sport. But parents must teach children that it is dangerous as well. Teach your children to respect the power of the machine and the unpredictabilities and dangers of our harsh winter weather so that this winter will be a safe one for you and your children.

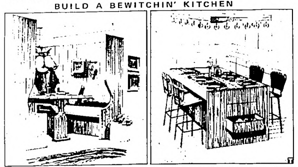
Great Possibilities For Your Home

BUILD A BEWITCHIN' KITCHEN



EASY AND ECONOMICAL WAYS TO SPICE UP YOUR KITCHEN include a convenient cook-and-serve counter and a delightful dining and breakfast nook.

Cook up a great new look for your kitchen — without burning the family budget — with a do-it-yourself project such as a cook-and-serve counter, a dining breakfast nook or a gourmet cooking center.

A cook-and-serve counter is a cozy, modern version of the nostalgic family kitchen. Design one end around a new cooktop, with adjacent room for food preparation. Allow 18 to 24 inches per person for seating. Keep the space under the dining area open for knees. You can construct it two ways: A strong skeleton frame of 2x2 or 2x4 lumber (or a combination of both) covered with attractive, prefinished plywood paneling, or box construction, using one-piece plywood components. For a stain-resistant top that's easy to clean, use a plastic laminate or ceramic tile. Either way, choose a sturdy material like 3/4-inch particleboard or exterior-grade plywood for the substrate.

The neat little breakfast nook of the past is still handy for all-purpose dining today. Build one in a corner, or create a cafe-style booth. Start with a rectangular table three feet wide and allow at least 18 to 24 inches per person. Use a prefinished interior paneling for a warm decorative accent. Make the table top functional and practical by covering 3/4-inch particleboard or plywood with plastic laminate or a smooth tile. The benches should be 17 or 18 inches high, about 16 inches deep. Make covers of foam rubber and sheet plastic if you wish, but allow for the upholstery thickness when you plan the wood structure. Any screen wall you erect will not be a bearing wall, so the frame can be 2x2 or 2x3 lumber. Either material will support a handsome 1/4-inch prefinished paneling. Choose a rich, real hardwood paneling or a bright pastel-toned paneling like those available from Georgia-Pacific for the finishing touch.

The chef's center should be a practical and pleasant workshop. You can remodel a cooking area that's against a wall, add a superstructure to an existing island or make it brand new, cheerful and planned so all tools are easily accessible. Think of the job, basically, as heavy corner posts (4x4) of redwood or cedar that support a 2x3 or 2x4 framework you cover with materials of your choice. Prefinished interior paneling or smooth 1/4-inch hardboard panels you can paint are possibilities, as is exterior plywood siding in redwood, fir, cedar or pine. Design a sturdy, easy-to-maintain top made of butcherblock plastic laminate on a core of 1 1/8-inch plywood for a durable work surface.

New Skills Are Needed In Front Drive Autos

Persons driving a front-drive car for the first time this winter will have to learn new skills for handling skids on slippery roads, said commissioner Ed Novak of the Minnesota department of public safety.

To pull a front-drive car out of a skid, experts recommend stepping lightly on the accelerator, while steering in the direction of the skid.

"This contrasts with the traditional advice — to immediately let off on the gas and steer in the direction of the skid — which is still the best reaction in rear-wheel drive cars," Novak said.

"However, in a skidding front-drive car, letting up on the gas is dangerous and can turn the skid into a spin-out."

Never slam on the brakes, no matter what the vehicle, because this locks up the front wheels and causes loss of steering control you need to recover from the skid, advised Novak.

With any vehicle skid, the main idea is to keep the rear end from outrunning the front end. To overcome a skid, you must either slow down the rear wheels somewhat or speed up the front wheels, he said.

"In a conventional rear-wheel drive auto, when you ease off the gas, the engine acts as a brake to slow the rear wheels slightly. This slows the rear end slide and gives the front end time to catch up and, combined with proper steering, will get the car going straight again.

"To get the same effect with the front-wheel drive cars, you have to make the engine pull harder on the front wheels. By stepping lightly on the gas, you increase front-wheel speed so the front end can catch up with the sliding rear end and straighten out the skid."

Actually, in a front-wheel drive car with automatic transmission, the quickest way to correct a skid is to shift into neutral and steer with the skid. said Novak.

"However, many safety experts hesitate to recommend shifting into neutral because some drivers might panic in a skid and accidentally shift past neutral into reverse, which could be disastrous," he said.

Among the growing number of front-wheel drive cars are General Motors' Eldorado and Toronado, Honda, Volkswagen, Audi, Saab, the Fiat 128, Autstin, Cooper, Subaru, Citroen, Ford Fiesta and Chrysler corporation's Omni and Horizon.

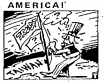
WASHINGTON EVENTS AFFECTING OUR COMMUNITY

SPEAK UP, AMERICA!



HAVE WE BETRAYED A TRUST on Taiwan?

President Carter's surprise announcement about China and Taiwan has shocked and outraged millions of Americans. Without consulting the Senate, he decided to withdraw diplomatic recognition from a long time friend and faithful ally, the Republic of China on Taiwan, and conferred upon the Communist Peoples' Republic the title of "the sole legal government of China." For the first time in our history, the United States has abrogated a treaty—the U.S.-Taiwan Mutual Defense Treaty of 1954—because the Peoples' Republic demanded it as their price for accepting diplomatic recognition from the United States. They demanded, and we gave in. Is this America?

To rank and file citizens across the land, this breaking of our word of honor brings the instant reaction of shame. To most of us it is our American birthright to know that this is a strong country, a freedom-loving and freedom-promoting country, a country which stands by its friends. We don't have to be foreign affairs experts to know that this announcement of Carter not only strikes a violent blow at Taiwan. It strikes a violent blow at those birthright ideals. This announcement makes America look bad because it is bad. For us to withdraw from the mutual defence treaty is virtually setting up the 17 million Chinese on Taiwan for a Communist grab.

This is betrayal of a friend. It is betrayal of our own best interests. It is also betrayal of the democratic process.

Under the Constitution, the President, on treaty matters, is to seek the advice and consent of the Senate. In July of this year, to remind the President of this provision, the Senate passed 94-0 an amendment to the Foreign Military Assistance Act of 1978 specifically concerning the United States-Taiwan Mutual Defense Treaty. Sponsored by Senator Robert Dole (Rep.-Kansas) and Senator Richard Stone (Dem.-Florida), the amendment states that it is the sense of the Senate that there shall be "prior consultation" by the President with the Senate before any proposed policy change affects the treaty.

Instead, without consultation and after Congress adjourned for the holidays, Carter made his announcement. What happened to government of the people?

In addition to the action of the United States Senate, the legislatures of thirty-two states and two territories and the councils of several dozen American cities have passed resolutions in support of Taiwan. It is clear that millions of Americans agree with Senator Stone that the island nation is "one of the strongest and most reliable allies of the United States—a constant friend."

A constant friend—there are basic questions here for all of us, tied closely to that phrase and all it means. Questions like: Can America afford a policy that incorporates backing down, breaking its word, and leaving its friends in the lurch? With such a policy, how will our country look to the world? Who will trust us or want us for a friend? Can we afford to pass on to our children a country with a sell-out reputation? Don't we and don't they deserve the right to be proud of being American—with all that once meant? The land of the free and the home of the brave. Freedom not just for us, but for everyone who seeks it. Like for the 17 million Chinese on Taiwan who have never lived one day under communism.

The answer is that we do deserve this America if we demand it. And we can demand it. We can write President Carter and tell him that we do not approve of his breaking the mutual defense treaty and insist that he take immediate steps to ensure the freedom of Taiwan. And we can write our Congressmen and Senators and urge them to vote strong measures to guarantee the security of this long time friend. Taiwan needs these measures, and we need them to prove America is the country we want to live in and to hand on: the America which stands by her friends and by government of the people.

So get out the postcards. Speak up, America! It's your birthright

VA Administrator Reviews Programs

More emphasis on priority medical care for service-disabled veterans, an improved pension plan for low-income disabled veterans; and an improved home loan program — these were some of the highlights of 1978 veterans benefits, according to veterans administration chief Max Cleland.

"Congressional action went far to make 1978 a banner year for veterans," Cleland said. In the closing weeks of the 95th Congress, legislation was enacted improving the VA pension program for veterans and their survivors.

Beginning January 1, 1979, this legislation sharply increases payments to needy veterans with nonservice-connected disabilities, and their survivors, from the present sub-poverty level to variable payments supporting income levels of as much as $6,781 a year for a veteran and his wife, plus $600 a year for each child. At the same time the act calls for eventual savings by limiting pension payments to the truly needy, he said.

Other legislation provided a 7.3 per cent increase in VA compensation payments for more than two-and-a-quarter million veterans, a quarter of a million surviving spouses and 92,000 children of deceased veterans. The year also saw:

+A special $900 monthly allowance to allow certain seriously disabled veterans to employ a skilled health care practitioner whose aid and attendance in the home is necessary to keep the veteran out of the hospital;

+A special monthly payment of $175 for veterans who suffered a service-connected loss of one extremity or its use, and who have subsequently lost the paired extremity from nonservice-connected causes;

+A new payment of $45 monthly for surviving spouses receiving disability and indemnity compensation benefits and who are so disabled as to be confined to their homes;

+A broadening of the eligibility base for allowances to dependents of veterans with service-connected disabilities. Allowance will be paid to veterans with 30 per cent or more disability. It formerly went only to veterans who had 50 per cent or more disability.

GI bill continued to be a major attraction among VA's varied benefit programs. More than 1.6 million veterans, their dependents and active duty servicemen and women pursued a variety of educational goals under the program. In Fiscal Year 1978, VA spent $3.2 billion on education benefits under what has easily been one of the most popular programs ever conceived by the federal government.

In another area, VA opened two new national cemeteries during 1978 with the dedication of Calverton national cemetery on Long Island, N.Y., and Riverside national cemetery in California. Two new cemeteries are the first in a VA program to expand the National Cemetery System, which currently consists of 105 cemeteries across the nation. Agency has already acquired land in Massachusetts, Pensylvania and Virginia for additional cemeteries, and is considering sites in the Great Lakes and southeastern areas for two more.

During 1978, VA took the first steps to computerize the agency's files on veterans. Regional offices in 13 cities were linked via a computer system called Target with data processing centers in Illinois and Texas. In 1979, VA hopes to place the remaining 46 regional offices into the computer network, which now contains about five million compensation and pension records and an index and locator file on approximately 30 million veterans. Full computer processing of benefit claims is expected by the end of next year.

Cleland said he was particularly proud of the agency's special project to provide distinctive personal identification cards to more than two million service-disabled veterans. "Veterans disabled in military service are of prime concern to VA," he said. "These special ID cards will expedite the care they receive at VA medical centers and will serve as a constant reminder to our employees as well as to veterans themselves that they are special people entitled to special care from their government."

VA and the Congress also cooperated in 1978 to provide more assistance to veterans in the area of home ownership. VA guarantee on home loans was increased to $25,000 from $17,500 and the active duty time needed by Vietnam-era veterans to qualify for VA home loan benefits was reduced to 90 days from 181 days. Also, Cleland pointed out, VA is now permitted to guarantee loans on apartments converted to condominiums, where previously the agency could only guarantee loans on condominium units that were built as such.

VA administrator also cited the agency's "Operation Better Letters" and "May I Help You?" campaigns as examples of internal efforts at improving employee awareness of the unique role veterans and their dependents hold in the nation. Both projects involved major efforts to stimulate employee helpfulness and courtesy in dealing with veterans and their families and Cleland termed both of them as "outstanding successes."

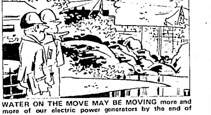
A Dam Shame?



WATER ON THE MOVE MAY BE MOVING more and more of our electric power generators by the end of the century.

There are more than 60,000 dams in the U.S., many of which may have the potential for hydroelectric development, according to a U.S. Corps of Engineers study. And some energy experts feel it's a shame that more of this potential dam power is not being used.

Hydropower has been around for nearly 100 years. What is new is the revival of interest in it, including the potential for generating substantial amounts of electrical energy from "small dam" sites — that is, from sites having a power potential of 15 MW or less. Rivers, irrigation or water supply canals and tidal basins are all potential sources of small hydropower generation.

It is estimated that we have an undeveloped potential of about 200,000 megawatts in the country today. A portion of this resource may be economically developed. In many instances, hydropower can compete right now with power from increasingly expensive fossil-fueled and nuclear power plants.

A U.S. Department of Energy (DOE) goal is to increase hydropower an additional 1500 megawatts by approximately 1985, an additional 20,000 megawatts by the year 2000, and an additional 50,000 by 2020.

Under a Department of Energy contract, EG&G Idaho, largest division of EG&G, Inc., is providing technical and engineering support in various projects for the development of small hydropower generation.

The technology for small hydroelectric plants is well-established and advantageous for a number of reasons. Small hydro plants are nonpolluting and dependent on renewable resources. Their facilities can be made attractive in the natural environment, and their effects on the natural stream ecology can be minor compared with those of large, high-head hydroelectric facilities. Lead time from inception to on-line production can be relatively short. And fuel costs for electricity generation are essentially zero — since naturally running water is the "fuel."

The major expense of small hydro development is the initial capital investment, including structure and generating machinery costs. Once the plant is completed, operating and maintenance budgets can be low, and the plant is relatively free from the impact of inflation.

Since 1977, personnel from EG&G Idaho have evaluated hundreds of ideas and proposals for development of this alternative energy source for DOE. DOE has awarded 54 contracts for engineering feasibility evaluations of existing dams throughout the U.S.

About 35 percent of the contracts are in New England, where there are thousands of existing dams and where there is strong interest in revitalizing hydropower to help offset heavy consumption of expensive Mideast oil and to retain industry.

MCCFA Favors Carter's Price Guidelines

Minnesota community college faculty association (MCCFA) recently announced its support of the Carter wage and price guidelines and reported on a favorable salary increase ruling it has obtained from the president's council on wage and price stability.

MCCFA, which represents some 1,100 faculty in the 18-campus community college system, is affiliated with the Minnesota education association (MEA).

"We believe that inflation must be reduced and controlled," asserted MCCFA president James Durham. "We support the President's guidelines and have reduced our salary proposal — voluntarily — for the 1979-81 contract to conform to the seven per cent limits."

Durham reported on a ruling by the council on wage and price stability, which agrees with MCCFA that the recovery of unfunded wages or wage increases that were included in the provisions of the last two arbitration awards "are exempted from the voluntary pay standards" and should not be charged against the seven per cent pay-rate ceiling.

Durham went to the executive offices of the White House Wednesday to seek the ruling.

"We strongly believe that salary increases have been taken from us — both illegally and unfairly — by the failure of the Legislature to honor our last two arbitration awards, which the law says are final and binding upon the parties," Durham explained. "We also believe that the public agrees with us.

"Therefore, those lost pay-rate increases must be recovered before the next two years can be considered. It is gratifying to know that the council on wage and price stability agrees with us that such recovery will not violate the voluntary pay standards."

Durham said that it is a risk to support the seven per cent pay-rate guidelines, adding, "but, we also recognize that inflation is killing us. We have experienced substantial losses in real income over the past several years because our salaries have not kept up with the inflation rate.

"If inflation were stopped," Durham concluded, "at least we would not lose ground every year. That is why we are willing to take the risk in voluntarily supporting the guidelines in our negotiations."

MEA president Donald C. Hill commented on the favorable ruling:

"We have been very disturbed by the Legislature's rejection of two valid arbitration awards on wages for the community college faculty and have been advocating the need for the state to restore integrity to the negotiations process for state employees.

"We believe that now is the time for the state to make restitution for the Legislature's cuts of the arbitration awards to community college faculty — and we are pleased that the council on wage and price stability has ruled in support of our position with respect to the guidelines."

MCCFA has been in negotiations with the state of Minnesota since May and in mediation since mid-October.

Toll-free telephone service is available to Veterans Administration regional offices in all 50 states. Some 3.9 million toll-free calls were received last year from veterans, their dependents and survivors.

ENVIRONMENTAL CONTROLS — A TIME FOR REVIEW

By Dr. M. V. Anthony
Retired Vice President - Environmental Affairs
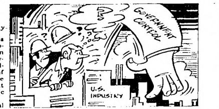
Stauffer Chemical Company



Environmental problems are a natural result of economic and population growth. The problems, however, must be handled intelligently by all concerned if human health and welfare are to be protected without inviting social and economic disaster.

Serious environmental mistakes have been made by industry, government, and the public.

Industry invited strong public reaction to environmental problems because in the past it did not adequately control air and water pollution, solid waste disposal and work area hazards. This lack of control was due partly to lack of technical know-how, and partly to management insensitivity to the scope of environmental problems. Public opinion about pollution problems was inflamed by many articulate, well-meaning but misinformed people, by politicians who recognized the environment as a motherhood-type issue, and by opportunists who took advantage of a national concern to profit personally.

The predictable result of a public outraged by industrial pollution was corrective legislation. However, public concern progressed to overreaction, which in turn led to the many excessively strict laws and regulations now in effect.

Reasonable people will agree that contaminants in the air, water, and in work areas must be held to levels that will not injure the health of people or damage their property. The problem is one of agreement on the margin of safety to be provided.

This problem is complicated by the need to reconcile such diverse factors as risk to health and property, risk of keeping industry, competitive (i.e., protecting jobs), and risk of being able to provide the material things of life associated with a high standard of living.

The analogy of providing safety in automobiles will illustrate the point. The thousands of deaths and injuries resulting annually from automobile accidents could be reduced to nearly zero if maximum speed was limited to one mile per hour. However, society is willing to assume the risk of injury, or even death, in order to enjoy the advantages of increased speed.

We are at the one-mile-per-hour-limit state in environmental controls.

The national primary ambient air quality standard on sulfur dioxide, for example, is an arithmetic average of 0.03 parts per million (ppm). At the same time, the U.S. Government and industry hygenists allow 167 times more, or 5.0 ppm as a safe limit for workers exposed eight hours per day, five days per week, for an indefinite time. To limit the entire country to 0.03 ppm, with no industrial zone exceptions, seems ridiculously strict.

Our water pollution control policy is equally unrealistic. The national goal of the 1972 amendments to the Federal Water Pollution Control Act is that "the discharge of pollutants into the navigable waters to be eliminated by 1985." Total pollution elimination without respect to the character of the pollutants involved, the characteristics of the receiving waters, and the cost to consumers represents irresponsible legislation at its worst.

Some of our national problems also have been greatly magnified by excessive environmental control requirements. One example: Many large American power plants which formerly used domestic coals available in abundant supply have been forced to convert to oil or gas to meet the stringent sulfur dioxide and particulate standards for pollution control. Not only are tremendous quantities of additional foreign oil and gas required to replace the domestic coal no longer acceptable, but further substantial quantities of oil and gas have been required to manufacture and operate the pollution control equipment necessary to meet the overly strict environmental standards.

Still another impact: The ability of important American products such as steel to compete in world markets has been decidedly hampered by excessive environmental regulations. Additionally, added capital and operational costs for environmental controls are making it increasingly difficult for industries such as chemical and paper to compete with factories located in countries with more realistic standards.

The point should be clear: The question is not control, but how much control.

Most if not all of the pollution limitations applied today to American industry are based primarily upon health considerations. Factors related to such things as economics — including jobs and inflation — standard of living, and national well-being, all of which were largely ignored in the standard setting process, must now be given due consideration. Failure to do so can only make worse the economic and subsequent human problems we see growing in our country today.

Brad Davis as American college student Billy Hayes is arrested at the Istanbul airport — charged with trying to smuggle a small quantity of hashish out of the country — in this moment from "Midnight Express." Opens Wed., Jan. 24 at the Galaxy Twin Theatre.

Air Guard, Reservist Airmen . . .

Prove Ability In Canal Zone Airlift

HOWARD AFB, Canal Zone — When the Air National Guard and the Air Force Reserve took over the "Canal Zone Rotation" C-130 airlift mission from the regular Air Force a year ago, there was doubt about whether the "citizen airmen" could hack it.

"Frankly, I was skeptical and apprehensive," declared General Robert B. Tanguy, commander of the U. S. Air Force Southern Air Division and deputy commander in chief, U. S. Southern Command.

But seeing is believing, and after a year of observing the on-time performance of the reservists flying their Hercules throughout central and South America, the general is well pleased.

"Their performance has been fantastic," General Tanguy said. "I couldn't believe how well they put down their plows and real estate books and took up the regular missions in a strange territory for just two-week periods. An active duty guy like me can't believe it without seeing it."

Captain John Moscatelli, the USAF information director here, echoed the general's assessment, noting that the part-time flyers and their rugged Lockheed C-130s have performed extremely well in carrying out wide ranging airlift, air rescue, medical evacuation and training flights. "They've got an on-time record down here that's super," Captain Moscatelli said.

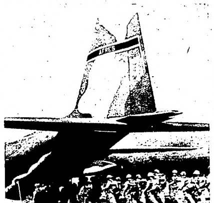
The performance has been all the more remarkable in view of the fact that the reservists were flying older model C-130B transports. Air lift modernization with the Reserve and Guard will begin this year with the introduction of the advanced C-130H Hercules into their inventories, starting with the Oklahoma Air National Guard.

The Hercules-flying reservists and Air Guardsmen flying the Canal Zone mission come from the heartland of America . . . from such cities as Kansas City, San Antonio, Minneapolis, Nashville, Charlotte, Savannah, Milwaukee, Memphis, and Chicago.

Major objective of the rotation is to sharpen the airlift training and experience of the citizen airmen. In addition they carry out vital search and rescue missions throughout central and South America, evacuate injured people and support military training exercises in the Canal Zone.

Another major role is aiding neighboring nations hit by natural disasters, particularly earthquakes and hurricanes.

Six C-130s remain on duty at Howard AFB, along with seven complete air crews. In 1979, the Reserve has the Canal Zone C-130 duty from January through June. The Guard will take over July through December.



YOUR GUARD IS AWAKE—The "AFRES" logo stands out prominently on this Air Force Reserve Lockheed C-130 as it takes aboard paratroopers for a training mission in the Canal Zone. (Air Force photo)

POTENTIAL CONCERN among social services personnel and stores authorized to redeem food stamps lies in a change in regulations which went into effect within the last couple of months. Under the new regulations, store personnel are to issue cash for change less than one dollar. With this change, it is possible for a food stamp recipient to make a token purchase of an eligible item and receive change which can be spent for ineligible items. Among ineligible items are alcohol, tobacco, paper products or soaps and restaurant-type meals. Store owners queried by the Times stated that the obvious use of change for ineligible items has not been a problem and that they didn't expect it would be in this community.

Downtown Traffic Flow Alternatives Considered

A crowd of approximately 60 persons turned out for an informal traffic flow meeting held in the Thief River Falls city auditorium Thursday evening, January 25. Minnesota department of transportation (MN-DOT) officials present at the meeting included district engineer Bob Wolfe of Bemidji; Neil Bryant, district traffic engineer; Cliff Larson, resident MN-DOT engineer; and Jerome Dokken, signal designer.

Also in attendance were city engineer Doug Stewart, county engineer Arvid Olson, Mayor Bob Carlson and representatives from the Pennington county board, Thief River Falls city council, planning commission and downtown development committee. Topics for the evening included alternatives for easing traffic congestion on downtown streets, upcoming signalization project, widening of First street and the First street bridge, highway projects in this area, unlikelyhood of a highway 59 bypass, possibility of establishing a truck route and the parking problems in downtown Thief River Falls.

Bob Wolfe explained that bids for the signalization project will be let in October with hardware to be assembled during the winter months and work to start in the spring of 1980. The project involves the replacement of signals at First and Main, Third and Main and Third and LaBree and the installation of signals at First and Horace, First and Pennington, First and LaBree, Second and Main and Third and Atlantic. Signals which qualify for partial funding by the state and federal government are those on a trunk highway: First and Main, Second and Main, Third and Main, Third and LaBree and Third and Atlantic. For the remainder of the signals the cost is being borne solely by the city and county.

Cost of the entire signalization project, as quoted in the December 20 issue of the Times, is expected to total approximately $400,000. Of this amount, the federal contribution will be $180,000; the state, $42,000; county, $93,500 and the city, $84,500. Of the city share, approximately $70,000 will come from municipal state aid program funds and the remaining $14,500 from the city budget.

Signals to be installed will have a master controller

Mayor Makes Various City Appointments

Committee appointments for Thief River Falls city council members and appointments of citizens to various boards and commissions were made by Mayor Bob Carlson at the January 9 and 23 meetings of the council. These appointments are being published so that citizens will know who to contact with any problems or questions.

Council committee appointments remain the same as for 1978 with Mayor Carlson, chairman, and alderman Ole Engelstad and Don Goodrich serving on the airport committee; aldermen Ambrose Wysoski, chairman, and Clayton Restad comprising the labor committee; aldermen Bill Penning, chairman, and Milan Borsheim making up the health and sanitation committee; and the buildings committee having aldermen Borsheim, chairman, and Penning as members. License and insurance committee is chaired by alderman Engelstad with Goodrich also on the committee. Street committee members include Restad, chairman; Wysoski and Borsheim. The liquor committee is also chaired by Restad with members being Carlson and Borsheim.

Members of the tax and assessment committee include Milton Reierson, chairman; Wysoski and Goodrich; while the finance committee is made up of Wysoski, chairman; Carlson and Goodridge. Chairing the park and recreation committee is alderman Goodrich with Penning as second member of the committee. Four councilmen serve on the utilities committee including Carlson, chairman; Engelstad, Restad and Borsheim. Both the police and the fire department committees are chaired by Carlson with Engelstad serving as the second member on the fire department committee and Reierson as second member on the police committee.

Other recent actions of the mayor include appointment of Paul Ihle to serve the unexpired term of Roger Worth on the housing and redevelopment authority. Worth resigned from the committee because he has accepted employment in another city. Reappointed by the mayor to three-year terms on the police civil service commission were Dr. Orion Beich and Orin Green; with Dale Wennberg and Irvin Wilson reappointed to three-year terms on the park and recreation board.

On the planning commission Don Barron and Jerry Wedul were reappointed for three-year terms and Bob Lund was reappointed for another five-year term on the Greenwood cemetery commission. Melvine Dagg and Orin Green were both reappointed to three-year terms on the Northwest Regional Library board.

Penn also stated about $24,000,000 or 16 per cent of total sales for the nine months were in the marine industry, up from $11,000,000 or 12 per cent for the same period last year.

Penn stated further that 1979 model snowmobile production had been completed in December and that production of 1980 models has started.

Food Stamp Changes To Affect County Program

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

While food stamps add more than $100,000 to the food budgets of Pennington county residents each year, welfare department officials at the county social services department estimate that there are twice as many people eligible as apply for the food coupons.

"I am sure that most of them are well aware of their eligibility," states Gary Erickson, county social services director. "But for pride or whatever other reasons they choose not to participate. With new rules which went into effect December 1 and will be coming on March 1, the number of participants in the program is expected to increase."

There are a number of changes in the program, but two of the changes being watched with interest are the elimination of purchase requirement and the switch back to having stores issue cash instead of credit slips or tokens for change in less than one dollar amounts.

Under the program as it operated previously, food stamp users were required to purchase the food stamps they received, getting a bonus number of stamps over the amount they paid. A family with a particular income and specified number of dependents might, as an example, pay $80 for food stamps which could be used to purchase $200 worth of food items. Under the new program, the family would pay nothing but receive the equivalent of $120 in food stamps.

FOOD STAMP PROGRAM in Pennington county is handled by Joyce Sveningson, an employee of the county social services department for the past 20 months. She began her duties with the department as a clerk-typist and took over the food stamps program in August.

The change was made at the insistence of welfare rights groups and a number of legislators who believed that food stamp recipients should have more freedom in the use of their money. And although the benefits were actually increased somewhat under the new program to allow for inflation, there was heavy criticism right after the purchase requirement was eliminated that families would be hungry at Christmas time. The fear was that they would use the money otherwise required to purchase food stamps for other uses, and use only the food stamps they received for food purchase.

"This situation is possible, of course," admits Joyce Sveningson, who has the classification of Financial Worker I and handles the food stamp program for Pennington county. "But families certainly can use other money for food. They are not restricted to food stamp use only."

Under early food stamp programs, stores issued cash for change less than one dollar when food stamps were used for food purchases. Amounts over one dollar were refunded in food stamps. For several years that cash provision was changed and stores issued credit slips or tokens as change. With the new program now in effect, cash is again given as change. It is possible under this system for someone to make a minimal food purchase with a food stamp and use the change to purchase ineligible items. Local grocery store owners with whom we talked did not expect much of that type of activity, however.

Jorgenson Elected Lions District 5M-11 Governor

Ellsworth Jorgenson of Thief River Falls was elected governor of Lions District 5M-11 at the mid-winter convention of the district held Friday through Sunday in Thief River Falls. It was the first convention of the district, formed in 1978 when larger districts were divided at a convention in Detroit Lakes.

Clubs in Jorgenson's jurisdiction will include those located in Clay, Norman, Mahnomen, Clearwater, Polk, Red Lake, Pennington, Marshall, Roseau and Kittson counties. He will be installed as district governor at the Lions International convention to be held June 20-23 in Montreal, Canada. The international organization has chapters in 149 countries in the free world.

Largest attendance during the convention was 279 at the banquet held Saturday evening at the Best Western Inn. Main speaker for the banquet was Ralph Helm, Lions International director.

One of the talks during the day which seemed to draw the most interest was given by Dick Fischer of Leader Dog, who explained the training of guide dogs for the blind. Fischer showed his own dog "Caesar", a golden Labrador, as an example of guide dogs and noted that Labradors are now used as about a third of the dogs trained for guiding the blind. Lion's clubs are active in sight conservation and restoration programs.

District 5M-11 governor Stan Habedank of Twin Valley presided at convention business sessions. East Grand Forks was successful in its bid to host the 1981 district convention. Crookston had previously been selected as host for the 1980 event.

Much of the convention activity revolved around presentation of reports by various committees. The new constitution for the district, prepared by the constitution committee under the chairmanship of Ellsworth Jorgenson, was adopted without change.

GIRL SCOUT ACTIVITIES

Girl scouts and their leaders in the Thief River Falls and St. Hilaire areas report success in recent fund raising projects. Sales of traditional girl scout calendars and a new product, girl scout pocket planners, have been completed. A pilot project, sale of Christmas wreaths, was also concluded during December. Profits from these money raisers have been sufficient to provide for the purchase of three much needed tents for Camp M.O.E. and some pieces of smaller equipment. Plans are already being made for use of the tents and equipment at a spring camp-out in May for girl scouts from the Thief River Falls association.

Support from parents and friends of girl scouting in the community made these fund raisers successful and girl scouts and leaders join in offering a thank you for this support.

State Ninth In Tax Collections

Minnesota ranks ninth highest in the nation in total state and local tax collections in fiscal year 1977, according to a release by the Minnesota Taxpayers association.

This new position is an improvement over Minnesota's status of eighth highest in 1976. The drop is attributable to New Jersey's enactment of an income tax. The increase in New Jersey's revenue was enough to move Minnesota to a "more favorable" position.

The figures, based on U.S. department of commerce data, show Minnesota with a per capita tax burden of $906 in 1977, compared to $823 in 1976. This $83 or 10 per cent per person tax increase compares with an $82 or 11 per cent average increase witnessed in other states.

The state-by-state tax burden figures were included in a brochure sent to the MTA's members this week. The brochure breaks down the tax burden according to type of tax both on a per capita basis and per $1,000 of personal income and includes data on total state and local expenditures.

In individual areas of taxation Minnesota's ranking dropped in individual income and sales tax collections. According to Don Paterick, executive director of the association, "Although Minnesota's income tax per capita increased 12 per cent, Wisconsin's 18 per cent increase moved Minnesota from 4th to 5th highest. The State's $241 per capita compares with a national average of $135. Based on collections per $1,000 of personal income, Minnesota's ranking of second highest in 1976 dropped to fourth in 1977. Individual income tax collections represent $39.03 for every $1,000 of personal income earned in Minnesota in 1977.

Per capita sales tax collections placed the state thirty-eighth highest in 1977 compared to 36th in 1976. Based on per $1,000 of personal income, Minnesota moved from 35th to 36th. The state's per capita amount of $117.40 compares with a national average of $146.66.

Total corporate income tax collections were up 31 per cent in Minnesota in 1979. Total National collections were also up a substantial 26 per cent, which held Minnesota in sixth highest place on a per capita basis but moved the state from sixth to third highest based on collections per $1,000 of personal income. Minnesota's per capita of $64.93 compares with a national average of $46.31.

Although Minnesota remains below the national average in property tax collections, the state moved from 24th highest to 23rd on a per capita basis and remained 22nd highest based on collections per $1,000 of personal income. Minnesota's per capita amount of $271.02 compares with a national average of $289.07. "It should be noted," Paterick stated, "that the 1977 legislature enacted substantial property tax relief measures for Minnesotans. These reductions are not yet reflected in the commerce data. Circuit breaker credits are not reflected, which would affect Minnesota's ranking."

Per capita spending by state and local governments in Minnesota increased by seven per cent, or 198 per person, reaching $1,459.92 in 1977. This places the state eighth highest in "expenditures" and $198 per capita above the national average. Although education expenditures account for a significant 37 per cent or $545 per capita; the percentage share, amount and Minnesota's ranking all dropped in 1977. In 1976, education's per capita was $549 and represented 40 per cent of total spending. The state's educational ranking was sixth highest in 1976 compared to 13th in 1977.

With the exceptions of parks and recreation and sanitation, which all showed a slight decrease, all other categories of expenditures increased in 1977. Minnesota is above the U.S average in per capita spending in all areas except police, fire and sanitation.

Beef Cow-Calf Day Speakers Review Ideas

Paul Holmen, West Polk county agent, presided over the annula beef cow-calf day program held at the Northwest experiment station at Crookston Wednesday.

Speakers for the program were Dr. J. Meiske, U of M animal scientist, St. Paul; Dr. D.L. Haggard, veterinarian, University of Minnesota, St. Paul; and Dr. Ray Arthaud, animal science department, St. Paul.

Dr. Meiske spoke on the dollars and cents relationship of beef calves which are brought to weaning weight by good management. Through a series of charts and graphs Meiske showed that although better breeding genetics may bring about a calf that can grow faster, this benefit can be easily lost if poor management results in fewer calves being born and saved. Meiske illustrated the nature of savings and benefits which might accure to the livestock producer depending on the cost of his production cows on an annual basis.

Dr. Ray Arthaud spoke several times during the day's events. He reviewed the broad scope of breeding types and genetic crosses possible for the cow-calf business. Arthaud suggested various trends if the producer is able to proceed with artificial insemination guidelines and also showed more simple management crosses for cattlemen who desire to keep bulls over a period of one or two years in their own operation.

Dr. Haggard from the University of Minnesota veterinary science department gave a rather complete step by step review of the calving operation. His pictures and slides portrayed normal calf birth and presentations as well as some of the problems ehich cattlemen might be involved with in special circumstances. Haggard's final presentations of the day involved vaccinations required for cow-calf health, causing of calf scours, problems with viruses and enterotoxemia.

The specialists fielded questions on a wide variety of cow-calf health and management problems during the last half hour of the session.

Blood Pressure Testing Offered In Nurse Office

To serve a larger population group and encourage young adults to have their blood pressure checked, blood pressure clinics will be offered on the first and third Wednesday of each month at the nurse's office in the Pennington county courthouse in Thief River Falls.

Donation of $1 will be accepted for the service and people of any age may have their blood pressure checked, according to nursing service personnel. First clinic under the new schedule will be on Wednesday, February 7, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Nursing service personnel said the clinics will enable the nursing service to increase public knowledge and awareness of risk factors related to blood pressure. Early detection leads to correction and provides the nursing service with an opportunity to provide guidance for healthy living.

The twice-monthly clinics at the nursing service office will be offered in addition to present blood pressure testing done at senior citizen centers and nursing homes and public clinics throughout the country.

Drunk Driving Convictions Rise Sharply

Number of convictions on drunk driving charges in Minnesota increased more than 37 per cent from 1977 to 1978, according to recent figures released by the Minnesota department of public safety.

Kenneth Dirkzwager, director of the department's driver and vehicle service division, reported the rise from 17,741 convictions in 1977 to 24,359 in 1978.

He said the increase "most likely is due to public officials making fuller use of tougher drunk driving laws.

"The total system of law enforcement and the courts has become more effective," Dirkzwager said. "The system is operating better now than it ever has."

Drunk driving laws were tightened late in 1976 to allow license revocation for drivers whose blood alcohol concentration tested at .10 or higher. For the first time, revocation could take place without a conviction for driving under the influence.

Law was amended again in 1978 to allow law enforcement officers and judges to act as agents of the department of public safety and to take away licenses from drivers testing at or above the .10 limit.

Dirkzwager pointed out that some enforcement officers and judges "are just now beginning to use the amended laws to their full extent."

In 1975, there were 14,251 convictions of drunk drivers — 24 per cent less than in 1977 and 71 per cent less than in 1978.

Dirkzwager said that the law, as it now stands, "makes it more difficult for a driver to avoid conviction for DWI."

Director said he would hesitate to say whether or not there are more drunk drivers on the roads now than there were in previous years. But, he said "solid figures show a strong correlation between fatal crashes and drinking drivers.

Latest figures, covering January through November 1978, reveal that of drivers killed in Minnesota traffic crashes and tested for blood alcohol concentration, more than 64 per cent had been drinking.

Figures also show that more than 52 per cent of dead drivers tested were legally intoxicated (at .10 or higher) at the time of the fatal crash.

Staley Resigns As National NFO President

Resignation of Oren Lee Staley as president of the National Farmers organization (NFO) was announced last week and vice president Devon Woodland has succeeded him in office, according to word received by Pennington county NFO officials.

Information on the resignation and future plans for the organization will be presented at an area meeting to be held Thursday at 1 p.m. at the basement meeting room of the Rex cafe in Thief River Falls. All of Minnesota's national directors are expected to attend the session which is intended for all NFO members from Polk county north to the Canadian border.

During his tenure as the only national president of the organization since its founding, Staley appeared in Thief River Falls twice. He is pictured above speaking to an area meeting at St. Bernard's hall in Thief River Falls.

FmHA Transfer Is Opposed By Sen. Boschwitz

In a letter sent to President Carter, Senator Rudy Boschwitz protested a proposal that would move Farmers Home administration (FmHA) programs from the department of agriculture to an expanded Housing and Urban development (HUD) program.

The proposal is part of a plan to reorganize federal programs and is presently in the preparation stages under the direction of James McIntyre, director of the office of mangement and budget.

Citing constituents who have talked with him about the porposal, Sen. Boschwitz told Carter that Minnesotans who have benefited from FmHA program for community development prefer to keep the agency within the department of agriculture.

"As you well know, and as I stressed in my campaign (and I'm sure you did in yours)," Boschwitz wrote to Carter, "HUD has acquired the reputation of being among the most cumbersome of agencies. Furthermore, its orientation has been to programs seeking to achieve urban goals. . .not the goals of Plains, Georgia, or Bertha, Minnesota.

"In contrast, the department of agriculture — in its staffing, direction and the nature of its programs — has acquired a better understanding of rural needs," Boschwitz stated.

January 18, 1979

Dear President Carter,

I would like to register my protest against the proposal by James McIntyre of OMB that functions now handled by the FmHA under the Department of Agriculture be transferred to an enlarged HUD.

As you well know, and as I stressed in my campaign (and I'm sure you did in yours), HUD has acquired the reputation of being among the most cumbersome of agencies. Many people I know who have dealt with HUD have expressed this to me.

Furthermore, HUD's orientation has been to programs seeking to achieve urban goals. . .not the goals of Plains, Georgia, or Bertha, Minnesota.

In contrast, the Department of Agriculture — in its staffing, direction, and the nature of its programs — has acquired a better understanding of rural needs.

My Minnesota constituents who have a working understanding of FmHA operations would most definitely prefer that the agency be kept as is, under the Ag Department with its closer identification to development. The attached letter is very representative of the thinking of these people.

I agree with their position and, therefore, ask that when the OMB plan reaches your desk, you reconsider strongly the advisability of moving FmHA to HUD.

Sincerely,
s-Rudy Boschwitz

Congressman Agrees With Carter Message

"I have no quarrel with the conservative tone of President Carter's state of the union message. His reference to a stable and well-balanced economy, and the need for a strong defense, are what I have been preaching for years," states Congressman Arlan Stangeland.

"Inflation and the nation's economy are important to the American people, and President Carter's proposed deficit of $29 billion is certainly a major step toward stabilizing our financial outlook. I do think, however, it can be trimmed more," he said.

He added that the waste and mismanagement in the federal bureaucracy are reasons for the high deficit figures. "We need to make the bureaucracy cost-effective at every level. If this can be done, the deficit would be reduced greatly, if not eliminated totally," the congressman said.

"The President has apparently received information that our defense posture is falling behind the Soviet Union, or at least has that potential, since he now supports greater outlays for defense purposes. I have long felt that greater defense spending is needed to improve our national security, and apparently, because of his turnabout in opinion, the President agrees," Stangeland said.

In terms of the defense budget, Stangeland said it needs to be "thoroughly scrutinized" to weed out potential waste in the operation of the defense department.

"Examining our priorities for federal spending requires careful analysis, and I think President Carter's statement that the federal government cannot solve all the problems of the people, and that the U.S. cannot solve all the problems of the world, is a step in the right direction," Stangeland concluded.

Traffic Flow In Downtown Is Discussed

which will synchronize the operation of the signals in order that traffic might flow more steadily through the city. Pedestrian indicators on the signals will also improve pedestrian safety, allowing adequate time for a pedestrian to cross an intersection from the moment the "don't walk" flashes until the traffic perpendicular to the crosswalk gets a green light.

The possible need for a signal at the intersection of Red Lake boulevard and Third street was discussed and it was determined that that area had never been studied by MN-DOT. It was suggested that a resolution be passed by the city council requesting the state to make a study at the intersection.

Another area discussed where there is a possible need for signals, pedestrian crossings, turning lanes, more frontage roads or various other traffic control devices was the new development on highway 59 south. District engineer Bob Wolfe stated that, "Trunk highway funds could be used if there is a problem in that area — and it appears there is."

Five alternatives were presented in regard to aiding traffic flow through the downtown area. Neil Bryant explained that the city's first alternative is to keep what we have. At present the streets are 52 feet wide providing for eight foot parking spaces on either side of the street and two nine-foot traffic lanes in either direction. Ten feet is actually considered the minimum width for traffic lanes and the disadvantage of the present condition is that it is very difficult for two vehicles to drive in the 18 foot width. In most instances one vehicle will occupy the entire lane. There are no turn lanes marked and with any one vehicle attempting a left or right turn, all traffic is effectively tied up.

Second alternative presented at the traffic flow meeting was to change the striping on the streets without changing the width or removing the parking. This alternative would maintain the eight foot parking areas, and provide for one 12 foot traffic lane in each direction as well as one centered 12 foot wide left turn lane approximately 100 feet in length at each intersection. The turn lane would accommodate four full size vehicles.

Although this method provides an exclusive lane for left turn, vehicles in the other lane attempting a right turn could tie up through traffic and that traffic could prevent vehicles from taking advantage of the right turn on red after stop law. Another disadvantage of this alternative is that during the winter season pavement markings lose their effectiveness by fading or being covered with ice and snow. It is estimated, however, that this plan would provide for 23 per cent better traffic movement than we presently have.

The third alternative given consideration by the MN-DOT staff could be expected to improve the present traffic flow by 63 per cent. This plan calls for removing parking from the sides of streets and establishing one 11-foot and one 10-foot lane of traffic in each direction plus a center 10-foot wide left turn lane approximately 100 feet in length at each intersection. This plan would provide exclusive lanes for all movements, helping to prevent traffic backup, but again the pavement marking would lose its effectiveness during the winter months.

Two ideas were given consideration as solutions or partial solutions for the ineffectiveness of pavement marking. One was the use of an epoxy paint. This would increase the durability of the striping but would not solve the problem of coverage by snow and ice. The possibility of using signed mast arms to designate lanes and legal movements in the lanes was also discussed but would be a costly method since the mast arms of the presently planned signals do not reach over the entire roadway.

Other disadvantages of the third traffic flow alternative would be the loss of approximately 10 to 12 parking stalls per block and the possibility that some downtown businesses with no alley access would be without loading zones.

This alternative calls for the removal of parking on a total of three blocks on both sides of the street. Under the plan, parking on Main avenue would be removed from Second street through Third street and half way up the block from Third street toward Fourth street and parking on Third street would be removed from LaBree avenue through Main avenue and half way up the block from Main avenue toward Knight avenue. This would mean the loss of 60 to 72 parking stalls in the downtown core area.

Addressing the problem of parking in the downtown area was Jon Larson, representative of the downtown development committee which is presently planning a parking project involving the core area. He said he would not advocate removing parking in the downtown business district because parking facilities are needed in the core area to keep people coming downtown. If parking was eliminated in the suggested area, Larson felt ramp parking would have to be considered to replace the lost stalls. He stated that his committee is presently looking into various parking sites in the perimeter of the downtown area and that ramp parking would be a much more expensive venture.

The last two alternatives considered at Thursday's meeting regarding traffic flow both involved widening the existing streets from 52 to 60 feet by taking four feet from each of the sidewalks. Sidewalks are presently 14 feet wide and would be reduced to ten feet. Possible problems could result with awnings if this plan was adopted and questions were raised about whether or not 10 feet of sidewalk would be adequate, especially in winter when snow accumulating near the curbs narrows existing walkways.

With the 60-foot width of street, the fourth alternative calls for the eight-foot parking spaces on each side of the street and two 11-foot driving lanes in either direction. With this alternative lanes would be wider but turning movements would still restrict through traffic flow and the improvement over the present condition would be a minimal 15 per cent. Another disadvantage of this alternative is the cost to widen the street.

The final alternative involves the 60-foot width, removal of parking, and two 12-foot lanes in both directions plus a center 12-foot lane for left turns. This design would be approximately 89 per cent better than the present condition, providing wide, exclusive lanes for all movements. However, the city would again be involved in the cost of widening the street and would again face the problem of the ineffectiveness of pavement markings in the winter.

Among the other possibilities discussed were one-way streets but it was noted that they must be in couples and with only the First and Third street bridges available, difficulties would be encountered in trying to map one-way couplets. Bob Wolfe explained that a suggestion of restricting left turns at Third and Main was not possible because the state could not divert traffic off a trunk highway onto local roads. Another suggestion made from the floor at the meeting involved the removal of one parking stall from each street corner to increase visibility and ease of turning.

In discussion of each of the traffic flow alternatives attempts were made to determine what affect truck traffic would have on the various plans. The possibility of designating or constructing a truck route, to tie the trunk highways together, thereby avoiding downtown truck traffic, was also considered. It was determined, however, that designating a route other than Third street would not be effective since it would inflict more turns on the drivers. Construction of a truck route or bypass would have to be at the expense of the city and county since traffic flow through Thief River Falls is not considered adequate to warrant bypass construction with federal or state monies.

MN-DOT personnel explained that a traffic count in 1977 showed the heaviest traffic was at First and Horace where the average daily traffic flow was 11,744 and that an origin and destination study on highway 59 showed that 85 to 88 per cent of those using the highway were going into Thief River Falls and only 12 to 15 per cent would use a bypass. Thief River Falls is classified as an isolated business community, and according to MN-DOT, it is simply not a priority for bypass funding.

Summarizing the progress and present status of a First street bridge project was city engineer Doug Stewart. He indicated that approximately the same alternatives discussed for the downtown area were considered in the bridge project. His recommendation, which has been accepted by the city council and forwarded to the county board, was that First street be widened to 60 feet with all of the widening to be done on the north side, taking two feet of land to provide for seven and one-half foot sidewalks and five 12-foot driving lanes, one of which would be designated as a left turn lane. The proposal would also include the widening of the First street bridge to 52 feet which would be adequate for four 12-foot driving lanes and buffer spaces on each side.

The ultimate width of First street must be known before the signalization project gets underway. Therefore a February 6 meeting is planned between city and county officials to discuss the project and cost participation of each group.

Wolfe indicated to the audience that MN-DOT personnel also expected to meet soon with local officials to make some decisions on what should be done in the downtown area. He invited additional comments, both written and oral, and can be contacted at his Bemidji office.

Newfolden will observe its 75th anniversary June 29 and 30 and July 1 under leadership provided by the Newfolden Lions club. First visible sign of the event is the crop of whiskers being sported by a number of the Newfolden area residents.

By the end of January the whisker growing is expected to spread throughout the community, according to Harvey Stokke. Dire consequences await those who don't join in the activity, he hinted, although he also said further announcements may indicate a way out.

The need to counsel with your doctor or attorney occurs more frequently than with your funeral director. Yet, just as you consult with a doctor and an attorney in advance of need, wouldn't it be equally wise to choose and establish a reassuring relationship with your funeral director?

Respectfully,

Food Stamp Changes Will Affect County

The elimination of purchase requirement to obtain stamps and the provision for issuance of cash as change went into effect December 1 of last year in Pennington county. One new regulation going into effect on March 1 will involve requirement that mothers of children 12 to 18 years of age register to accept suitable employment. Another will require the welfare department to make an individual evaluation of eligibility for food stamps, even if applicants for the program are welfare recipients.

"It may seem strange that a mother receiving aid for dependent children (AFDC) payments might not be eligible for food stamps, but it is possible," director Erickson said. "In AFDC we have the disregard of income provision which is an incentive to get off welfare and go out and get a job. A welfare mother may now have $800 or $900 of income a month, have one child, and still receive a modest AFDC payment each month.

"That combined income makes the family eligible for AFDC but ineligible for food stamps. Under the old rules, as long as they got one dollar of AFDC payments, food stamp eligibility was automatic, at the minimum level. A mother with one child would pay about $82 for $102 in food stamps. Consequently, many of them didn't bother, but they were eligible."

With the elimination of purchase requirement, the welfare department anticipates an increase in numbers of households making application for the stamps.

"Probably not even half of our AFDC clients bother with food stamps. The reason is that those with other income wind up with a relatively small bonus, and either they don't think it is worth the effort or they don't like the stigma of being seen making purchases with food stamps. That may apply to other people in the community as well.

"Now, if you can obtain these relatively small amounts of stamps without any outlay of cash, what do you have to lose by taking them, even if you stick them in the cookie jar and use them out of town sometime in the future? They don't have to be redeemed for food in the county they are issued."

At present there are about 150 households participating in the food stamp program in Pennington county each month. Stamps are distributed each Wednesday in the welfare office.

Despite the popularity of the food stamp program, the amount of money in bonus stamps issued has declined steadily for the past five years from a high of $195,072 in 1974 to $103,891 in 1978. Figures for 1974 are believed to be inflated due to a fraud situation in which two employees of the county department were later implicated and prosecuted. The amount dropped to $130,782 in 1975, $129,798 in 1976 and $107,443 in 1977.

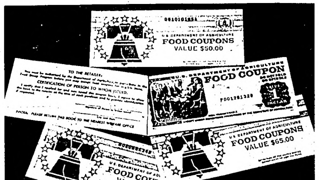
General improvement in economic conditions in Pennington county was considered the main reason for the decline. Highest monthly total paid out during the past four years was $14,211.50 in July of 1976 — the time of a lengthy strike by employees of Arctic Enterprises, Inc. Smallest monthly total was $6,794 in November of 1978. With elimination of the purchase provision, stamps issued climbed to $7,921 in December of last year — the highest figure since $8,089 in July of that year.

"I find that older people are the most appreciative of receiving the stamps," Joyce Sveningson says. "They often comment about how the stamps will let them enjoy meat or fruit that they wouldn't otherwise have."

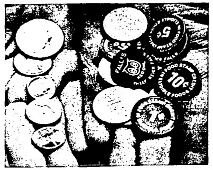
And although she recognizes that extenuating circumstances may prevail, she is sometimes discouraged by the young people who apply. "Many of them seem like they should be able to work," Joyce said. "I mean, I have to work for a living, why shouldn't they? It kind of goes against the grain, but the regulations permit it and we have to go by the rules."

Also under the new rules, any person who could legally be claimed as a dependent will not be eligible. This will likely affect a number of students. The local welfare office has in the past received letters from parents who were irate that their offspring had made application for food stamps.

"I guess I couldn't work with the program if I didn't know that it does a lot of good," Joyce adds, "Like any program written to cover all areas of the country, there are some parts that don't seem to make a whole lot of sense here. Otherwise, I'm sure there are a lot of people who eat a whole lot better than they would be able to without it."



COUPON BOOKS such as these are issued to recipients under the food stamp program of the U.S. department of agriculture. Issuance of the stamps is handled through the Pennington county social services center. In 1978 bonus stamps totaling $103,891.25 were issued in this county. Under the new program, no purchase is required to receive food stamps.



COMPARATIVE CHANGE issued to food stamp program participants is shown in the photo above. While many stores under previous programs simply issued credit slips when change for food stamps was less than a dollar, Falls Red Owl was among those who issued tokens such as the one above. Adolph Oseid, store owner, said customers seemed to appreciate the tokens which were easy to use and not as easily lost. Changes in the law now require food stores to use cash when making change for less than a dollar. Change of more than a dollar is issued in one-dollar food stamps.

Miscellaneous Vehicle Owners Must Register

After February 1, truck and other miscellaneous vehicle owners should apply in person to register their vehicles to make sure they have the 1979 registration stickers or license plates ready to put on the vehicles by the deadline of 12:01 a.m. March 2.

Miscellaneous vehicles are trucks, trailers, vans, recreational vehicles, buses, motorcycles and motorized bicycles (mopeds).

"If you mail in applications after February 1, the applications may not be processed and returned by mail in time for the March 2 deadline," said Ken Dirkzwager, director of driver and vehicle services division of the Minnesota department of public safety.

To apply in person for vehicle registration, stop at any deputy registrar or at the driver and vehicle services division's main office in the transportation building near the State Capitol in St. Paul. Twin Cities area has 27 deputy registrar offices and each county has at least one.

For vehicles in the pro-rate class, a $2.50 late fee went into effect January 11 and must be added to the regular registration fee, said Dirkzwager. For other miscellaneous vehicles, the $2.50 penalty fee is due on any registration after March 10.

Dalager, Dobias On Dean's List

Grace Dalager, daughter of Gladys Dalager of St. Hilaire, and Dale Dobias, son of Clarence Dobias of Brooklyn Center, were named to the dean's list for fall quarter at Golden Valley Lutheran college. To be included on this list, a student must have a scholastic grade point average between 3.5 and 4.0.

Soo Line RR '78 Net Income Hit Record High

Soo Line's net income of $23.3 million again set a new high in 1978, Leonard H. Murray, chairman and chief executive officer, announced recently. Net income increased 24 per cent over that of the previous record year of 1977 when the company earned $18.8 million.

Fourth quarter net income of $6.5 million equaled record earnings achieved in the third quarter of 1978 and exceeded the $4.7 million of net income for the fourth quarter of 1977 by 39 per cent.

Earnings per share amounted to $9.21 for 1978 and $2.58 per share for the fourth quarter. If adjusted to reflect the three for one stock split approved by the shareholders on January 10, to be effective on or about January 31, the per share earnings would equal $3.07 per share for 1978 and $.86 per share for the fourth quarter. The stock split was approved by the interstate commerce commission by order served January 22.

"Soo's railway revenues reached a quarter of a billion dollars for the first time in 1978. Traffic volumes were strong in nearly every commodity group. We experienced a heavy movement of small grains and there were good traffic volumes in lumber, potash, newsprint, pulpwood and wood chips, woodpulp and metal products," Murray said.

"1978 railway revenues increased 16 per cent over those of 1977. The fourth quarter increase was 24 per cent."

"During the year the company undertook the largest capital improvement program in its history, some $28 million. As part of this program 560 new freight cars and nine new locomotives went into service."

"The right-of-way improvement program included installation of 98 miles of new and second hand welded rail, in excess of 300,000 new cross ties and more than 600,000 cubic yards of ballast. Total expenses for maintenance of right-of-way, structures and equipment were $13 million higher than in 1977."

The company has already announced plans to spend $27 million for new locomotives and new freight cars to be put in service during 1979 and early 1980.

U of M Winter Enrollment Rate Stays Balanced

Decreased winter quarter enrollment on some campuses of the university of Minnesota was balanced by increases on other campuses, with the result an enrollment of 52,122 — just 22 fewer students than were registered last winter quarter.

The university of Minnesota at Morris reported a winter quarter enrollment of 1,355, down 10 per cent from a year ago. The university of Minnesota technical college at Crookston had 970 students at the end of the second week of classes, although another 45 students have registered since then for classes that started later.

An increase of 4.9 per cent was reported by the university of Minnesota technical college at Waseca, with 1,103 students. Twin Cities campus enrollment increased by .4 per cent, with 42,164 students. Enrollment at Duluth declined by .4 per cent, down to 6,530 from 6,557 a year ago.

On every campus except Morris, women enrolled in greater numbers than last year, with increases ranging from 1.6 per cent at Duluth to 12.6 per cent at Waseca. On the Twin Cities campus the number of women continued to increase in health sciences, law, technology, veterinary medicine, and business administration. Total number of women on all campuses is 22,996, compared to 29,126 men.

The college of liberal arts on the Twin Cities campus, the largest collegiate unit within the university, had a winter quarter enrollment of 15,763, an increase of 223 students. Other units reporting significant increases were the medical school, nursing, public health, home economics, and the institute of technology.

State Approves Purchase Loans Of 7 Farmers

Reimbursements totaling $319,000 have been approved by the field accounting and statistics division of the Minnesota department of agriculture as the state's share of premiums paid to exhibitors at 95 county agricultural fairs during 1978.

Payments represent about 54 per cent of the $588,963 that the 95 fairs reported paid in premiums for agricultural achievement, including special incentives for the promotion of youth club work. All 95 county fiar associations shared in the $314,500 premium reimbursement, but only 70 qualified for the youth work incentives totaling $4,500.

An additional $1,000 in state agricultural incentive payment is being issued to the Red Lake Band of Chippewa Indians to make the state agri ultural fairs and youth education disbursement a grand total of $320,000.

Freeborn county agricultural society will receive the biggest checks both for premium reimbursement, $11,904.35, and for youth club work emphasis, $354.92.

Other leaders in the premium reimbursement for the 1978 fairs are: Mower county agricultural society $8,825.68; Olmsted county agricultural society $7;857.75; Steele county agricultural society $7,227.98; and St. Louis county fair association at Hibbing $6,939.15.

St. Louis is one of eight Minnesota counties that held two fairs in 1978. On a county total basis St. Louis will get the second highest state reimbursement, a total of $10,179.41, including premiums and youth club work incentives paid by the county fair held at Proctor.

Leading recipients of state funds for youth club work pormotion in addition to Freeborn county include Otter Tail's two fairs $189.90, Cottonwood $182.47, Olmsted $149.61, and Mower County $143.44.

Smallest premium reimbursement to any county agricultural fair association is $653.34 to the Mankato fair association. However, Blue Earth county is one of the eight counties that have two fairs and the larger fair held at Garden City will get a $2,693.03 premium rebate, to make the county total in state aids to fairs $3,346.37, plus $24.08 for youth club work promotion.

504 Bridges To Be Repaired Or Replaced

More than $43.2 million in federal and state funds were authorized during 1978 to replace or renew 504 deficient bridges on local road systems, according to Richard P. Braun, commissioner, Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT).

Of these deficient bridges, 193 were on county roads, 283 on township roads and 28 on city streets.

"We have received applications to replace or renew an additional 900 local deficient bridges at an estimated most of $82 million," said Gordon Fay, director, office of state aid.

State legislature in 1976 and 1977 made $75 million available for replacement or reconstruction of deficient bridges on the local road systems. Monies are allocated as follows: $40.5 million to the counties, $22.5 million to the townships and $12 million to the cities.

"To date," Fay said, "we have authorized $57.4 million of the $75 million provided by the legislature and $13.8 million in federal funds to replace deficient bridges on the local road systems."

County and city engineers hold public meetings to discuss prioritizing replacement of the deficient bridges within their area. After the public meetings are held, the county boards and city councils pass resolutions to set bridge replacement priorities. Engineers then apply to Mn-DOT for these funds. County engineers also act for the townships.

Replacement funds are granted only after Mn-DOT approval of the bridge plans and only for construction of the structure. Local units of government must pay for removal of the old structure, engineering costs and approach grading.

Deficient bridges are those structures which do not meet minimum standards in one or more of the following categories: load, condition, width or clearance.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

On February 8th and 9th beginning at 9 a.m. in the theatre of the Anoka-Ramsey community college hearing examiner Natalie Gaull will hear testimony on the proposed rules of the Minnesota department of human rights governing sex discrimination in athletic programs. The Minnesota state high school league interprets that these rules will mean that for each sport:

"1. Each school shall conduct a unisex team;

"2. Each school shall conduct an analysis to determine if the rate of female participation is different than male;

"3. If the rate of participation differs between male and female each school shall conduct an interest assessment to determine the cause for the disparity;

"4. If females are interested and were unable to earn proportional representation on the unisex team, each school may then provide a team restricted to females in that sport."

This would seem to mean the end of high school sports as we now have them. Whatever your feelings on the matter they should be expressed in person at the hearing or in writing to: Natalie Gaull, Office of Hearing Examiners, Room 300, 1745 University Avenue, St. Paul, MN 55104.

Business Name Filing Required By February 1

Secretary of State Joan Growe reminded businessmen and businesswomen around the state that the 1978 legislation requiring that they record the name of their business with the office of the Secretary of State goes into effect February 1, 1979.

Growe said, "All businesses that were operating before August 1, 1978 should have been recorded with the clerk of district court in their county. These businesses must now have their name on file with my office prior to July 31, 1979 in order to continue their business activity."

New businesses that are just starting operations must also file their name with the Secretary of State prior to engaging in any formal business activity.

A new business filing cost $20 and a renewal of a filing already recorded in the office of the clerk of district court is $10.

"The centralized information on businesses will," Growe said, "serve both the consumer and business in that they will only need to go to one place for information. In addition, my office will inform a business of every other business that seeks to use the same name so that they can take appropriate action."

Forms can be obtained from the clerk of district court or from: Joan Anderson Growe, Secretary of State, 180 State Office Building, St. Paul, Minnesota 55155.

No Easy Decision

If anyone thinks the role of councilman in a small rural community is easy, there are perhaps a number of Thief River Falls councilmen who would be willing to dispute that idea. Never is there a solution, it would seem, to which a problem cannot be compounded.

Consider the case of attempts by Holiday Stationstores to locate a new building in the community, for instance. The kettle containing that desire has been bubbling for some time and it appears will continue to simmer for a while longer.

Holiday was turned down in a request for rezoning to permit it to build the new facility across the street from its present location. That rejection by the council was made contrary to the recommendation (by a narrow majority vote) of the city planning commission.

Holiday officials believed the council action to be illegally arbitrary and instituted legal action. Northwestern hospital, which wants to acquire the present Holiaday property for future development, was a party to the original request for rezoning and is a co-plaintiff in the pending suit against the city.

One of the councilmen who believed strongly that Holiday could find another acceptable site for its new building and who was dismayed by the suit against the city, put forth a good deal of individual effort to resolve the matter to mutual satisfaction. He interested Holiday in other property, arranged to purchase it and re-sell the bulk of it to Holiday without profit, and apparently solved some downtown worries about parking and related matters.

Alas, solutions do not come easy, or so it would seem.

Not only were people in the residential area near the proposed new Holiday site upset enough to circulate petitions and appear at the council meeting, the city planning commission itself took a dim view of the location by voting to recommend that the council not permit Holiday to build in the newly proposed area. That action was rescinded later at a special meeting, but the initial action has not been lost on members of the council.

If one were to distill the contents of the bubbling kettle, one would find the following elements:

(1) Holiday wants to build a new stationstore in a high traffic area;

(2) Northwestern hospital believes it needs to acquire the existing Holiday property;

(3) Some downtown interests don't want Holiday to build across First street;

(4) Some residential property owners don't want Holiday to build on the east end of First street off highway 59;

(5) The city planning commission wants to do what's best for the city of Thief River Falls from the long-range standpoint;

(6) The city council wants to do what's best for the city of Thief River Falls, if it could only determine what that is;

(7) One councilman who has exercised an option for purchase of property wants some immediate action;

(8) The lawsuit filed by Holiday and the hospital on the initial action continues to be pending.

If there are easy answers to the question, each interested party has a different one. The problem is not beyond being solved, to be sure, but reaching that solution appears to be difficult. It is situations like these, which come to pass because of progressive desires that most small communities would give their eye teeth to attract, that make local government service an exceptional challenge.

It is also a time for those in government to prove their mettle by finding the common middle ground where all can stand comfortably and the total community can benefit.

No Best Seller

Only slightly worse than the news release promoting it must be a recent publication by the U.S. Department of Agriculture. Entitled "Fun With Good Foods", the publication is a 48-page booklet of puzzles and games which is available for $1.90 from the U.S. government printing office.

Destined to be a least seller, the booklet contains "delightful drawings of animals, foods and things associated with foods to count, color, cut out, name and even to write stories about".

Exciting? You bet! Page 44 teaches, according to the news release, how to make a nourishing lunch of a glass of milk, a peanut butter sandwich and an apple. And here's another biggie: Page 45 challenges the child to match each part of lunch with its appropriate food group! Fantastic!

Stock number of the publication is 001-000-03868-1, which indicates there must be a lot of other tripe of similar stature cluttering up the files of USDA.

If the idea of government agricultural workers being paid to put out such unnecessary material doesn't make you throw up, perhaps the last line of the news release will. "Order one for your youngster," the release concludes, "and then go ahead and say it Mom: 'Johnny, play with your food.' "

$43 Billion Cost

Following was reproduced from the U.S. Journal of drug and alcohol dependence:

One of the most startling figures revealed by the most recent annual HEW report to Congress on alcohol and health is that alcohol abuse cost the United States nearly 43 billion dollars in 1975. These costs are accounted for in $19.6 billion in lost work production, $12.7 billion in health and medical costs, $5.1 billion in motor vehicle accidents, $2.9 billion in violent crimes, $1.9 billion in social programs in response to alcoholism, and $430 million in fire losses.

The HEW report emphasizes the growing problem of alcohol abuse among special population groups, youth, women and minorities. The high rate of young problem drinkers is of particular concern. According to the report there are an estimated 3.3 million problem drinkers among young people ages 13-17. The number of women with alcohol related problems ranges from 1.5 million to 2.25 million. The report notes that nearly all younger women drink which is a complete reversal of the traditional pattern. A "significant" number of persons 60 and older are reported to have problems with alcohol.

The report estimated alcohol related deaths account for 205,000 casualties per year (11 per cent of the 1.9 million deaths in 1975). It adds that clinical studies consistently show that various types of alcohol problems in males are associated with mortality rates two to six times higher than rates in the general population. Liver cirrhosis still ranked as the sixth most common cause of death in the United States in 1975, with up to 95 per cent of the cases estimated to be alcohol-related.

Although knowledge about alcoholism treatment has broadened dramatically in the past decade, only one out of 10 alcoholics in this country are presently being treated, says the HEW report on alcohol and health.

This is just not good enough, says an introduction to that report written by its editor Dr. Ernest Noble, former director of NIAAA. "We cannot be content simply to maintain the status quo."

Part of the solution to increased availability of treatment lies in expansion of the financing base for alcoholism treatment, says the report.

"Unfortunately, insurance companies and the federal government have been slow to develop reimbursement mechanisms, partly due to the traditional belief that alcohol problems are self-induced, hard to treat, or simply untreatable."

The report cited the relative lack of availability of third party reimbursements as a major barrier to treatment. It added that until recently, insurance carriers were reluctant to cover treatment of alcoholism. But it also said that these trends appear to be changing.

In 1972, approximately 25 per cent of all Blue Cross plans specifically excluded alcoholism. But by 1976, only 4 out of 60 plans responding to a survey excluded alcoholism treatment.

The HEW report also reveals data showing the cost effectiveness of treatment. It claims that preliminary findings from a California experimental project show that average monthly non-alcoholism health care costs for both the alcoholic and the immediate family were reduced by 25 per cent after the problem drinker began treatment for alcoholism.

Borrowed Nonsense:

When the oil well caught fire, workers couldn't get close to the blaze. Then the local firemen came rushing to the scene in a battered old truck and whizzed past the workers right up to the fire. The three firemen doused one another with water, trained the hose on the inferno and put it out. The grateful oilman wrote the department a $2,000 check in appreciation, then asked what would be done with the money. "First off," said the chief, "we're gonna get the brakes fixed on this here truck!"

THE VOICE of BUSINESS

U.S. Chamber of Commerce

The 96th Congress . . .
A Time to Cut the Cord

Congress has reconvened, and for once the public can look forward to the new session with a feeling of hope rather than despair. Thanks to growing pressure from inflation-weary taxpayers, Congress seems to have finally gotten the message — it's time to help the millions of people who are trying to hold down productive jobs and pay the government's bills.

Obviously this conversion is long overdue, but it's still very good news. And if Congress can translate its more responsible attitude into substantive legislation limiting government spending, ending needless, costly regulations and providing genuine across-the-board tax reduction, then our economy can be restored to sound health.

But it won't be easy, because we have subjected the private enterprise system to such abuse for so long. It will take more than one year of penance to cleanse that kind of neglect.

In effect, the Members of the 96th Congress will have their work cut out for them. They must reverse the record of irresponsibility reflected by the liberal spending attitude which has grown almost every year for the past 50 years. During the past five decades, the federal budget has been in balance only nine times, and only once since 1960. And because of this unchecked growth of government, the rate of individual taxation has climbed to confiscatory levels. There was a time when Americans saved for their old age; now it is all they can do to save for April 15th. This is a problem Congress must tackle immediately.

Because taxpayers have been the target of so many false promises, they tend to discount political rhetoric. Yet, if Congress is to succeed as I hope it will, and exercise the leadership the country needs, then it must regain the support of the public by setting an example and allowing its actions to speak louder than its words.

Let me be more specific. Americans are being asked to sacrifice, to tighten their belts, to cut out waste, to conserve more energy. Should not Congress be prepared to do the same?

Congress now spends, directly and indirectly, more than one billion dollars a year on its various legislative, administrative and recreational activities. Is there not an area within this budget where Congress can tighten its belt?

For starters, consider the tax-supported Congressional parks. Do the legislators really need them all: from free unrestricted parking to free postage, virtually unlimited long distance telephone service, occasional office kitchenettes, not to mention picture frames, scenic photographs of the national parks, reproductions of paintings and prints from the National Gallery, stylized haircuts at less than half the going rate, fine food at reasonable prices, the finest in medical care, an all-purpose travel service, workout rooms, steam rooms, paddle ball courts, swimming pools and soothing massages?

We are told that the Senate needs a new office building, a third one. That is quite possible. But must it cost $135 million and feature plush wood-paneled offices with 16-foot ceilings, a gynnasium with a tennis court, and to top it all off, a rooftop restaurant?

Some Members say they receive nothing a high-level executive would not be entitled to in the private sector. But that comparison is neither fair nor accurate. Very few companies can afford to provide benefits on a par with those available in Congress. The few that do must pay for them out of profits, not general tax revenues.

Second, what about the question of fairness in terms of equity before the law? If Congress believes Americans must pay higher Social Security taxes and obey the thousand odd regulations decreed by OSHA, should not its Members and their employees do the same, rather than live in a world apart as they do now?

Third, if Congress really is serious about reducing government spending, isn't the whole area of federal pay a good place to start? It's hard for me to understand why compensation in the federal government averages 42 per cent higher than in the private sector.

These are just a few questions worth pondering. I will have more in future columns.

Let me emphasize that the 96th Congress should not be held responsible for the mistakes of the past — mistakes made during an era when far too many other Americans believed there was never any need for restraint. We have since learned there are times when we must say no.

Now it is time for Congress to do the same — to cut the cord of the liberal spending past, and to begin living with the consequences of its actions — just like the rest of us. At least in that way, they will share both the public's fear of inflation, and its eagerness to defeat it.

CIEE Offers Students Work Abroad Program

Hundreds of U.S. students will find jobs in France, Ireland, Great Britain and New Zealand this summer through the Work Abroad program sponsored by the Council on International Education Exchange (CIEE). For the past 10 years, this program has provided students with the direct experience of living and working in another country and, at the same time, helped them reduce the cost of their trip. Work abroad program virtually eliminates the red tape that students faced in the past when they wanted to work overseas.

Participants must find their own jobs but will have the help of cooperating student travel organizations in each country. In France they may work during the summer; in Great Britain they may work at any time of the year for up to six months; in Ireland they may work at any time of the year for up to four months; in New Zealand they may work for up to six months if they arrive between May 1 and October 31.

Jobs are usually unskilled — in factories, department stores, hotels, etc. Salaries are low, but students generally earn enough to pay for their room and board while they work. Typical job would be that of chambermaid in a hotel in London's West End. But last summer one enterprising student found work as an apprentice jockey for one of Ireland's racing stables.

To qualify for CIEE's program, students myst be between the ages of 18 and 30 and must be able to prove their student status. To work in France, they must be able to speak and understand French.

For more information and application forms, contact CIEE, Dept. PR-WA, 777 United Nations Plaza, New York, New York 10017; 04 236 North Santa Cruz No. 314, Los Gatos, California 95030.

Mrs. Humphrey Leads Drive For State DFL

DFL state chairman Rick Scott has announced that former Senator Muriel Humphrey would head the party's annual sustaining member program drive, which will attempt to add 2,000 new members to the sustaining program.

"Senator Humphrey's leadership in this drive shows her interest in increasing the DFL's broad base of contributors who donate a modest amount to our efforts in a regular and continuing manner," Scott said.

"Through the sustaining program, the party is able to maintain a headquarters and a full-time staff, and can expand its voter education and participation programs.

"But the main advantage of the DFL sustaining program is that it enables the party to get thousands of small contributions instead of relying on the big contributions of special interest groups."

DFL sustaining members contribute over 45 per cent of the state party's budget. In 1978, over 11,000 DFLers contributed through the sustaining member program, making contributions averaging $21, for a total of $225,000.

The 1979 sustaining drive will begin on February 7 and will continue until April 7, the date of the second annual Hubert Humphrey dinner. All sustaining members receive a subscription to the "DFL News", and those who contribute $36 receive one complimentary ticket to the HHH dinner. Two tickets are given for a $60 contribution.

Jeff Panek Is On Honor Roll At Faribault

Jeff Panek, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Panek of rural Goodridge, was placed on the achievement and application honor rolls for the second quarter at the Minnesota school for the deaf at Faribault.

Placement on the achievement honor roll requires a student to achieve an average of 3.0 or above. Achievement grade is based upon the student's over-all academic performance in the classroom. A 2.7 average or above is needed to attain status on the application honor roll. Application grade is a measure of the effort the student puts into class and homework assignments.

Milk Production Remains Among Nation's Best

Preliminary estimates on Minnesota's 1978 milk production show that it is still fourth highest in the nation although the lowest annual total in 23 years, and that it generated a new high gross income for the state's dairy farmers, reports agriculture commissioner Mark W. Seetin.

Minnesota's 1978 milk production is estimated by the state-federal crop and livestock reporting service at 1,043.8-million gallons (89.75-million hundredweight).

At average mid-month farm milk prices, Minnesota's 1978 production had an estimated gross farm value of $878.9-million. That is higher by nearly $48.7-million or six per cent more than the gross value of Minnesota's 1977 milk production.

Dairy farmers averaged slightly over one cent more per pound for their milk in 1978 than in 1977, 84.2 cents per gallon in 1978 is the preliminary average compared to the 75.3 cents average for the previous year, commissioner Seetin noted.

Last year's milk production was nearly 59.1-million gallons below 1977 production reported at over 1.1-billion gallons.

Primary reason for the five per cent drop in Minnesota milk production is the continued reduction in dairy herds and in milk cows. The state's December estimate of milk cows, at 800,000, was a new all-time low and 50,000 below the 1977 year-end total.

Average production of milk per cow in Minnesota last year totaled 10,870 pounds (1,264.2 gallons). That is second highest on record to 1977 when Minnesota's milk cows averaged 10,950 pounds or 1,273.5 gallons.

According to the preliminary estimates on production and prices, Minnesota's average milk cow last year generated $1,064.46 in gross income or $105.51 more than the $958.95 average gross per cow in 1977.

Beaten By Wadena, TRF Rallies To Edge Otters

Rebounding from an 82-57 home court loss to Wadena Friday, the Lincoln high school basketball team came up with a 63-60 come-from-behind victory at Fergus Falls Saturday in Northwest Athletic Conference action.

The weekend split left the Prowlers with a 6-7 record. Thief River Falls will see double duty in the Lincoln gym this weekend when the Prowlers host Bemidji Friday and entertain Fertile-Beltrami Saturday in a pair of 7:30 p.m. games.

Wadena 82
TRF 57

Heavily favored Wadena, leading by a mere 34-30 at halftime, blitzed Thief River Falls 31-10 in the third quarter for an 82-57 victory.

The sizzling second half start by the Indians produced a 41-32 cushion in the first 94 seconds of the third quarter. The fast-paced Wadena offense featured a 12-for-17 shooting performance from the field that quarter when the Indians sank their first eight shots.

"They came out much more aggressive in the second half," pointed out Thief River Falls coach Glen Peters. "You can't take anything away from them. They're a good ball club. They move well and they shoot well."

Thief River Falls surprised the mistake-prone Indians at the start, trailing only 15-13 at the end of the first quarter and recovering from a 25-13 deficit to lead briefly and then trail 34-30 at halftime.

Wadena opened the second quarter with nine unanswered points and an early rout appeared to be in the making. But Thief River Falls center Todd Young, the Prowlers' top performer, hit from the base line with 5:38 remaining and Mark Schmitke, Young and Kyle Hams all scored from the free throw line over the next 56 seconds to narrow the gap to 25-20.

Flashy Wadena guard Tom Stinar popped a jump shot from the side to interrupt the Thief River Falls comeback, but Young and Hams did a number on the Indians the next two minutes to put the Prowlers ahead 28-27. Young scored on a short base line jumper, Hams did likewise, Young put in a rebound and Hams hit from the top of the key to get the season's largest Lincoln crowd fired up.

Stinar and Wadena standout Brad Willis, the game's leading scorer with 25 points, scored the points that put the Indians on top at halftime.

Wadena shot an impressive 52 per cent from the field for the game, hitting 34 of 66 shots. Thief River Falls shot only 39 per cent, making 24 of 62 attempts. The Indians were 14-for-23 at the free throw line where the Prowlers were 9-for-13. Wadena finished with a 36-26 rebound advantage. The two teams were both responsible for 49 turnovers — 26 against the fast-breaking Indians.

"We did not shoot well," admitted Peters. "We played well in the first half. We should have been ahead, but we shot poorly."

Joining Willis, a smooth 6-5 center, in double figures for the winners were Stinar with 17 points, guard Dave Hunnicott 16 and forward Craig Walter 10. Hams and Ricky Peterson had 12 points apiece for the Prowlers, with Young and Mark Schmitke scoring 10 each.

Fergus Falls 60

Winless Fergus Falls blew a game-long lead in the final seconds Saturday, losing to Thief River Falls 63-60.

Out-scored 19-10 in the first quarter, Thief River Falls didn't recover until a three-point play by Jeff Oseid caught Fergus Falls at 60-60 with less than a half minute to play. Oseid, who just returned to action following a severe ankle sprain, then came up with a pass interception and fed Kyle Hams for a 62-60 lead — the Prowlers' first of the game — with nine seconds on the clock.

The snake-bitten Otters lost a chance at a possible game-tying basket on a charging call that sent Thief River Falls' Steve Enderlein to the free throw line for a bonus situation. He made his first attempt for the final margin of victory.

"It was really a struggle for us," admitted Thief River Falls coach Glen Peters whose squad trailed 33-28 at halftime and was down 51-47 heading into the final eight minutes. "But you have to give our kids credit for hanging in there. They didn't give up."

A balanced Thief River Falls attack saw Enderlein score 15 points, Oseid and Jim Nyland 13 each and Todd Young 12, to go along with 15 rebounds. Brian Donahue and Kevin Hanson had 14 and 10 points, respectively, for the Otters.

Thief River Falls shot 52 per cent from the field by hitting 27 of 52 shots. Fergus Falls shot 42 per cent, making 25 of 60 attempts. The Prowlers were 9-for-15 from the free throw line. The Otters made 10 of 18 free throws. Thief River Falls built a 39-24 rebound advantage but also topped the turnover charts 28-18.

NATIONAL WILDLIFE WEEK MARCH 18-24, 1979

Conserve Our Wildlife

FEATURE ANIMAL for the 1979 national wildlife week is the cougar, also known as a mountain lion, wildcat, puma and panther. The National Wildlife Federation's national wildlife week will be observed March 18-24, illustrating the theme, "Conserve Our Wildlife."

Cougar Featured In 1979 National Wildlife Week

Cougar is a cat with many names. In various places it's called a catamount, mountain lion, wildcat, puma, panther and "painter."

By whatever name, the big feline — which can grow to six feet and weigh more than 200 pounds — is one of America's most exciting animals. It is featured on this year's poster for national wildlife week, to be observed March 18 through 24, and it is the "star" of a color slide show illustrating the week's "Conserve Our Wildlife" theme.

The show consists of more than 30 color slides and a script explaining how the science of wildlife management works to maintain a healthy population of cougars and other wildlife species in the U.S.

Cougars are night prowlers, preying upon deer, elk, birds and rodents in their natural habitat, which ranges from deserts to mountain forests. When deprived of their natural prey by loss of habitat, they may attack livestock and even domestic animals.

Once found throughout America, the cougar was killed as a predatory "pest" for many years. Now there are only about 16,000 of them left in the western U.S. and Canada. In the East, there are a few remaining Florida panthers and Eastern cougars — two subspecies classified as endangered. Conservationists are working to improve and expand their habitat.

The slide show, produced by the National Wildlife Federation, also includes pictures of the trumpeter swan, white-tailed deer and wood duck. All were at one time in danger of extinction, but have been restored by wildlife management.

Though focussed on the 1979 wildlife week theme, the slide show is suitable for showing to any audience at any time of the year. The show and a booklet containing additional information on wildlife, with suggestions for classroom activities, are available for $8.95 from the National Wildlife Federation, Dept. WSS9, 1412 St., NW, Washington, DC 20036.

Grygla Holds Warroad In Four Overtimes, 76-73

Grygla won a four-overtime marathon against Warroad 76-73 Friday but lost to Mentor 66-61 Saturday in a pair of high school basketball games played at Grygla.

The Eagles, now 4-10, will host Middle River Friday and visit rival Goodridge Saturday.

Four Grygla scorers reached double figures as Randy Larson collected 20 points, Jim Morrissey and Richard Nordby 16 each and Gary Polansky 14. Joe Day led the Warriors with 22 points.

Grygla shot 43 per cent from the field, hitting 29 of 67 attempts. Warroad shot 44 per cent by making 32 of 72 shots. At the free throw line Grygla was 18-for-31 and Warroad was 9-for-25.

Grygla shot 41 per cent from the field, hitting 25 of 62 shots. The Eagles were 11-for-18 at the free throw line where Mentor matched its field goal percentage with a 6-for-12 night.

Cougar Expert Helps Save Shy Cat Through Radio Telemetry

Radio telemetry may sound like it has nothing to do with national wildlife week's 1979 theme, "Conserve Our Wildlife," but it does. Telemetry — Keeping track of "tagged" animals by means of tiny radio transmitters — is one of many techniques used in wildlife management to help conserve the nation's dwindling wildlife population.

During the 42nd annual observance of wildlife week, sponsored from March 18 through 24 by the National Wildlife Federation, more than 13 million students, educators and conservation-minded citizens will learn a little about the science of wildlife management.

This is the science practiced by Dr. Maruice Hornocker, a biologist, telemetry expert, and the nation's top authority on the cougar, national wildlife week's poster animal.

As a result of wildlife management research by Hornocker and others, attitudes about the cougar have changed. "Ten years ago, the big cat was blamed for a myriad of problems, including diminished deer herds and livestock destruction," Hornocker pointed out. "Currently, it no longer is viewed as 'vermin' by most people, but rather, as a desirable and important part of natural ecosystems."

Hornocker, leader of the Idaho cooperative wildlife research unit at the University of Idaho in Moscow, first began what is now considered pioneer work on the cougar in the 1960's, when most Western states paid bounties to cougar killers. He and veteran Idaho woodsman Wilbur Wiles began by capturing cougars, measuring, tagging and releasing them — then recapturing them later to log new data.

The two men accumulated a wealth of information on the growth, range, population density, and predator patterns of cougars. After five years of the tedious capture-recapture method, Hornocker found he could obtain better information by tagging his cats with radio transmitters. Telemetry is now commonly used in wildlife research.

"This kind of research reveals to us the needs a certain animal has," explained Hornocker. "We can discover what kind of habitat an animal requires — whether it lives in an area that must be protected from development. We can determine if a population should be thinned-out. If a dam or a highway is to be built, we can predict what effect it will have on the animal population in that area."

Hornocker's cougar research revealed that the shy and secretive animal rarely strays from dense cover or rocky, inaccessible terrain. For most of its life it is a loner, mixing with other cats only while a juvenile or briefly during mating seasons. In the wilderness area where Hornocker worked, cougars had little effect on deer and elk populations.

According to Hornocker, the future for cougars looks good. "Outside of the southwest — where livestock depredation by cougars continues to be a problem — cougars will probably be managed for enhancement and preservation of populations. One useful tool in this form of management may be sport hunting which also solves the problem of depredation when it does occur."

Hornocker's cougar expertise was invaluable to the National Wildlife Federation's production of its 1979 wildlife week television spots which star a cougar in its natural habitat. The spots, narrated by actor Robert Redford, will be on TV stations across the country starting in March.

The techniques used by Hornocker in his studies of the cougar can be adapted to other animal research. Hornocker is now immersed in several other wildlife projects involving the wolverine, black bear and otter.

To help spread the word on the valuable lessons to be learned from wildlife research, NWF is distributing during national wildlife week more than 600,000 posters, 300,000 education kits and 55,000 students' kits to schools and conservation groups in all 50 states, Guam, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands. A color slide show which focuses on the cougar and the techniques of wildlife management, is also available to participating groups.

For more information, write to the National Wildlife Federation, 1412 16th St., NW, Washington, DC 20036. Inquiries concerning the slide show, which sells for 18.95, should be addressed to Dept. WSS9.

MJCAA Hockey Line-Up Nearly Set

It's apparent that Northland, Hibbing, Rainy River and Crookston will be the four teams involved in the 1979 Minnesota junior college athletic association (MJCAA) state hockey tournament scheduled to be played in the Thief River Falls sports arena Sat., Feb. 24, and Sun., Feb. 25.

Top four finishers in the regular season MJCAA standings earn berths in the event. Northland is assured a tournament spot as host team. In any event, the Northmen, Cardinals, Voyageurs and Trojans are the class of the MJCAA.

Defending MJCAA state champion Mesabi is struggling. The Virginia-based Norsemen managed just one win in their first seven starts and aren't likely to turn things around enough to be a contender.

Winless Rochester failed to make it through its first season of MJCAA hockey. NJCAA Region 13 director Bill Wirtanen of Virginia reports that Rochester has dropped out of the league because of eligibility problems and will revert back to a club team to finish the 1978-79 schedule.

"Rochester began the 1978-79 season with the intention of playing a varsity schedule," reports Wirtanen. "However, at the end of their fall term it became apparent that they would not have enough players to field a team for the winter term. In order to save their hockey program and finish the season, they appealed to me and the national office to allow them to revert back to a club program as they were last year. Their club status for the remainder of the season was approved."

Thus, Rochester can use players who would not otherwise be eligible, although the players must be students at the school. And 1978-79 will count as a season of participation for all members of the Rochester team.

MJCAA officials have not yet decided what to do about the standings points involving the Yellowjackets. Obviously teams like Hibbing and Crookston who spent a considerable amount of time and money to travel to Rochester earlier this year are upset about the situation.

Rochester is scheduled to play Northland in a Feb. 17-18 weekend series in Thief River Falls to complete the 1978-79 regular season schedule for the Northmen.

Rest of Northland's MJCAA schedule includes three home games this week: Wednesday against rival Crookston at 7:30 p.m., Saturday against Mesabi at 7:30 p.m. and Sunday vs. Mesabi at 1:30 p.m.

Northland's final MJCAA contests will be played on the road Wed., Feb. 7, at Crookston and a Feb. 10-11 weekend series at Hibbing.

Miscellaneous

+Lincoln high school wrestling team faces its toughest test of the 1978-79 season Tuesday when the Prowlers travel to Warren. The powerful Ponies, defending Region 8A champions, are 12-1 in dual meet competition this winter which includes a sweep against perennially strong Pine-to-Prairie Conference foes — a first for Warren.

+Bemidji girls basketball team, a favorite for Region 8AA Sub Region 4 honors this winter, has regained the services of starting center Linda Iverson and starting guard Lisa Knapp, both of whom missed the first part of the 1978-79 season because of illness. Even without the two, the Lumberjills have beaten Sub Region 4 rivals Thief River Falls 57-32, Crookston 62-27 and East Grand Forks 51-23.

+Julian (Curley) Gasperlin of East Grand Forks was one of 16 persons recording a score of 99 out of a possible 100 in the 1978-79 basketball rules examination given by the Minnesota State High School League. The test was written by 1,118 persons. Eighty-three failed the test.

+First round pairings of the 1979 Minnesota State High School League state hockey tournament will find the Section 8 champion playing the Section 7 winner the second game Thursday afternoon, March 15. Right now that would mean a match-up between No. 1 rated Grand Rapids and Roseau. Section 3 plays Section 6 in the tournament's opening game. In the first night session it's Section 2 vs. Section 5 and Section 1 vs. Section 4.

BEMIDJI WING Bob Dow (2) had this point blank shot tipped aside by Thief River Falls goalie Bill Jury in the first period of Saturday's high school hockey game played in the Thief River Falls sports arena. Jury made 32 saves to help the Prowlers beat the Lumberjacks 4-1.

Prowlers Able To Defeat Upset-Minded Bemidji

Winning coach Wendell Grand wasn't satisfied, but losing coach Bryan Grand was Saturday as Thief River Falls struggled to a 4-1 high school hockey win over Bemidji in the Thief River Falls sports arena. It was the second time this winter the heavily favored Prowlers had their hands full against the unheralded Lumberjacks who upset them 3-2 in mid-December.

"We'll take the win any way we can," noted Wendell Grand, "but I don't feel we played as well as we can. I feel Bemidji played a pretty good hockey game."

In the other dressing room Bryan Grand, Wendell's brother, said he was "happy" with the way his 3-10 Lumberjacks played. "Overall, it's as well as we've played. If we can play as well as we did tonight, we'll be right in there," he said in reference to the upcoming Bemidji schedule that features Detroit Lakes, Moorhead, East Grand Forks, Warroad and Superior, Wis. before the Lumberjacks close with Grand Rapids and Greenway-Coleraine.

Thief River Falls needed a power play goal in the first minute of the third period and an open net goal in the final minute of play to subdue Bemidji.

A narrow 2-1 edge became 3-1 when Dave Geatz' persistence in front of Bemidji goalie Tim Port finally put the puck in the net just 22 seconds into the third period. There were 19 seconds left in a George Williams tripping penalty called near the end of the second period.

Bemidji tried to strengthen a power play opportunity with an extra attacker in the final minute, but Port's removal allowed the Prowlers to ice the contest. After they had cleared the puck out of their own end, the Prowlers battled the Lumberjacks for possession in front of the Bemidji net, with Wade Hoppe finally getting the goal at 14:51.

Scoring started early in the first period when Thief River Falls captain Scott Sabo skated across the goal mouth and tapped the puck by Port with 1:11 elapsed.

A little over two minutes later Bemidji sophomore Bob Dow used a screen to surprise Thief River Falls goalie Bill Jury with a game-tying slap shot from the face-off circle to the left of the Thief River Falls net. It was a power play goal.

Shooting from the same spot in the second period, Thief River Falls' Myles Lund made it 2-1 at 8:19 on a 3-on-2 rush.

Another steady performance by Jury produced a 32-save effort that included 13 first period stops. Port turned back 25 shots.

Thief River Falls will carry a 9-3 record into an important Section 8 game against East Grand Forks Tuesday night beginning at 7:30 in the sports arena. The Prowlers travel to Moorhead Saturday for an 8:15 p.m. contest.

Fergus Falls Depth Wins Arctic Cat Invitational

Thief River Falls and Fosston featured the individual stars but Fergus Falls, as expected, used its superior depth to emerge as champion Saturday in the fourth annual Thief River Falls Arctic Cat invitational high school swimming meet. The Otters finished with 284 points, followed by Thief River Falls 225, Fosston 218, Bemidji 211, International Falls 123, Moorhead 46 and Detroit Lakes 42.

The Prowlers and Greyhounds both won four events while the Otters took but two firsts. "That points out how keen the competition was," mentioned Thief River Falls coach John Kopari. "It was a fun meet."

Lack of individual winners wasn't unexpected by Fergus Falls coach Tom Uvaas. "We have a really well-balanced team," he explained. "We don't have a lot of firsts."

Only sure first place finisher in the Fergus Falls line-up was diver Kevin Stich. A twelfth place finisher in last year's state meet, Stich was an easy Arctic Cat winner for the second year in a row, scoring 373.00 points on his 12 dives. "He's one of the best in the state right now," praised Uvaas. "He has tremendous composure and mental toughness. He's a great competitor."

Charlie Mielke was the Otters' only other winner as he swam the 200-yard individual medley in 2:13.28.

Uvaas doesn't shy away from talk that makes his Otters favorites for the post-season sectional meet March 9-10 at Bemidji State University. "I would be really disappointed if we didn't win," he said matter-of-factly. "We know we can do it. Brainerd will be tough, but we have a lot of confidence. We like to have a winning tradition."

Fosston's Eric Rustad and Thief River Falls' Dave Beito were the meet's top individual point-producers. They each had a hand in three victories.

Rustad set a Franklin middle school pool record with a 50.58 in the 100-yard freestyle, swam a near-record 23.01 in the 50-yard freestyle and swam the lead leg on the Greyhounds' 200-yard medley relay team that was a winner in 1:48.84. Jon Handy, Scott Daniels and Dave Balme were also on that relay outfit.

Beito dominated the distance events as he swam a personal best 5:17.70 in the 500-yard freestyle and turned in a 1:56.40 in the 200-yard freestyle. He was also a member of the Prowlers' 400-yard freestyle relay team that cemented a second place finish in the point standings with a 3:33.18 that was upheld when officials decided to reverse a disqualification call made against the Prowlers because of an alleged false start that was strongly argued by Kopari. Dennis Booth, Bruce Storhaug and Kevin Murphy were other relay team members.

International Falls' Mike Morff rounded out the winners' circle with a 1:01.06 in the 100-yard backstroke.

"I think we did better than we thought we would," said Kopari who expected a heated second place battle between the Prowlers, Fosston and Bemidji. "Our kids really did well. "We're really happy."

Thief River Falls will be idle until a Sat., Feb. 10 dual meet at Brainerd.

Nordics Split Weekend Set

Marshall County Central high school basketball team struggled through a weekend twinbill, losing a 67-41 North Border Conference game at Roseau Friday and winning a low-scoring 38-31 contest over Kennedy Saturday at Newfolden.

"In either game I didn't think we played with the intensity we've had," explained Marshall County Central coach Ron Ueland. "I always through that Roseau was the best team in the district, and now I'm convinced. Saturday was one of those games when we should have given the people their money back — only they left too soon," he quipped.

Marshall County Central, 7-7 for the year, will play at Stephen Tuesday and will face Lake of the Woods Saturday at Baudette.

Crookston Ties Series With 6-1 Win . . .

Northmen, Trojans Meet Third Time Wednesday

Third MJCAA hockey meeting between northwestern Minnesota collegiate rivals Northland and Crookston will take place Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in the Thief River Falls sports arena. The two teams split earlier decisions as the Northmen won an 11-7 penalty-marred game played here Jan. 17 and the Trojans skated to a 6-1 victory last Wednesday at Crookston.

"It's going to be quite a match-up," promised Northland coach Bob Lundbohm as he looked ahead to the third of four successive Wednesday Northland-Crookston confrontations. "If Crookston can stay out of the penalty box they'll give us all we can handle."

Crookston did stay out of the penalty box in its Wednesday triumph. After being called for 13 of the 22 penalties in the initial meeting, Crookston was tagged with only six infractions in the rematch played under the watchful eyes of officials John Knauf and Rick Budge who warned both teams before the start of the game that things would be called close to keep the game under control.

Northland also incurred six penalties and the Northmen were stung for four power play goals.

A fast-skating first period ended in a 1-1 tie. Jeff Goos' power play put Crookston in front just 2:59 into the game. Exactly 15 minutes later Gary Laidly made it 1-1.

Rhody Johnson gave Crookston a 2-1 second period lead and then set up a Tim Persson breakaway just 24 seconds into the third period. Dean Byfuglien made it 4-1 when Northland skated two men short at 2:39. Goals by Mark Ogaard and Bruce Foss later in the period padded the lead.

"In the first period we were playing excellent hockey," explained Lundbohm. "Both teams were really skating. But then they went ahead of us and it seemed like we just couldn't do a thing."

Northland goalie Joe Klosterman, returning to the line-up after a bout with the flu, turned aside 24 shots. Crookston's Dean Grindahl had a 16-save first period en route to a 33-save night.

A HOOKING penalty was assessed Thief River Falls defenseman Dave Geatz (4) after he hauled down a Bemidji player in the final minute of Saturday's high school hockey game played in the sports arena. The Lumberjacks pulled goalie Tim Port for a 6-on-4 power play advantage but then surrendered a game-ending open net goal in a 4-1 loss.

Lincoln Girls Tip EGF 45-43

Out-scored 33-28 from the field, the Lincoln high school girls basketball team used a 17-for-27 performance at the free throw line to edge East Grand Forks 45-43 Thursday in the Lincoln gym.

Twelve first quarter turnovers produce a 15-7 Thief River Falls deficit that was cut to 25-20 by halftime. The Prowlers then limited the Green Wave to four third quarter points to ho ahead 30-29.

Sitting on a 43-41 lead heading into the final minute of play, Thief River Falls coach Sylvia Sjoberg planned to go into a waiting game until sophomore guard Kim McFarland surprised most observers with an 18-foot shot that provided a 45-41 chusion.

"We played better in the second half," explained Sjoberg. "We kept our heads. We didn't try to run up and down the court 400 miles an hour."

Pam Kotschevar and Roberta Engel paced the Prowlers with 15 and 12 points, respectively. Dolly Hanson scored a game-high 20 points for the Green Wave.

Thief River Falls, hitting just five first half field goals, shot 25 per cent from the floor on a 14-for-56 showing. East Grand Forks improved upon that figure slightly to 28 per cent by making 17 of 61 shots. But the Green Wave free throw figures were considerable smaller than the Prowlers' as the visitors sank nine of 16 attempts.

It was the third straight win for the Prowlers who will take a 4-6 record to Greenbush tonight (Monday). Thief River Falls will be on the road again Saturday when the Prolwers challenge defending Region 8A champion Fertile.

East Grand Forks rallied from a 27-20 third quarter deficit to trim Thief River Falls 32-31 in junior varsity play Thursday.

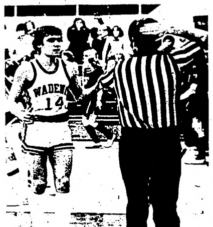
JV Team Beats Bemidji By 3-1

Single goals in each period proved to be enough Saturday as the Lincoln high school junior varsity hockey team defeated Bemidji 3-1.

Kevin Hamre, Jeff Moser and Scott Wiebolt scored for the winners who improved their season record to 5-6-1.



AN OFFENSIVE foul was called against Wadena guard Tom Stinar by official Jim Sims during Friday's high school basketball game played in Thief River Falls. It was one of 26 turnovers charged against the Indians who nevertheless won the ball game, 82-57.

Northland, Rainy River Split High-Scoring Weekend Series

Hockey purists might cringe, but fans attending the MJCAA weekend hockey series between Northland and Rainy River community colleges in the Thief River Falls sports arena certainly received the entertainment value from their ticket purchase as the free-wheeling Northmen and Voyageurs scored a whopping 47 goals in one of the wildest match-ups imaginable. Both teams came up with a win as Rainy River came out on top 14-10 Friday night and Northland emerged with a 12-11 overtime victory Saturday afternoon.

Northland coach Bob Lundbohm probably summed it up best when he said, "I don't know what we're going to do on defense, but we sure don't have to work too much on our offense."

The split left Northland with a 6-4 MJCAA record. The Northmen are 6-6 overall heading into a key 7:30 p.m. Wednesday game against rival Crookston in the sports arena.

Rainy River 14
Northland 10

It was an offensive shoot-out Friday and Rainy River had more ammunition as the Voyageurs out-scored the Northmen 14-10.

Scoring began before the game was a minute old and the shelling continued into the final seconds. It began in explosive fashion when both teams scored twice in the first three minutes. Northland went on to claim an 8-4 first period lead, only to be out-gunned 7-1 in the second period to trail 11-9.

The issue wasn't decided until Kevin Gordon, a sophomore from International Falls who began the game as the leading scorer in MJCAA hockey with 23 goals and 43 points, got his hat trick on a partial breakaway with 4:42 remaining. The power play goal put the Voyageurs ahead 13-10. Chuck Green made it 14-10 at 19:26.

Gordy Markstrom collected the hat trick for Northland while Steve Geatz and Karl Chromy scored two goals apiece and Mark Koehn, Brad Kosel and Doug Dallmann added single goals. Green, Paul Chezick, Rick Bolstad and Al Portinen all scored twice for Rainy River.

Rainy River gunners put 51 shots on net as Northland goalies Joe Klosterman and Bryan Wiskow combined for 37 saves. Mark Pelowski of Rainy River faced 46 shots, stopping 36 of them.

In addition to the 24 goals, 97 shots on goal and 73 saves, the game's numbers also included 23 penalties — 14 of the Northmen who surrendered four power play goals.

Northland 12
Rainy River 11

At the rate the pucks were landing in the net all weekend, it figured that little of a 10-minute overtime would be played before a winner was decided in an 11-11 Saturday afternoon stalemate. And that's exactly what transpired as Northland freshman wing Doug Dallmann capped a hat trick performance by tipping in a rebound just 36 seconds into the extra session for a 12-11 decision.

An innocent 2-1 hockey game after one period turned into a 6-5 contest after two and then matched Friday's firepower in a nine-goal third period.

Northland, overcoming a 6-3 deficit with unassisted Gordy Markstrom and Mike Malberg goals spaced just 29 seconds apart late in the third period, rebounded from another two-goal barrier in a lightning-quick seven seconds on goals by Dallmann and Markstrom midway through the third period for a 10-10 tie.

A rebound shot by Rainy River's Chuck Green eluded Northland goalie John Halgren's out-stretched glove at the 17-minute mark, but Northland forced overtime when Malberg converted a 2-on-1 rush with Markstrom into his third goal with just 37 seconds remaining.

Glen Mosher joined Dallmann and Malberg as three-goal scorers for the Northmen. Malberg also had four assists while Markstrom scored twice and dished out five assists. Rainy River standout Kevin Gordon scored four goals.

Rainy River goalie Mark Pelowski made exactly half of his 42 saves in the first period. Halgren and Northland starter Bryan Wiskow combined for 33 saves.

IT LOOKED like Northland community college wing Karl Chromy (9) had himself a sure third period goal Friday against Rainy River, but the puck, deflected by goalie Mark Pelowski of the Voyageurs, missed the net. Rainy River won the MJCAA hockey game 14-10.

Northland Stall Holds Off Brainerd, 90-82

An effective four-corner offense not only allowed Northland community college to use up most of the final four minutes of the game, but it also widened a shaky 78-77 lead into a more comfortable 90-82 victory over Brainerd Saturday in an important MJCAA Northwest Division basketball game played on the Red Raiders' court.

"It had to develop our confidence," said Northland coach Chet Engelman when describing the game-ending delay tactics by the Northmen who have developed a run-and-run reputation. "It adds a new dimension to our game."

The victory kept Northland in a first place Northwest Division tie with Fergus Falls. The Northmen and Spartans are both 4-1 in MJCAA play. Northland, 11-5 overall, hosts area rival Crookston Tuesday at 8 p.m.

"That was a key game for us," pointed out Engelman. "We won one on the road to balance out the one we lost at home to Mesabi. That puts us in the driver's seat."

It was a close contest all afternoon. Northland led 46-44 at halftime. There were 10 ties and four lead changes in the second half before Northland went into their delay game.

Vince Parker paced the Northmen with 18 points and six assists. Scotty Gilbert scored 14 points and was credited with five assists. Keith Charbonneau scored 13 points, Mike Carriere 12 and Doug Engelman 10, scoring half of Northland's first 20 points with long range gunning before running into foul trouble. Jerry Hooten also turned in a strong performance that included six points, 10 rebounds, four assists and eight loose ball recoveries.

Jeff Oliphant and John Olsen did most of the Brainerd damage, combining for 54 points as Oliphant scored 29 and Olsen 25.

Brainerd finished with a huge 74-47 rebound advantage, but that was offset by 32 turnovers. Northland lost the ball 18 times. The Northmen also shot 47 per cent from the field (42-for-90) while the Red Raiders shot only 37 per cent (32-for-87). Brainerd had the edge at the free throw line where the hosts sank 18 of 27 shots. Northland was 6-for-15 at the line.

"Our kids played well," praised Engelman. "We are beginning to develop some team character."

Grygla Girls Own 10-1 Cage Record

Balanced scoring enabled Grygla to overcome a 32-point outburst by Lake of the Woods' Coreena Dahl Thursday as the Eagles claimed a 49-43 victory in girls high school basketball action at Grygla.

Despite a woeful 7-for-45 shooting performance from the field in the first half, Grygla still managed to take a 22-14 lead into intermission after an 8-8 first quarter tie. The Eagles improved their shooting to 41 per cent in the second half en route to a 39-28 third quarter cushion.

"We took good shots in the first half, but they just wouldn't go in," offered Grygla coach Bill Raduenz who received a 12-point performance from Cindy Moe as the Eagles improved their season record to 10-1.

Grygla plays at Badger tonight (Monday).

Plummer — Sacred Heart

Three East Grand Forks Sacred Heart scorers reached double figures Thursday as the Eagles upset visiting Plummer 57-42.

Diane Fisher scored a game-high 22 points for the Cardinals, but the Eagles' scoring included Cheri Fontaine with 15 points, Sandy Ripp 14 and Julie Ripp 10.

"We just didn't play very well," admitted Plummer coach Rick Koivisto whose team lost for only the second time in nine outings. "They took it to us right away and we never recovered."

Sacred Heart built a 16-12 first quarter lead and expanded that to a 34-22 halftime advantage. It was 45-32 after three quarters.

Plummer hosts Stephen tonight (Monday) in the Cardinals' only game this week.

Goodridge Beaten By Climax 42-34

Goodridge managed to score just four points in the fourth quarter Friday at Climax and as a result lost its seventh straight high school basketball game, 42-34.

Climax led 14-12 at the end of the first quarter, nursed a 24-20 lead into halftime and managed to stay on top 32-30 through three quarters.

Only five Vikings scored, but three of them reached double figures as Ambrose Michael collected 12 points, George Tauss 10 and Dan Palm 10. Randy Henrickson led Goodridge with 10 points.

The Huskies' offense came entirely from the field as the visitors missed their only free throw opportunity. Goodridge was 17-for-45 from the floor for 38 per cent. Climax was 19-for-46 for a 43 per cent field goal shooting mark. The Vikings were 4-for-7 at the free throw line. Climax owned a 30-23 rebound advantage.

Goodridge, 5-1 at one point earlier this season but now 5-8, will host Fisher Tuesday.

In Memory
In sad but loving memory of our dear husband and father, Larry Trontvedt. Just one short year ago today.
God took our daddy and husband away,
He left us with loved ones near and far,
And yet, how terrible lonesome we are.
We loved so and always will —
There's a place in our hearts no one can fill.
So now we wait for that great day,
Pray, dear God, not far away,
When together again we can always be,
Up there with God, through eternity.

Permit Granted Public TV; Work To Begin Soon

Federal communications commission issued a construction permit last week to Northern Minnesota Public TV, authorizing it to begin work on the new public TV station. Upon receiving the construction permit, NMPTV sent a request to the FCC for the assignment of a call sign, which is the group of four letters identifying all broadcast stations.

The permit is the first in a series of authorizations issued by the FCC toward granting a broadcast license, subject to the provisions of the communications act of 1934. During construction, NMPTV will be required to notify the FCC of its progress.

When equipment is installed, the station will file a proof of performance on the equipment, showing that its facility will operate according to FCC specifications for television transmission. After that is approved by the FCC, MNMPTV will request program test authority, which allows the station to begin broadcasting. No on-the-air date has been set, but NMPTV officials are hoping to sign the station on the air by fall of this year. The station might be on the air for a month or more before the actual license is issued.

This long and complex licensing procedure will begin, very soon, however, because the construction permit requires the construction commence by March 8, 1979. Advance Industries of Sioux City, Iowa will soon begin fabricating the 1,000-foot tower, according to a company representative, Robert Prenger. Prenger met with NMPTV board and staff members in Bemidji last week. He also surveyed the tower site southeast of Blackduck, and staked the tower base and anchor points.

Prenger noted that the tower will be fabricated in 20-foot sections and trucked from Iowa to the remote tower site about 24 miles northeast of Bemidji. It will be important to have the structural steel delivered before road restrictions are imposed.

This system will be UHF. The service that we install will cover the area as stated above, plus any other area offering UHF. Before a system can be installed, we have to obtain an FCC license and approval of rates from the Minnesota Public Service Commission. Before these can be obtained, it is required that we have signed up enough users to support the system. Anyone interested in mobile telephone service, contact the Wikstrom Telephone Co., Inc., at Karlstad, Minnesota, 436-2121.

TRADING OF PINS is one of the games Lions members play when attending conventions of the organization. Some of the Lions laden with pins — both as collections and as trading material — are pictured as they attended the mid-winter convention of Lions district 5M-11 in Thief River Falls Friday through Sunday. DeLane Johnson of Oslo (back to camera) had so many pins on the front of his vest that he had to use the back of the garment as well. Others (left to right) are Ernest Swanson, Goodridge; Bob Davis, Swan River, Man.; Peter Dyck, Morris, Man., newly-elected governor of Lions District 5M-12; and Uke Ito, Morris, Man. Most of the heavily-laden pin wearers at the convention said they had as many or more pins at home. Ito, for instance, said that his collection was at home and he was merely carrying trading stock, therefore most of the pins he is wearing are duplicates.

Co-op Mergers Are Topic Of March 9 Meet

Directors of farmers cooperatives will have a chance to study the various angles of merging co-op business at Ramada Inn in Grand Forks on March 9.

The program "Let's Look at Merger — Again!" is sponsored by the Minnesota agricultural extension service, the St. Paul Bank for Cooperatives and the Minnesota Association for Cooperatives (MAC). Starting time is 10 a.m.

"We had a program about merging in the mid-1960's," county extension director Terry Courneya explains. "Massive changes in our transportation system, such as railroad abandonments, bring up the possibility once again."

Speakers include Dennis Johnson, Dale Kaisershot, Allan Lambrecht, and Joy Wagner of the St. Paul Bank for Cooperatives, Allen Gerber from MAC, Frank Smith, extension economist with the University of Minnesota, and county agents from the area.

They will discuss the financial, economic and social considerations of merging. There will also be a talk on how to conduct an annual meeting.

"Childrenese" Topic For UND Lecture Series

"A consideration of the 'cute things kids say' provides a basis for assessing a child's knowledge and utilization of oral language," asserts Carla Hess, associate professor of speech pathology and audiology, at the University of North Dakota in Grand Forks.

She will be presenting the third in this year's series of faculty lectures at 8 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 1, in the Leonard hall lecture bowl on the UND campus. Her talk is titled, "Speaking Childrenese: Child Language Performance." The lecture will include an overview of the nature and development of child language.

"Child utterances will be used to exemplify what children know and do not know about the meaning, structure and use of language to illustrate selected aspects of child language development," she said.

Hess, a native of Montana, earned a B.S. in English and general speech from Montana state University-Bozeman in 1962. Following a brief time teaching English in Bozeman, she attended UND, and completed her master's degree in speech pathology and audiology in 1967.

She taught in that department for a year, then completed her Ph.D. in hearing and speech sciences at Ohio university. Hess spent several years in private practice in speech pathology in Ohio before returning to UND's faculty in 1973.

The lecture, and reception following it, are free and open to the public.

Art Group To Have Showing At Northland

In the fall of 1965, a group of seven people in Alexandria met to discuss the possibilities of encourageing and helping aspiring area artists. The membership has grown into what is now known as the "Brush and Palette Club".

This energetic organization which is well known in art circles will have a showing at Northland community college from January 27 through February 23 in the fine arts area during the hours of 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Friday.

The "Brush and Palette Club" sponsors a number of events during each year such as an antique show and sale, workshops, trips to various art shows, art suppers and picnics, slide shows, showings at the Minnesota state fair and other art activities. Many members of this unique organization have paintings in foreign countries, throughout the United States and in a number of Canadian provinces.

The objectives of the club are to serve all members in helpful ways whether they are amateur or professional artists and to promote community interest in art through artistic activities, education, and participation in and contribution to worthwhile courses.

Mike Trudeau, art instructor at Northland community college, heard about this club and invited them for art showing at the college. "People are invited to view this outstanding exhibit and enjoy some exceptional art work," said Trudeau.

BSU Receives Grant For Energy Study

Department of energy, Washington, DC, has announced that Bemidji state university's industrial education department is the recipient of a $15,180 grant. Funding — the only designated to a Minnesota college — will enable department faculty to conduct a solar energy workshop July 9-20 on campus. Through its designation as faculty improvement monies, the grant will be used for professors in Upper Midwest industrial education-technology departments.

Dr. Irving Larson was the initiator of the grant and will be one of the primary instructors in the workshop. Last summer he taught and-or directed three solar energy workshops in cooperation with the Minnesota energy agency. Larson was also one of the speakers at the January 26-27 Energy Fair in Bemidji.

During the summer of 1978 BSU's industrial education department hosted five workshops relating to energy study, and a series of eight has been announced for this summer.

Highway Dep't. District Sets Safety Record

Roland Baxter, district safety officer, announced recently a new lost time accident record was established for the Bemidji district of the Minnesota department of transportation. As of Jan. 1, 1979, the District 2 work force of 234 maintenance and construction employees had not sustained a lost time personal injury in 764,835 man hours worked.

This record is particularly impressive considering the extremely hazardous conditions that are always present when repairing roadways, plowing snow under less than ideal driving conditions and when exposed to traffic during new construction of highways.

District 2, Bemidji, is responsible for design, maintenance and construction activities relating to transportation in 14 counties in northwestern Minnesota. Their major responsibility is the state trunk highway system as well as involvement in airports, railroads, bike trails and public transportation.

Maintenance headquarters are located at Bemidji and Crookston with construction offices at Thief River Falls and Bemidji. Maintenance truck stations are located at Deer River, Walker, Park Rapids, Bagley, Northome, Grygla, Baudette, Roseau, Erskine, Thief River Falls, Ada, East Grand Forks, Warren, Karlstad and Hallock.

Business Name Filing Reviewed

Confusion surrounding a news release from the Minnesota secretary of state's office regarding filing of business names with that office has been evidenced in a number of areas throughout the state as well as Thief River Falls. The release was published on page 5 of the January 29 issue of the Times.

Kathy Helm, supervisor of the assumed name trademark section of the secretary of state's office, told the Times she had received a number of calls from bewildered citizens and lamented that the news release, which went out without her knowledge, contained incomplete information.

"I saw it (the news release) after they put it out," she said, "and I'm the one that handles the program. 'I told them 'Thanks a lot!' and they said 'Well, we just wanted people to be aware of it.' I told them, 'Yes, but you should use the proper information'."

In attempting to clarify the information sent out, Helm stated that the February 1 date mentioned is not a deadline date but rather a starting date for the filing period. The office currently has a number of names submitted which it is holding until the February 1 beginning date.

Businesses which have previously filed with the clerk of court's office in their county have from Feb. 1, 1979 to July 31, 1979, to file a renewal with the secretary of state's office. Renewal fee is $10 and forms are available from the secretary of state's office, 180 State Office Building, St. Paul, MN. 55155. If the renewal is not filed by July 31, a new filing must be made later and the cost will be $20.

The February 1 date applies only to the beginning of the renewal filing period. On August 1 of last year the secretary of state's office began the acceptance of business name filing to provide a centralized record. New filings were and are being accepted at the state office after that date.

Furthermore, the filing requirement does not apply to corporations unless they are corporations which conduct business under an assumed name. An example given by Helm was Dayton-Hudson corporation which had filed for Target, Daytronics and several others because they do business under those names. Corporate enterprises operating only under the legal name of the corporation are not required to file at all.

A business which is not incorporated, however, is required by law to file with the secretary of state's office if the business name does not include the full name of the owner. If John Smith is the owner of a business known as the John Smith company, he doesn't have to file the business name, Helm said. If the business name is simply Smith company, however, a filing would be required. The office assumes a full name is the first and last name of the owner.

Owners of businesses who may still be confused and want a straight answer to specific questions regarding the assumed business name law may call 612-296-9216. That's Kathy Helm's direct number at the secretary of state's office. She seemed especially willing to be helpful.

TRF United Way Tops $70,000

Thief River Falls area United Way contributions will exceed $70,000 for the first time in history, according to Paul Ihle, 1978 campaign chairman. Ihle indicated that the attainment of this new record was due in a large part to "a tremendous increase in the contribution from Arctic Enterprises and its employees. A 90 per cent increase in this year's contribution over last year was reported in this segment of the campaign alone."

In all other segments the United Way drive also showed increases, led by the professional people who reported a 48 per cent increase over last year's contribution. The retail business segment, along with it's employees, is 98 per cent complete and is expected to show a moderate increase over last year's contribution, Ihle said.

The chairman expressed his sincere appreciation to all of the area individuals who supported the United Way campaign. "Without the hours of work by the many volunteers involved and the generous contributions from so many of the area residents, the Thief River Falls United Way would not be able to support so many local and state charities," he said.

Requests from United Way sponsored charities are expected to reach $80,000 this year. The United Way board is presently in the process of reviewing these requests. It is anticipated that allocations to the various charitable organization will be made by April.

Barb Drees, United Way executive secretary, indicated that establishing priorities among the many needy charities is always the most difficult task faced by the United Way board. This year's task should be some what easier because of the substanital money available.

Begin Plans For Second Co. History Book

Committee chairmen have been appointed for publication of a second volume of "Pioneer Tales", a book of family histories for Pennington county, according to Mrs. Inga Geving, president of the county historical society.

Decision to publish the second volume was made at a meeting of a group of people interested in county history with Neil Kimmel of Taylor Publishing company of Dallas, Tex., and Frederick O. Rieger of Burnsville. Attending the meeting in addition of Mrs. Geving were Margaret Weigelt, vice president and Violet Lindberg, secretary-treasurer of the county historical society and Myrtle Rude.

Mrs. Geving said that a number of requests had been received for a second publication and that the first volume has been sold out. Anyone wishing to contribute material on family history for the second volume, either on a first time basis or as an update to the first volume, is encouraged to begin preparation of the material.

Committees appointed to date include Mrs. Henry Waale and Mrs. Lucille Yonke, co-chairmen; Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Vevea, publicity; Mrs. Quentin Jones, secretary; Mrs. Hannah Kisch and Robert J. Lund, advisors.

Minn. Cities Testify At CAB Hearing

by Kim Blaeser
Times Reporter

Under the new airline deregulation bill, subsidy can be continued to small communities for four more years and maybe seven years as long as they have a willing carrier, according to Marvin Cohen, chairman of the civil aeronautics board (CAB). Cohen gave this assurance to representatives from a three-state area Monday, January 29, during the course of a CAB hearing held in Minneapolis on essential air service to small communities.

But two questions lingered unanswered throughout the day: (1) What will happen if the certificated air carrier becomes unwilling because the new deregulation bill allows it to enter new markets that may be more lucrative than service to outstate Minnesota, North Dakota and South Dakota communities? And, (2) after the four or seven years for which subsidy is guaranteed, what will become of small community air service?

The Minneapolis hearing was the fifth of nine regional meetings planned by the civil aeronautics board to discuss essential service programs for small communities. The two-day agenda included testimony from a six-state area with Minnesota, North Dakota and South Dakota participating in the opening day of discussion Monday.

The regional meetings are being held by CAB to fulfill the directive of the deregulation act which requires the board to consult with local and state government and to define what "essential service" is for approximately 259 communities before Oct. 24, 1979. The "essential service", as defined by the CAB, is guaranteed to small communities for a period of ten years.

The concern expressed by the majority of the representatives from North Dakota, South Dakota and Minnesota at Monday's hearing was that the "essential service" defined by CAB would be less than they presently enjoy and below the level at which the communities themselves would define essential service.

Making a presentation on behalf of the state of Minnesota and members of the Local Airline Service Action Committee (LASAC), Thief River Falls city attorney Bob Wurst stated "Minnesota communities would not accept service which would be inferior in any manner to the service now provided." According to Wurst, current LASAC president, the position applies to the type of aircraft and schedule frequency as

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

Food stamps issued by the U.S. department of agriculture through area county social services offices are a real plus for Thief River Falls food stores but a pain for local banking institutions. The program that makes business in the supermarket is monkey business once the coupons are deposited.

A survey of social services offices in Pennington, Marshall and Red Lake counties showed that bonus food stamps issued last year averaged more than 60 per cent of the total amount issued. Until the program changed December 1, food stamp recipients were required to purchase food stamps, receiving a bonus above the amount paid. On an average in the three counties, food stamp purchasers received more than $100 in stamps for each $40 spent for them in 1978 — a bonus in excess of $60.

In Pennington county the total food stamps issued amounted to $172,990 with $103,891 of that amount in bonus coupons. Marshall county issued $129,147 in bonus stamps out of a total of $198,800 issued and Red Lake county distributed $78,349 in bonus stamps among $120,442 in total stamps issued.

Thief River Falls businesses apparently benefitted from the programs in neighboring counties, however, as two Thief River Falls banks handled a total of $283,650 in food stamps during 1978 — or $110,660 more than the total stamps issued for Pennington county. For the most part, these stamps were spent in Thief River Falls stores.

While stores simply treat the stamps as cash when they make their bank deposits, the colorful little slips of paper become a king size headache at the financial institutions. They are handled many times through banks before winding up at the federal reserve bank where they are destroyed. Throughout the entire system of transfers the financial institutions receive no compensation from the government for the extra handling costs, except at the federal reserve level.

"We like them," once grocer told us quite frankly in a discussion about the food stamp program. "Obviously they mean plus business for us because the customer has more food money to spend. Sometimes its a little irritating for the wife when she sees a food stamp user with better food in a shopping

COUNTING FOOD STAMPS to balance accounts at the end of the day is a tedious job for Patty Ellingson at Northern state bank in Thief River Falls. The stamps are treated like cash in the banking system and that requires lots of handling — for which the bank receives no reimbursement.

MICROFILMING of food stamps ready for mailing to correspondent bank is Darlene Peterson of First Northwestern state bank in Thief River Falls. The stamps require a great deal of special handling at the banks and are microfilmed to provide a record for verification of handling. First Northwestern handled more than $200,000 in food stamps during 1978.

Homemakers Hold Luncheon, Fashion Show

TRF Allotted $110,812 For State Streets

Thief River Falls is one of 106 Minnesota communities sharing the 1979 municipal state-aid street (MSAS) fund of $30,846,555, according to Gordon Fay, director, office of state aid, Minnesota department of transportation (MnDOT).

Thief River Falls' allotment for 1979 is $110,812. Crookston will receive $149,582, Bemidji will get $158,467, East Grand Forks $82,868, and Detroit Lakes $85,544.

Two additional municipalities are sharing in the fund this year. Lake Elmo and Luverne became eligible for the first time during 1978.

The yearly apportionment, which represents nine per cent of the funds available for distribution from the highway user tax distribution fund, is alloted according to a prescribed formula to muncipalities having populations of 5,000 or more. The highway user tax distribution fund is composed of monies from the state motor fuel tax and motor vehicle registration fees.

The municipal state-aid street fund makes abailable to the communities $26,196,935 for construction and $4,649,620 for maintenance of the 1,850-mile MSAS system.

Heading the list of 1979 recipients is Minneapolis, eligible for $5,172,134.

Real Estate Tax Statements Sent This Week

Statements for Pennington county real estate taxes payable in 1979 are going into the mail beginning today, according to Ellsworth Jorgenson, county treasurer. All statements will be mailed this week.

Jorgenson noted that the owners of homestead property will receive a two-part statement. The pink portion of the statement is to be retained by the owner, with attached tabs to be submitted with first and second half payments. First half of the tax is due May 31 and the second half October 31.

Persons who desire a receipt for their tax payment should submit the entire pink copy which will be receipted and returned. Also enclosed with the homestead tax statement is a yellow copy which is to be used when filing for the property tax refund from the state of Minnesota.

The treasurer added that persons whose taxes are paid from escrow accounts at lending institutions will have no change in procedure this year. The treasurer's office still must send a statement of the taxes to the property owner who has the obligation to file his own property tax refund claim.

Persons who owned and occupied property on Jan. 1, 1979, and do not get a yellow state filing copy, should check with the treasurer's office at once. Also asked to contact the office within a few days are those who receive a wrong statement and those who do not receive a statement which they expect to receive.

Taxpayers who own non-homestead property will receive only a pink tax statement with tabs to be detached and returned with payment.

SOCIETY and CLUBS

Kathryn McDonagh And Jerry A. Linder Wed

Miss Kathryn Suzanne McDonagh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold McDonagh of rural Gatzke, became the bride of Jerry Allan Linder, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Linder of rural Litchfield, at a recent ceremony at the Gatzke gymnasium.

Rev. Alvin Bronson officiated at the double ring ceremony. At the piano was Mrs. Clifford Klamar, a friend of the bride. She played the traditional wedding march as the bride was escorted to the altar by her father. During the ceremony, Donavon Ruud, a friend of the bride, sand "If" and "The Wedding Prayer."

The bride was attired in a gown of white organza over satin styled with a gracefully flared skirt which formed its own chapel-length train. Chantilly lace, touched with sequins, trimmed the bodice, created the high stand-up collar and edged the skirt and train. Her long, full sleeves were gathered into wide cuffs with button and loop closures. To complete her ensemble, she wore a coordinating lace headpiece and elbow-length veil edged with matching lace. She carried a silk floral bouquet featuring yellow roses and white carnations, all tipped in orange and accented with greenery and a lace background. Flowing from the bouquet were white, narrow ribbon streamers with orange tipped yellow silk rosebuds tied at the end of each streamer.

Attending the bride as maid of honor was Inez Klamar, a friend. She wore a yellow knit floor-length gown fashioned with long, puffed sleeves with wide cuffs, and a self sash which tied in back. She carried five long-stemmed yellow silk roses, tipped in orange, and cascading yellow ribbon streamers.

Gary Flowers, rural Litchfield, a friend of the groom, was best man. Like the groom, he wore a brown tuxedo with dark brown velvet lapels, vest and bow tie, accented by a yellow ruffled shirt. His boutonniere was a white silk carnation tipped in orange. The groom's boutonniere was a yellow silk rose, also tipped in orange.

Serving as ushers were Keith McDonagh, brother of the bride, and Marvin Alberts, brother-in-law of the groom.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. McDonagh was attired in a pink floor-length gown accented with a corsage of three white silk roses and white ribbon trim. A similar corsage complemented the red floor-length gown worn by the groom's mother.

A reception in the gymnasium followed the ceremony. Mrs. Keith McDonagh, sister-in-law of the bride, registered the guests as Miss Rona Klamar and Miss Tammy Shultz, friends of the bride, served the punch.

Centering the serving table was a three-tiered round wedding cake supported by pillars. Wedding bells, miniature doves and yellow silk roses with orange accents, graced the base. Topping the cake were a minature bride and groom, backed by a wedding bell with a lace trimmed heart and a yellow silk rose. The cake was cut and served by Mrs. Emmett McDonagh, an aunt of the bride, and Mrs. Harold Klamar, a friend. It was made by Mrs. Klamar and Inez Klamar, who also made all the silk flowers for the wedding.

Pouring coffee were the groom's sisters: Mrs. Randy Johnson and Mrs. Marvin Albergs. Waitresses were Shelly McDonagh, sister of the bride; Michelle McDonagh, cousin of the bride, and Valerie Klamar, a friend. Photo, Orvis Haugen, Grygla.

Shyness: Dr. Discusses The People Phobia

Dr. Philip Zimbardo has discovered that shyness wears a variety of faces. Some shy people withdraw from life by avoiding everybody. Some are meek followers who keep their eyes cast down and never have opinions. Others are successful extroverts who secretly suffer from fears of inadequacy and rejection.

There are many shy alcoholics who are too insecure to give up their drinking crutch and too afraid of other people to seek help. And there are a few shy individuals who, like "Son of Sam" murderer, David Berkowwitz, explode without warning after years of unendurable lonliness and frustration.

In his National Institute of Mental Health NIMH-funded study of "The Social Psychology of Shyness," Zimbardo explains the phenomenon as a "people phobia," a social anxiety which stems from the victim's fear that everyone has negative opinions of him or her. Anxiety leads to nervousness; the nervous shy person is awkward or withdrawn in the company of others, which reinforces feelings that "I don't fit in."

In his studies Zimbardo found that there are the "publicly shy," whose self-doubts remain submerged behind a relatively calm exterior. The psychologist notes that the privately shy can set aside their fears to concentrate on the job at hand: "The demand to focus outward on a structured, clearly defined task seemed to district the privately shy from their self-consciousness."

Zimbardo is convinced that shy people can free themselves from their own fears: ". . . believing shyness to be a learned response style to social stimuli, we think it can be 'unlearned'." He favors "a general, 'problem-solving' attitude toward feared social encounters;" this could be developed with the aid of "homework" exercises like "saying 'hello' to strangers, asking for information or advice. . .making eye contact, starting and ending conversations as well as effectively interrupting. . ."

To avoid making children shy, Zimbardo suggests that parents not exhibit excessive criticism and pressure to succeed. He also feels that there should be a "revolutionary" culture-wide effort to replace competition and self-preoccupation with tenderness, sharing, and "greater trust in the relationship of children to their parents and other authorities."

Food Stamps Banking Pain, Business Plus

cart than we feel we can afford for our own family, but any welfare program probably has its irritations. Generally, we see very few attempts to abuse the program."

"Truthfully, it's a real pain," admitted Gene Beito, president of Northern state bank and a past president of the Minnesota Bankers association. "And what galls me is that it doesn't have to be so difficult, at least in my estimation. One uncomplicated change could save bankers across the country hundreds of thousands of dollars a year."

Beito proposes having the food stamp coupons handled as checks rather than cash. They could be MICR encoded (similar to the computer account number on a personal or business check) and zipped through electronic equipment in a fraction of the time it now takes to process them.

"When we treat the food stamps as cash, they are handled at least three times before they leave the bank," he explained. "The teller counts them when they are received in a deposit from the store. She sells them to a teller in charge of the food stamp program who counts them again and the vault teller counts them once more."

Darlene Peterson, who handles the food stamp program at First Northwestern state bank in Thief River Falls with Vivian Carlson, concurs that the stamps are a headache. Last year $205,650 in food stamps were handled under her direction — a lot of counting for stamps which are issued only in $1, $5 and $10 denominations.

Neither of the local banks specifically hired extra people to handle the food stamp volume but both agree that the coupons require considerable extra time for personnel who handle them.

Beito said that he has taken his suggestion that the stamps be treated as checks to the Minnesota bankers association, American bankers association and the U.S. department of agriculture by letter and in person to U.S. secretary of agriculture Bob Bergland. The banking associations and individual banks have also appealed to USDA to no avail. Beito said his checking into the system shows it to be "incredibly complicated".

While a dollar food stamp is the same as a cash dollar through the deposit and credit chain of the customer, food store, local bank and correspondent bank, the buck stops (no pun intended) at the federal reserve bank.

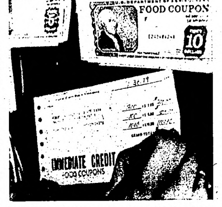
In our tracking of the food stamp trail we found that most people who handle the stamps are unfamiliar with what happens to the stamps after they are passed on to the next level. All people handling the stamps were willing to talk about their involvement until we hit First National Bank of Minneapolis, the correspondent bank, for Northern state bank of Thief River Falls. Because of their close association and proximity to the Ninth District federal reserve bank in Minneapolis, apparently, First National bank officials declined to be quoted.

Barb Loehrs, supervisor for currency sorting at the Ninth District federal reserve bank in Minneapolis, informed us that the "fed" is the end of the road for food stamps. The stamps are destroyed there and redemption certificates are issued for presentation to the food and nutrition service of the U.S. department of agriculture.

Loehrs said that the Ninth District bank in Minneapolis, which serves several midwest states, handles about $30 million in food stamps annually and has equipment and personnel to sort and count 100,000 to 150,000 food stamps a day. The federal reserve bank, which is not a government agency but does most of the government's financial business, is reimbursed by the government for its part in handling the food stamp program.

Loehrs also said that the food stamps are treated so much like cash that it is better at the federal reserve level to handle them as cash rather than as checks as Beito and others have suggested. That opinion, most likely, is why the suggestions from the lower ranks haven't received much consideration.

The question of where food stamps go when they die has now been answered. They meet their maker in the federal reserve system. During their lifetime, however, they irritate the issuers, revitalize the recipients, gratify the grocers, frustrate the financial folks and meet in Minneapolis. Who says a dollar doesn't go as far as it used to?



CREDIT SLIP for food coupons sent to the local bank's correspondent bank in the Twin Cities is filled out each time a shipment of the food stamps is made. Stamps are sent in multiples of 100 and are counted by hand for accuracy. In fact, the stamps are counted several times before they leave the bank because of transfers from one department to another. Food stamps received by the correspondent bank are credited as cash.

Former Clifford Jorde Home Moved to a New Location

The house built by the John P. Swanson family around the turn of the century, and which has been the home of the Clifford T. Jorde family about the past 38 years, until they built a new home this past summer, was moved Thursday last week to the ridge, south of the Alvin and Arvid Halvorson homes, on a piece of land formerly owned by Harold J. Berg. The old house was extensively remodeled after the Jordes purchased the farm. The sills under the house were tamarack hauled by team and sleigh from the tamarack swamps northeast of Holt by John P. Swanson and his brother, Charley. The sills are still in good condition.

The house was purchased from Jordes by John Peterson of Peterson Lumber Company.

Sunlight
Strong, direct sunlight will weaken most drapery fibers, and even indirect sun can be damaging. Lined draperies will resist damage from sun better than unlined draperies; be sure to choose only quality lining fabrics. Sun can also cause colors to fade. Rotate draperies from side to side and from sunny to shady windows to equalize sun damage. Regular cleaning will stretch your draperies' life span, so let us help to keep them at their best!

Happiness Is The Times

Walter Dairy Herd Leads Co. In Production

Ray and Roger Walter's dairy herd led the Pennington county dairy herd improvement association on average test for the month of December, according to Jerry Hamre, supervisor. Their herd averaged 50.6 pounds of milk and 1.90 pounds of butterfat a day for the month.

Second place herd in December belonged to Knute Nesland, and averaged 47.1 pounds of milk and 1.61 pounds of butterfat.

Other herds in the top 10 for December were from the following farms with daily milk and butterfat production listed respecively: Marvin Koop, 43.3 and 1.74; Clarence Swanson, 41.9 and 1.63; Mylo Carlson, 41.9 and 1.59; Orlan Stolaas, 39.9 and 1.40; Gordon Wetterlund and son, 39.0 and 1.50; Myron Erickson, 38.5 and 1.51; Roy Nelson, 37.8 and 1.47; and Duane Krohn, 37.6 and 1.42.

Hamre points out that herd averages are affected by the number of dry cows in the herd since the amount of milk or butterfat produced is averaged out over all the cows. This gives the farmer a record of his herd's earning power for the month. If many dry cows are included in the herd, the average for the month may be low even if cows in production are high volume producers.

There were 28 DHIA herds on test and 4 O.S. in the month of December. There were 21 cows which completed 305-day records of more than 600 pounds of butterfat in December. Owners were Darrow Lundeen and sons, Merle Lundeen, Myron Erickson, Warren and Lowell Hamrick, Mylo Carlson, Clarence Swanson, Robert Rausch, Earl Erickson, Duane Vatsaas, Martin Hanson, Gary Boughton, Knute Nesland and the Swanson Bros. farm.

Include Fargo In Two-Year Army Program

Department of army announced recently that it has expanded a new two-year enlistment program to include the area covered by the Fargo area recruiting command. In this special program the army will test a two-year enlistment option for a limited number of enlistees who meet specific criteria. Shortest term of enlistment was previously three years.

Option is designed to make enlistment for the basic combat skills more attractive to those young men and women who in prior years enlisted to take advantage of the G.I. bill, discontinued Dec 31, 1976. An enhanced veterans educational assistance program (VEAP) will be offered to some of the soldiers who enter the army under this program.

To be eligible for two-year enlistment, with the duty assignment being in Europe for the area enlistees, the applicant must:

- Have no prior military service.
- Be a high school graduate.
- Score in the upper mental categories (I-IIIA) on the army's enlistment examination.
- Enlist in a combat or combat related military occupational specialty as determined by army needs.
- Serve four years in the individual ready reserve after release from two years of active duty.

The two-year enlistment offer will only be available in the Fargo area for a limited time. Enlistees must enter active duty on or before March 31, 1979. Fargo area covers all of North Dakota and the Northwestern 24 counties in Minnesota.

Under the basic VEAP, the government contributes $2 to the soldier's educational fund for every dollar the individual contributes. To be eligible for the basic program, a soldier must contribute between $50 and $75 per month for 12 consecutive months. In addition to those amounts, the Army will place another $2,000 in the education fund of an eligible two-year enlistee. This allows a soldier in a two-year option with the VEAP and the bonus to accumlate up to $7,400 for educational expenses. Individual has 10 years from the time of separation from active duty to use the fund.

Bishop Balke To Visit School Here Tuesday

Bishop Victor Balke will visit St. Bernard's school next Tuesday and celebrate a 9:30 a.m. Mass in observance of Catholic schools week to be held February 4-10. Children from the school will participate in the Mass with banners, gifts, commentary and readings.

Mayor Bob Carlson has proclaimed the week which will open Sunday with school children participating in all three Masses at St. Bernard's church. The junior CYO will sponsor pancake breakfasts after each Mass. On Monday, Rev. James Bernauer, principal Charles Walrath and kindergarten teacher Jane Safar will be interviewed on the local radio station.

At 11 a.m. Tuesday Bishop Balke, Mayor Carlson, superintendent of public schools Dr. William Corliss and members of the St. Bernard's school board will be guests at the school lunch. Msgr. A. I. Merth of Crookston, the school's founder, was invited but is unable to attend due to illness. Parents of St. Bernard's school children are also invited to the dinner.

Open house for the parents and public will be held Wednesday, February 7, and a special invitation is extended to preschoolers to visit the kindergarten.

In his proclamation, Mayor Carlson noted that next to the profound influence of the home, "there is no greater impact upon a child's life than what he or she receives in school. I know that St. Bernard's school is demanding, supportive and caring and proud to help build the family at school, at home and in the community."

Members of the St. Bernard's school board are Jackie Schwietz, chairman; Jerry Spinner, Terry Courneya, Ruth Brunkhorst, Bob Kleinvachter and Brian Walker.

Set Hearing On Competitive Foods Feb. 6th

U.S. department of agriculture (USDA) has postponed a plan submitted last April that, if impelmented, would have restricted the sale of candy, sodas, frozen desserts, chewing gum and other competitive foods sold in schools in Minnesota and nationwide that participate in the national school lunch program.

In making the announcement, assistant secretary of agriculture Carol Tucker Foreman said the department will be holding three hearings nationwide, including the Detroit hearing, to elicit public input on the new proposal which is expected to be implemented in time for the next school year. Last year, more than 559,000 Minnesota school children participated in the national school lunch program each day.

The hearing in Detroit is being held on Feb. 6, 1979, at the Henry Ford hospital, which is located at 2799 West Grand Boulevard. The hearing will begin at 9 a.m., in the hospital's Robin C. Buerki auditiorium, and will be chaired by assistant secretary Foreman.

Foreman indicated the department is holding the hearing to gain additional public participation and opinion on how to more effectively implement a recent law which gives the department the authority to regulate the sale of competitive foods sold in schools. The department is urging persons to attend and present their views at the meeting. Those wishing to testify or attend the hearing should contact Bill Hairston, 231 West Lafayette Street, in Detroit, MI., (313) 266-4930; or Frank Johnson, 536 South Clark Street, Room 966, Chicago, IL., (312)353-1044.

Arthritis Is Found In One Of 7 People

Arthritis, which cripples more Minnesotans than any other disease, hits one person in seven, according to the Arthritis foundation. The question of why this person, rather than one of the other six, has long puzzled scientists.

Recently certain inherited clues have come to light, through Arthritis foundation research. Persons suffering from rheumatoid arthritis and ankylosing spondylitis have been found to have cell markers that can distinguish them from the general population. These markers are inherited from one's parents.

A foundation spokesman pointed out that what seems to be inherited is a possible predisposition for the disease, and not the disease itself. By no means all people with the marker get arthritis, but those who do very often turn up with the tell-tale markers in their cells.

During February the Arthritis foundation has a message on arthritis and heredity that may be heard by calling the foundation's toll-free number, 1-800-552-1278.

In most Minnesota communities, the Arthritis foundation and its services are supported by the United Fund.

Silverton

The Silverton 4-H Club met January 11 at the Vern Spengler residence. The meeting was called to order by president Melody Rupprecht and the flag pledges were said. For roll call we had to tear something out of paper that reminded us of winter. The secretary's and treasurer's reports were read and approved. For old business, thank yous were given to all members who visited Kees rest home and Hanson Boarding home. Under new business, host families are needed and on February 3rd there will be a Public Speaking Contest and a foods workshop. Happy birthday was sung to Brenda Russel, Ricky Peterson, Karol Altapeter, David Altapeter, Penny Jorde, and Dale Rupprecht.

Demonstrations were given by Daryl Rupprecht on potatoes and protecting them, and Virginia Knutson on valentine decorations. Project talks were given by Melody Rupprecht on junior leadership, and Deb Torgerson and Sue Peterson on home environment and indoor gardening. Candy Rupprecht also gave an educational program on judging.

For recreation, a guessing game on the paper tearing of a winter object for roll call was played. Kim Battelson was the winner.

MN. Is First In Timothy Production

Minnesota again led the nation in the 1978 farm production of timothy seed and ranked second in production of red clover seed. Combined, these two important forage seed crops represent an estimated farm value of over $7.1 million, among the highest on record.

Last year's production of timothy seed, according to the state-federal crop and livestock reporting service of the Minnesota department of agriculture, was 11,515,000 pounds. That represented almost two-thirds of the national production.

At a preliminary estimated average price of $42.50 per 100 pounds, the state's 1978 timothy seed crop has a farm value of $4,894,000.

Red clover seed harvested in Minnesota totaled 3.85 million pounds and represented over 12 per cent of the national production, second only to Oregon's nearly 4.9 million pounds.

Estimated farm value of Minnesota's 1978 red clover seed, at the preliminary market price average of $57.50 per 100 pounds, is $2,214,000.

Last year's production was Minnesota's biggest since 1972 for timothy seed and biggest since 1973 for red clover seed.

PIONEER TALES

from the Pennington County Historical Society

by Inga Geving

This is our first letter in 1979. First we want to thank the Times and K.T.R.F. for the help and support they have given us in the past.

Many improvements were made this summer at Pennington pioneer village, such as reshingling the church and the Muzzy log house. The chinking was completed in the C.P. Swanson log house (Bray P.O.). The school house and the trim on the depot were painted.

At least four different organizations have agreed to restore a building or a room. It will be interesting to see what they will do.

A special gift of $15 was received from the Rosewood Homemakers. Thank you!

If you have old doors we could use them; call us if you have doors or windows.

We are starting the second volume of "Pioneer Tales". There have been several requests, so if you wish to add to the history or your first story you may do so. We will be sending out letters soon. We received a letter from Molde, Norway, and a history book that was compiled in mostly Norwegian. In this book a write-up about Mrs. Earl Effinger's family was written in English. The are doing a second volume and asked for help. Someone had visited our historical village last summer and found it very interesting, the letter stated.

Also a letter from Westford, Mass addressed: To Town Historian.

Dear Sir:

How did your town get such a name as Thief River Falls? Please send any free information you can about this.

Minn. Cities Testified At CAB Hearing

well as to system for ticketing, reservations, marketing, passenger and freight handling and general management. The written LASAC position stated, "In no event should the aircraft be smaller than those now operated at the community." For Thief River Falls this would be the Convair 580 with a capacity of 48.

Testimony of the 11 Minnesota communities in attendance concurred with that of LASAC with representatives requesting and in some cases demanding, at least the level of service they now have. Beltrami county representative Al W. Maltais commented, "The quickest way to destroy rural America is to remove scheduled air service to small communities." He commended the CAB for taking time to meet with the local community representatives and stated that in order for them to understand the needs of northern Minnesota they have to "get to know the 'jack-pine savages' that live in that country."

Robert Anderson, chairman of the airport commission in International Falls, also emphasized the out-state Minnesota communities' dependence on transportation to the metropolitan area for economic survival. He relayed the experience of International Falls residents when that city's airport was closed over the summer for rebuilding and quoted a Koochiching county commissioner as saying, "After the airport closed down and the bus left town, garbage had better service than people did."

Criteria to be used by the CAB in defining essential service to a community includes isolation of the community and alternate modes of transportation. The majority of the Minnesota cities testifying emphasized the virtual void of alternate means of transportation and the extreme isolation of their communities. Thief River Falls, for example, has no passenger train service, once a day bus service and is six hours driving distance from the Twin Cities.

Emphasizing the isolation of International Falls, Anderson quipped, "International Falls is so remote that, when we had bus service, the bus backed into town." CAB members seemed to get the point and Chairman Cohen, who presided at the two-day hearing, commented that the Minnesota communities did have a problem the board had not heard expressed before.

CIVIL AERONAUTICS BOARD REGIONAL HEARING on essential air service programs for small communities was held in Minneapolis January 29-30 with five state participation. Pictured during a panel discussion on the needs of Minnesota communities are (left to right) Richard O'Melia, member of the civil aeronautics board; Marvin Cohen, chairman of the CAB who presided over the two-day hearing; Lawrence McCabe, assistant commissioner for aeronautics of the Minnesota department of transportation; Bob Wurst, Thief River Falls city attorney and president of the Local Airline Service Action Committee (LASAC); and Jim Vance, representative of Worthington. Under discussion was the extreme isolation of outstate Minnesota communities and the consideration this should be given in determining essential air service. Background maps chart distances from various small communities to the metropolitan business district.

Government subsidy for air service and aircraft size were two interrelated topics which also dominated a great portion of Monday's discussion. With government subsidies of approximately $1.5 million, North Central airlines serves 11 Minnesota communities with aircrafts varying in size from a 48 passenger Convair 580 to a 125 passenger DC-9. North Central has indicated that the small community lines in themselves are not profitable but they serve as feeders for flights from the Minneapolis-St. Paul hub airport.

Company policy of North Central states "As long as adequate subsidy support continues, North Central will continue to serve all small cities now being served." However, Dave Moran, North Central's vice president of sales and marketing, spoke to LASAC in early January and stated "North Central does not intend to get into a bidding war with carriers using smaller equipment than North Central."

The two fears Minnesota representatives expressed repeatedly at the Monday hearing was that if government subsidy ends North Central will discontinue service to the communities and will be replaced by a commuter service; and that, even with subsidy guaranteed for four more years, North Central might choose to halt service to the cities in order to cash in on the more lucrative routes. The assurance the cities hoped to receive and the CAB failed to give was a guarantee of federal subsidy in whatever amount was needed to retain the present level of service including aircraft of the same size now used.

The intention of the airline deregulation bill was, Chairman Cohen, explained, to let the market determine service levels. His question to Minnesota representatives was, "Do you want to be self sufficient, or do you want to be dependent indefinitely on government subsidies?"

Rejoinder of the Minnesota communities was that the past airline program made them dependent on the federal government and that they wanted to be assured they would have adequate time to adjust to the new program without derogation of service.

In his testimony for the city of Thief River Falls, Mayor Bob Carlson commented, "If we can subsidize the world, I think we should subsidize airlines to give rural America the service it needs."

By January 1, 1980 the CAB board must submit a report to congress on the "feasibility and appropriateness" of developing formulas by which state and local governments would share subsidy costs. LASAC, Thief River Falls and the remaining Minnesota cities represented all voiced the opinion that local and state governments were already sharing the cost of subsidy.

The written LASAC statement read, "Service to small communities is now being provided on a cost-sharing basis. The service could not exist without airports and the state and local governments to make substantial contributions to the construction, maintenance and operation of the airport. While airports are municipally owned, many of them serve travelers living outside the municipality and even outside the state."

Wurst pointed out that a survey at the Thief River Falls airport indicated that only 15 per cent of those boarding were from Thief River Falls which bears the brunt of the tax burden for airport operation. Mayor Carlson stated that approximately 50 communities were served by the Thief River Falls airport and that it was a "regional" airport. If the community airports were going to be expected to further subsidize airline service Carlson felt there ought to be a method for taxing a wider base of the area population.

Mate to the subject of subsidy is the determination of aircraft size. If subsidy is halted or if North Central would choose to discontinue service to its Minnesota cities, what size and safety standards would a replacement service be required to meet? LASAC and its member cities say the replacement service should meet the standards of the present service. The organization asks the CAB board "to recognize that there is a psychological factor prevalent in the minds of a substantial segment of the population which equates size with safety." If a commuter aircraft is designated as a replacement for present carriers, a large number of citizens will simply not use it, according to the Minnesota representative's testimony Monday.

Duluth representative John Grinden commented, "I think commuter airlines will work in Minnesota, but not as a replacement for the DC-9, Convair 580 or 727." Executive director of the Minneapolis-St. Paul metropolitan airports commission Raymond G. Glumack presented significant reasons why he too felt the commuter airlines could not be viewed as replacement for larger lines.

A recent determination in Jamestown, N.D. by the CAB board allows Northwest Airlines to cease service to Jamestown, with Air Wisconsin commuter service to provide substitute service. Northwest Airlines provided one flight per day in a Boeing 727 aircraft to Minneapolis-St. Paul. Air Wisconsin will provide three round trips with a Swearingen Metroliner. For the Minneapolis - St. Paul International Airport Glumack says, this means "an addition of three incursions into terminal airspace placing a greater load on approach and departure aides, requiring additional communication time and heavier use of runways and taxiways, as well as increasing the demand on terminal requirements."

The concern of the metropolitan airport commission is that if single city service is multipled to many of the points now served, there will be a "saturation of the Minneapolis-St. Paul terminal airspace, the airside, groundside and environmental capacity" of the airport. The commission asks *that the ability of the Min*neapolis-St. Paul hub airport to safely handle increased operations of commuter scheduled air taxi type operations be considered when CAB makes essential service decisions.

Outcome of the regional hearing and the CAB's essential service determination for the various Minnesota cities will not be known for some time, but a preview letter from Cohen to the states and communities participating in the regional hearing stated, "For many communities this (the new program) will mean more frequent service, but most of this service will not be provided on the currently available commercial jets that most people have become accustomed to. In times of inflation and budgetary scarcity, the board cannot subsidize jet service if alternative quality service with small equipment is available at lower cost to the taxpayer. We expect, if recent experience holds true, that a considerable proportion of essential air service will be provided by unregulated, unsubsidized carriers responding to market demand."

In summarizing the Minnesota cities' position Monday, Bob Wurst stated, "We want subsidies to end. But if they can't without great deterioration of service — then no, we don't want it." Voicing the still unrelieved and justifiable apprehension of the Minnesota representatives Wurst made one final plea, "Don't put air service to our cities up to the lowest bidder."

Conservation Directory Is Now Available

Twenty-fourth edition of the conservation directory, a comprehensive listing of all organizations, agencies, and officials concerned with natural resource use and management in the U.S. and Canada, has just been published by the National Wildlife Federation.

As the largest such guide in the U.S., the 271-page 1979 conservation directory lists the names and addresses of about 1,650 conservation and environmental organizations and more than 11,000 individuals — from the African wildlife leadership foundation to zero population growth, inc., from the northeastern bird banding association to the Guam science teachers association.

The directory lists key personnel in federal and state agencies and departments, members of Congress and those congressional committees concerned with conservation and natural resources; conservation and environmental offices of foreign governments; U.S. and Canadian fish and fame administrators; and national, provincial and territorial citizens' agencies and groups.

There are sections on the major U.S. colleges and universities which offer professional training for careers in conservation and natural resources; wildlife, environmental and other conservation publications; and sources of audio-visual materials. The annual publication also lists all U.S. national wildlife refuges, forests, parks and seashores.

Copies of the 1979 conservation directory are available for $4 from the National Wildlife Federation, 1412 16th St., NW, Washington, DC 20036.

Wheat, Feed Grain Sign-Up Starts Feb. 15

"Starting February 15, we will begin accepting intentions to participate in the 1979 feed grain and wheat program," states Harold Kalsnes, chairman of the Pennington county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASCS) committee.

All farmers planting feed grain and-or wheat for harvest in 1979 are eligible to participate. As in 1978, program participation is voluntary. However, farmers must file their intentions to participate during the sign-up period to be eligible for program benefits.

"These benefits include price support loans on all eligible commodities produced, deficiency and disaster payments for barley, corn, sorghum, wheat or upland cotton on the participation farms," Kalsnes said. "Farmers who participate are also eligible to use the grain reserve when it is open."

Provisions of the corn and sorghum program include a 10 per cent set-aside and a 10 per cent diversion. The wheat and barley program contain a 20 per cent set-aside requirement. Kalsnes said farmers may sign up for voluntary diversion payments on corn and sorghum. However, no advance voluntary diversion payments will be made for 1979 crops.

"Program participants help increase farm prices and also help to prevent an excessive buildup of wheat and feed grain stocks," he stated.

ASCS will accept applications for the 1979 program until April 16.

Real Estate Seminar Set February 21

Theodore J. Meyer, a member of the real property section of the Minnesota state bar association, will be joined by Michael J. Best, vice president, variety homes, Inc. and Jack Rieke, chairman of the board of the Tower marketing corporation of Chicago, Ill. in presenting a continuing real estate education seminar entitled, "Broker's Liability—A Growing Problem".

This one-day program will be held 8:30 a.m. to 5:15 p.m., Wednesday, February 21, at the Ambassador motor hotel, St. Louis Park. Program will investigate numerous causes and remedies for the increasing number of lawsuits being filed against real estate brokers. It has been approved for 6.5 credit hours of continuing real estate education by Minnesota's securities commissioner, John L. Larson.

Seminar is sponsored by National Practice institute, a continuing education institute which is dedicated to providing real estate professionals with the highest quality learning experience possible. For more information, call (612) 338-1977.

MGRI Asks Legislature To Finance Bridges

"There's a growing gap in Minnesota between available funds for road work and current needs, and that gap is often spanned by a deficient bridge," according to Robert M. Johnson, executive director for Minnesota Good Roads, Inc. (MGRI).

Legislature will be asked this session to continue Minnesota's successful bridge funding program which expires June 30, 1979. MGRI is calling for continuation of this program, considered one of the best in the nation.

"It's imperative that the program be continued without distrubing any of the existing or proposed road improvement projects," said Johnson. "A good road with an impassable bridge is every bit as bad as an impassable road with a good bridge."

According to figures released recently by the Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT), applications are currently pending to replace or renew 900 local deficient bridges at an estimated cost of $82 million.

"Without a continuation of the bridge replacement program, funds will not be available to replace these bridges on all road systems," said Johnson.

Minnesota Good Roads is an organization of more than 1,500 concerned citizens working together to insure adequate funding to maintain the quality of Minnesota's road system.

THE VOICE of BUSINESS

U.S. Chamber of Commerce

The leadership of the labor movement has yet to come to grips with two serious problems which profoundly concern the American people: labor violence and inflation. This reluctance has led many to question the viability of labor's leadership and to ask whether the labor hierarchy is really promoting the best interests of its own membership Consider these questions in light of two recent examples.

Last July, the situation in Memphis was reminiscent of a war zone. Members of the firefighters' union, dissatisfied with their contract negotiations, walked off their jobs, leaving the city helpless. Authorities rushed in the national guard, but violence spread. Stores were ruined, ambulances sabotaged, fire trucks attacked and firebombers ran wild. Miraculously, no one was killed. But by the time the strikers agreed to go back to work, the city had suffered tremendous losses. During the three day rampage, more than 400 fires burned (of which 90 per cent were said to have been started by the firefighters themselves), 100 businesses were destroyed and damages exceeded $5 million.

In November, more violence – this time in New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio and Indiana. The members of a small truckers' group, FASH – Faternal Association of Steel Haulers – went on strike to achieve collective bargaining independence from the larger Teamsters union. Notwithstanding the possible legitimacy of their grievances; the FASH members tried to shut down every steel mill from the East coast to the Mississippi by attacking the Teamster drivers. Their method? Smash the windshields of the trucks with rocks and bricks and shoot out the tires. The FASH members finally obeyed a court order and returned to work, but not until the Teamsters had demonstrated their ability to withstand the violence and ride out the strike.

Now, obviously many nonviolent private sector strikes are legal; but just as clearly, most public sector strikes are illegal and unfairly threaten the lives and property of innocent Americans. That is why a willingness to accept responsibility is such a vital ingredient of labor leadership. The union leaders who have exhibited this kind of responsibility — and there are many who have -- merit allegiance from their members and esteem from the public.

But what of those examples already mentioned, and all the illegal public service strikes nationwide where violence and lawlessness are becoming commonplace; and where the protection of individual lives and of public and private property have been subordinated to the satisfaction of labor's demands? Why have there been so few calls by the presidents of locals and nationals pleading that this violence and intimidation, which belongs in another century, be halted? Is it any wonder that the public feels resentment, and that a backlash against labor's leadership has set in?

But perhaps it is the typical union member himself, holding a productive job in the private economy and proudly wearing the union label, who must ask the key question: "Aside from a possible headache, what's in all this for me?" Indeed, what?

Certainly the worker gains nothing by identifying with these illegal, unpopular public strikes. But the question concerns as much his pocketbook as his prestige.

Americans have never disputed that law-abiding police officers and firefighters deserve reasonable wages for their dangerous work. But in recent years, labor's leadership has been pushing for a costly expansion of public union membership in many other areas of government. The American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees — AFSCME — for example, has now grown so big that it has its own ads on television. What is so ironic, is that labor's officials seem intent on expanding the size of government when they know full well their own members in the private sector will have to pay the bill.

Indeed, when labor's leadership pushes for more government spending, new programs and higher deficits, the people who usually benefit are the members of its rapidly growing government employee unions. The people who automatically pay through higher taxes and inflation, while only rarely receiving the benefits, are the union members working in the private economy. But those private sector employees are getting upset. That is why they endorsed Proposition 13, even after their leadrship had bitterly condemned it.

Isn't it time that we all started granting a higher priority to the interests of tax producers than to tax consumers? Isn't it time that business and labor join forces to demand policies that will protect the pocketbooks of working Americans, and permit them to climb the economic ladder and gain new jobs, bigger paychecks, better pensions -- in essence, a better life for their families?

I know we can make it happen, because America is still a dynamic country with magnificent, untapped potential. But it will not happen as long as labor's leadership so stubbornly and forcefully insists there is only one road leading to economic salvation — a road that both begins and ends in Washington, D.C.

Cuckoo Birds Are Lazy, Not Crazy

Word "cuckoo" may be synonymous with "crazy" in American slang, but the European bird known as the cuckoo is far from crazy, according to Ranger Rick's Nature Magazine.

In fact, the cuckoo is so clever that it tricks other birds into raising its young, the National Wildlife Federation monthly reports in its current issue. Apparently convinced that parenthood is for the birds — other birds — the mother cuckoo lays her eggs in other birds' nests, then flies away forever.

That way, the cuckoos avoid the work of building nests and also the responsibilities of parenthood — such as feeding their young. It's a lazy, parasitic life, by human standards, but it seems to agree with the bird that is famous for its monotonous call and its appearance in Swiss wall clocks.

European cuckoo, is so clever, according to the Ranger Rick report, that it doesn't pick just any bird to raise its offspring.

While different varieties of European cuckoos lay eggs of different colors, each cuckoo lays her eggs only in the nests of birds whose eggs most nearly resemble her own. A cuckoo that lays bluish eggs lays them in nests of a warbler that lays bluish eggs. One whose eggs are speckled deposits them only in the nest of another bird who lays speckled eggs.

If there is another egg in the chosen nest, the female cuckoo carries it away or swallows it, explains Ranger Rick. So although she won't be around when her egg is hatched, the mother cuckoo plans for her offspring's future by making sure it won't need to compete for food.

In keeping with its mother's plan, a newly hatched cuckoo pushes any remaining eggs or other young birds out of the nest. It edges anything in the nest onto its back, and then rises up until the egg or young bird tumbles over the edge of the nest.

This ejection of all rivals is important to the young cuckoo, for its often grows to be much larger than its foster parents and needs all the food they would normally bring to their own brood of four or five.

What about the European cuckoo's American cousins? "American cuckoos, at least, have better manners," says Ranger Rick. They build their own rather flimsy nests of twigs in which they lay their own eggs. And they raise their own young. They also perform a valuable service because they feed on destructive tent caterpillars.

Like their European counterparts, they aren't cuckoo.

Cancer Answers

"Cancer Answers" is a weekly column sponsored by the Red River Valley Medical society, the Red River Valley unit of the American Cancer society and the Thief River Falls Times. Questions may be mailed to the editor, Thief River Falls Times. All questions will be answered, and those of a general interest will be published in "Cancer Answers."

Dear Cancer Answers:

A friend of mine has been diagnosed with chronic lymphocytic leukemia. The disease was discovered by accident when she was having some blood tests. After four months she's doing "ok" even though her white blood count is much too high. I don't understand why she isn't being treated for this. I thought cancer was supposed to be curable when found and treated early.

Barb

Dear Barb:

Although many cancers are most successfully managed when they are caught and treated early, the nature of chronic lymphocytic leukemia is a bit different. It affects the blood and cannot be treated surgically. This disease usually occurs in older people and progresses slowly.

When chronic leukemia is accidentally discovered and there are no symptoms as in you friend's case, it may be left untreated. Then the patient is simply examined at regular intervals.

The course of chronic lymphocytic leukemia is highly variable. Patients whose disease is discovered by chance may continue in an untroubled state for many months or years. Hopefully this will be the case for your friend.

On the other hand, if the disease progresses and symptoms gradually appear, then your friend may receive chemotherapy or radiation therapy.

Dear Cancer Answers:

What about moles in children? My five-year-old has developed several new moles lately. Is this normal or could it be cancer?

Mrs. M.

Dear Mrs. M.:

It is quite normal for a child of five to develop new moles. Melanoma, a form of skin cancer usually characterized by its dark brown or black appearance, is relatively uncommon among adults and develops even less frequently in children. So, you really do not need to worry about your child's moles unless there is an unusual change in size or color, or ulceration or bleeding occurs.

The one exception in children concerns a very unusual pigmented area that would be present at birth. It typically involves extensive areas of the skin, frequently in the bathing trunk area, and frequently it is covered with excessive hair. Removing this type of rare skin lesion usually is recommended only after careful study over a period of time. The doctors must weigh the possible malignant potential of the suspicious area against the surgical risk of its removal. This type of problem, however, is not indicated in your five year old child.

Dear Cancer Answers:

I'm 45 years old and have been smoking a pack of cigarettes a day since I was 20. I've read all the reports about smoking and lung cancer, but it seems a little late in the game for me to quit after I've been smoking for 25 years. Besides, my 90-year-old uncle is as healthy as a horse and has smoked all his life. Still, I'm worried. Would it help to quit after all these years?

Paul R.

Dear Paul:

Indeed it would. The rate of lung cancer in ex-smokers gradually decreases with each year of nonsmoking, until it approaches that of people who have never smoked. And the risk begins to drop much more quickly than you might expect — probably within two years, and certainly within five.

If you stop smoking tomorrow, by the time you are 65 years old your risk of getting lung canedr should be about one-seventh of the risk of other men your age who have continued smoking a pack a day.

Your uncle has been lucky. Although scientists are finding that some people are more inclined to develop cancer than others, so far there is no way to identify ahead of time who fits into that category. In a sense, your uncle has played "Russian Roulette" and won. The death rate for those who smoke a pack or more a day is about double that of nonsmokers. So, by quitting you have everything to gain!

D-Day (Don't Smoke Day) is coming up soon for Minnesotans. This might give you just the incentive you need to stop smoking for good and multiply your chances of escaping lung cancer by seven. On January 25, thousands of Minnesotans will join together in a massive anti-smoking campaign. For the next few weeks, smokers who would like to kick the habit will be signing pledge cards agreeing to abstain from smoking on January 25. They are being encouraged to make D-Day the date for ditching the smoking habit for good.

If you would like a D-Day pledge card, check with some of the local groups promoting D-Day in your area or call the Minnesota Cancer Information Service, 1-800-582-5262.

NCC Faces Key Game Tonight

Outcome of tonight's (Wednesday) hockey game matching Northland community college against Crookston at 7:30 in the Thief River Falls sports arena will play a key role in the MJCAA regular season championship hopes of the Northmen.

Looking for its first-ever MJCAA pennant, Northland must overcome a hot Hibbing team that solidified its hold on first place with a 6-5, 6-2 weekend sweep at Crookston. It was a quick rematch of a series played in Hibbing a week earlier in which the Cardinals bombed the Trojans 10-4, 13-8.

Hibbing collected eight power play goals in the two games played at Crookston last weekend, scoring four in the 6-5 Friday win that was decided by a Mike Gager power play goal with just 19 seconds remaining. There were five misconduct calls and six two-minute penalties in the third period of the game, with Crookston picking up four penalties in a 19-second span.

Two first period power play goals then carried Hibbing to a 6-2 Saturday victory.

"Hibbing is the strongest team we've played this year," said Crookston coach Mick Metzer.

Hibbing coach Frank Cantani, figuring he's coaching the best team he's had in eight years at the post, says the Cardinals are a much improved team since they lost a 6-5, 5-3 season-opening series to Northland back on Dec. 8-9.

That sweep over Hibbing made Northland an instant MJCAA contender. But to keep pace with the Cardinals, the Northmen need a win tonight in a game that rates a complete toss-up and then must sweep a struggling Mesabi team this weekend in the sports arena.

Three wins this week would set the stage for a final week MJCAA showdown when the Northmen will play at Crookston Wed., Feb. 7, and then play at Hibbing Saturday and Sunday, Feb. 10 and 11.

A Feb. 17-18 series here against Rochester will be a nonconference set.

Miscellaneous

+ Probably the highest compliment given to the fine Wadena high school basketball team that beat Thief River Falls 82-57 Friday came from Lincoln high school hockey coach Wendell Grand who said, "I wish we could move the puck as well as they move the basketball." The Indians were indeed impressive. What has to rank as the most puzzling score of the year came the following night when unhearalded East Grand Forks upset Wadena 54-48.

+ Bemidji Pioneer sports writer Cliff Morlan says, "With Jim Jensen back in town after dropping out of South Dakota State, cage fans are wondering if the 6-8 former Lumberjack center might try it with the (BSU) Beavers. Jim had started early at SDSU but in recent weeks has been a back-up man for the front line. Jim has had some back miseries that have bothered him."

+ Fergus Falls community college was a 72-67 basketball winner over Crookston Thursday when the Trojans failed to score a single point off 20 Spartans turnovers.

+ Section 8 high school hockey publicist Don Olson of KTRF radio rates Roseau, Fergus Falls and Thief River Falls as the top three Section 8 teams, in that order. The Prowlers will be at Roseau Sat., Feb. 10 with Fergus Falls visiting Thief River Falls in the final game of the 1978-79 regular season, Fri., Feb. 23.

Crookston and Mesabi will provide the Northland community college hockey team with MJCAA competition this week in the Thief River Falls sports arena.

Northland hosts rival Crookston tonight (Wednesday) in a key 7:30 p.m. game. Mesabi will be here for a weekend series that includes games Saturday night at 7:30 and Sunday afternoon at 1:30.

The Northmen, 6-6 for the year and 6-4 in MJCAA play, have split with both the Trojans and Norsemen. In a weekend series at Virginia two weeks ago, Northland took an 11-7 first game victory but dropped the rematch 6-3. Playing single Wednesday night games against the Trojans, the Northmen won 11-7 in Thief River Falls before losing 6-1 at Crookston last week.

Featuring one of the most productive lines in the MJCAA, Northland's all-Thief River Falls trio of Doug Dallmann, Gordy Markstrom and Mike Malberg have accumulated 88 points in just 10 MJCAA games.

Dallmann leads the Northmen in scoring with 20 goals and 14 assists for 34 points in league play. Markstrom is 13-17 for 30 points and Malberg 7-17 for 24.

There's quite a gap between those three and the rest of the Northland scorers, though. Bill Olson, Karl Chromy and Steve Geatz rank next in line with nine points apiece.

Section Eight Hockey Scoring Race Is Close

Red Lake Falls' Dennis LaCoursiere and Jim Violette continue to rank 1-2 in the Section 8 high school hockey scoring charts, but a third member of the high-scoring Eagles — Mark Harren — dropped all the way to eighth place in this week's release after holding down the number three position earlier.

East Grand Forks still jumped out to an early lead, however, and held off Thief River Falls 4-3.

Prowlers Host Jacks, Falcons

A rare home court weekend doubleheader awaits the Lincoln high school basketball team. Thief River Falls will host long-time athletic rival Bemidji Friday and will entertain a new schedule addition, Fertile-Beltrami, Saturday. Both games have 7:30 p.m. starting times.

Thief River Falls will try to even its season record to 7-7 and square its Northwest Athletic Conference mark at 3-3 in Friday's NWAC clash with Bemidji. The Prowlers claimed a come-from-behind 48-46 overtime victory over the Lumberjacks earlier this year.

Bemidji blew a lead in the final seconds of regulation in that one. A repeat performance occurred Friday when the Lumberjacks lost a 50-48 overtime game to Grand Rapids, lowering their record to 4-9. Bemidji is 2-2 in the NWAC.

Bemidji led Grand Rapids 48-46 and had the ball out of bounds with five seconds remaining. But Grand Rapids' Steve Renner stole the inbounds pass and quickly passed to Tim Graupmann who scored his only points of the night as the buzzer for a 48-48 stalemate. Renner then scored the only basket in overtime.

On Saturday Thief River Falls will be playing its fifth game against Pine-to-Prairie Conference competition. The Prowlers earlier beat PTP teams Ada 67-51 and Mahnomen 64-34 and 62-57 in overtime while losing to Bagley 80-64.

Fertile-Beltrami lost three times last week as the Falcons' record dropped to 6-6. Fertile-Beltrami lost to NWAC member Crookston 52-49, PTP foe Waubun 71-56 and McIntosh-Winger 63-47.

Fosston is the Pine-to-Prairie Conference leader after beating Bagley 64-59 last week. The Greyhounds are 13-0. The Flyers are 12-2, with both losses coming at the hands of Fosston.

Nordics Down Tigers 55-46

Marshall County Central padded a narrow 41-40 third quarter lead by out-scoring Stephen 14-6 in the final eight minutes Tuesday to win a 55-46 high school basketball game that improved the Nordics' season record to 9-7.

"We played fairly well," pointed out winning coach Ron Ueland. "We played good, steady ball all the way. We felt it was a real good win for us."

Marshall County Central built a 13-9 first quarter lead but trailed 26-24 at halftime

Playing without starting guards Mark Halverson (injured) and Ray Kvalvog (illness), the Nordics relied on a 20-point, eight-rebound performance by Kevin Anderson. Jim Sethre contributed 13 points and Dan Engen 11. Keith Chwialkowski led Stephen with 15 points.

Marshall County Central enjoyed a strong shooting and equally strong rebounding game. The Nordics shot an even 50 per cent from the field where they connected on 19 of 38 attempts and then finished with a slight 23-22 rebound edge against the bigger Tigers who shot 40 per cent from the field, hitting 20 of 50 shots. The Nordics also shot free throws well, sinking 17 of 26 chances. The Tigers made six of eight gift tosses.

A tough Saturday afternoon assignment awaits the Nordics who play a Lake of the Woods ball club at Baudette beginning at 2 p.m. with junior varsity action. The Bears own a three-year, 31-game home court winning streak that includes an impressive 67-46 drubbing of International Falls, Tuesday.

Prowlers Lose Key Section 8 Game . . .

Green Wave Starts Fast, Outlasts TRF Rally, 4-3

Thief River Falls' hopes for a spot among the top four regular season Section 8 finishers who will earn seeded berths into the 1979 Section 8 high school hockey tournament received a jolt Tuesday when the Prowlers rallied, but came up short in a 4-3 loss to East Grand Forks.

"We're in trouble," admitted Thief River Falls coach Wendell Grand who has his eyes on the Section 8 point standings that will determine post-season tournament berths. Top four regular season point-getters earn seeded spots in the March 2-9 Section 8 tournament at East Grand Forks. The others must advance through sub section play. "It'll be an unbelievably close race for positions 2-3-4, maybe all the way down to 7," noted Grand who has conceded first place to Roseau.

East Grand Forks stunned the Thief River Falls sports arena crowd with a three-goal outburst in the first half of the opening period. The fast start enabled the speedy Green Wave to carry a seemingly comfortable 4-1 lead into the third period that dwindled to 4-3 and provided some of the most exciting hockey of the season.

"When you give up three goals in the first half of the first period, obviously you're in for a long night," explained Grand. "We totally dominated the second half of the period — it was a mismatch. But it was too late."

The game was less than a minute old when East Grand Forks' Tom Mishler came through the middle to beat Thief River Falls goalie Bill Jury with a rising 19-foot wrist shot to the glove side.

With both teams skating a man short, Myles Hart intercepted a Thief River Falls breakout pass and then beat both defenseman Joe Dee and Jury with a low drive from 25 feet out at 6:09.

It became 3-0 two minutes later when Jury did not handle a bouncing puck shot from the blue line by Ben Corbid as the Green Wave skated shorthanded.

"Jury was shaky at the beginning," noted East Grand Forks coach Buzz Olson. "We haven't seen that happen before."

Jury returned to the form that's made him one of the top goaltenders in Section 8 when he robbed Wally Cash at point blank range minutes after Corbid's goal. The power play rebound came right to Tim Mishler, but he hit the pipe with his shot that could have made it a back-breaking 4-0.

Instead, Thief River Falls picked up a power play opportunity and got on the scoreboard when Mark Huot rifled a slap shot from the point past East Grand Forks' starting goalie Troy Moran at 11:05.

Green Wave rebuilt their three-goal lead after weathering a fierce Thief River Falls power play opportunity early in the second period. Tim Mishler scored his second goal of the game on a long slap shot at 12:46.

A pulsating third period featured a pair of shorthanded Thief River Falls goals scored by Scott Sabo and Todd Trickle spaced just 21 seconds apart.

Sabo turned in a brilliant individual effort to beat a defender and goalie Charlie Sheler with a deft piece of stickhandling at 5:27. Then, on the same East Grand Forks power play, Trickle beat an East Grand Forks skater to a long rebound off Jury that came out to center ice and closed in on Sheler for a backhand at 5:48.

A rash of penalties then added to the drama when a three-minute span of 3-on-3, 4-on-3 and 4-on-4 created one scoring opportunity after another from 6:37 to 9:26. The score remained unchanged, though, and even Jury's removal for an extra attacker in the final 38 seconds failed to produce the equalizer.

"That was a very good skating game by both teams," commented Olson. "That's got to be one of the fastest skating games in this arena all year."

Thief River Falls will take a 9-4 record to Moorhead Saturday for an 8:15 p.m. game. The Prowlers return home to host Crookston Tuesday. East Grand Forks, now 8-6, hosts Warroad in a key two-point Section 8 game Friday.

Free Throws By Flyers Topple Huskies 62-53

Fisher out-scored Goodridge by 13 points at the free throw line and the visiting Flyers dealt Goodridge its eighth straight loss, 62-53, in Polar Conference basketball action Tuesday.

Phil Wentzel poured in 30 points for Fisher, collecting 13 of the 23 Fisher field goals. The Flyers were out-scored 50-46 from the field, but sank 16 of 24 free throw attempts while Goodridge made only three of 11 gift tosses, missing all seven first half chances.

"There's what lost it for us," said Goodridge coach Rick Nelson, pointing to the free throw difference.

Goodridge led 16-14 at the end of the first quarter but fell behind 35-28 at halftime and trailed 50-41 at the end of the third quarter.

Four Goodridge scorers reached double figures as Randy Henrickson scored 17 points, Kevin Tharaldson 12, Gerry Sunsdahl 10 and Jeff Bakken 10, but Nelson said, "Right now, it looks like we're not playing enough team basketball."

Fisher was 23-for-59 from the field for 47 per cent. Goodridge was 25-for-65 from the floor for 38 per cent.

Now 5-9, Goodridge host area rival Grygla Saturday.

Northland 88, Crookston 78 . . .

Ball-Holding Tactics Net Different Results Tues.

There were times during Tuesday's Northland-Crookston college basketball game when both teams tried to hold the ball. The strategy worked for the host Northmen but backfired on the Trojans as Northland won 88-78 to retain a share of first place in the MJCAA Northwest Division race.

After Northland's Vince Parker scored to put the Northmen ahead 40-39 with 1:57 remaining in the first half, Crookston elected to go for a final half-ending shot — four times. The Trojans committed four of their 11 first half turnovers on their final four possessions to fall behind 46-39 as Parker and Keith Charbonneau both came up with steals and fast break layups and Northland center Jeff Neelan got into the act with a steal and a pass to Parker that completed the scoring with seven seconds left.

That ended Crookston's ball-holding maneuvers. The strategy was much more beneficial for the Northmen who decided to sit on a 70-62 lead with five minutes remaining in the game. The Northland delay game forced the Trojans out of a zone into a man-to-man defense. It was a mismatch as the score ballooned to 86-70, capped by a Joe Kraska feed to Neelan that produced a resounding two-hand stuff and an ovation from the crowd with 1:30 on the clock.

Parker, Charbonneau and Scotty Gilbert all scored 18 points for the Northmen and Jon Nelson added 10. Bruce Erdmann led Crookston with 22 points while Tim Rolf scored 20, Al Strandberg 13 and Barry Rongen 10.

"We played the transition game very well," mentioned Northland coach Chet Engelman. "We might not have been quite as aggressive as we would have liked to be (Crookston held a 59-39 rebound advantage), but all-in-all, the kids played well."

The Northmen enjoyed a banner 57 per cent shooting night from the field when they hit 42 of 74 shots. The Trojans shot a poor 36 per cent as they connected on just 30 of 83 shots. Crookston held a decided edge in the free throw department with an 18-for-27 night at the line. Northland made four of only eight free throw opportunities. The teams split 48 turnovers.

Gilbert and Jerry Hooten had nine rebounds apiece for the Northmen while Parker handed out five assists and Neelan blocked three shots.

Northland will take a 5-1 MJCAA record and a 12-5 overall mark to International Falls Saturday for a 2 p.m. game against Rainy River. The Northmen will be at Fergus Falls Wed., Feb. 7, for a Northwest Division showdown with the Spartans who occupy first place with the Northmen.

Northwomen Top Crookston 77-57

Shooting a strong 48 per cent from the field in the first half when the Northwomen made 20 of 42 field goal attempts, the Northland community college women's basketball team rolled up a 41-19 halftime cushion and coasted to a 77-57 Northwest Division win over Crookston Tuesday in Thief River Falls.

Five Northland scorers reached double figures as Georgine Troska collected 22 points, Arlene Knutson 14, Coco Stokke 13, Joan Engel 12 and Julie Anderson 12. Crookston's Kelly Olson made 10 of 12 free throw attempts to share game-high scoring honors with Troska with 22 points. Sue Hagl of the Trojans scored 11 points.

The victory snapped a four-game losing streak for the Northwomen who last won by a 62-42 margin at Crookston two weeks ago.

Northland finished the game with a 43 per cent shooting mark from the field as the Northwomen made 35 of 82 shots. Crookston shot only 30 per cent as the Trojans connected on 23 of 77 attempts. Northland was 7-for-17 at the free throw line where Crookston was 11-for-18.

Coach Deb Jacobson's Northland squad, 4-10 for the year, will play the University of North Dakota junior varsity Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in Grand Forks. The Northwomen, 2-4 in Northwest Division play, will be at Fergus Falls Wed., Feb. 7.

Warroad Lakers vs. St. Paul Parkers . . .

Top Senior Hockey Teams Will Meet Here Sunday

Two of the top senior amateur hockey teams in the country will tangle Sunday in the Thief River Falls sports arena when the Warroad Lakers serve as hosts to the St. Paul Parkers in a 4 p.m. game sponsored by the Thief River Falls amateur hockey association (TRFAHA).

The two teams, who will square off Saturday night at Warroad to open a two-game weekend series, have met four times previously. The Lakers have won three of the four meetings, but the Parkers feature a beefed-up attack this year that makes them solid contenders to win a sixth U.S. intermediate championship. Warroad, meanwhile, is in its customary position atop the Manitoba Assiniboine Hockey League standings.

Both teams feature a Thief River Falls flavor. Player-coach of the Parkers is 42-year-old Marv Jorde, a member of the 1954 state champion Lincoln high school hockey team. Now a teacher at Park high school in Cottage Grove where the Parkers play their home games, Jorde has directed his team to five U.S. championships. He was twice named MVP in the national tournament. His earlier hockey stops included the University of Minnesota, Rochester Mustangs, Green Bay Bobcats, Duluth Port Stars, college all-stars, U.S. Nationals, St. Paul Saints, Minneapolis Millers and St. Paul Steers.

A top performer for the Lakers is Tom Goddard, a 1973 Lincoln graduate and a four-year regular with the University of North Dakota Sioux. Goddard ranks among the MAHL scoring leaders and is expected to try out for the 1980 U.S. Olympic hockey team beginning in March.

Among the other familiar Lakers are goalie Pete Waselovich from International Falls who played college hockey with Goddard and is another Olympic candidate, and Bruce Salmela, a Warroad high school star a year ago who is currently being recruited by the University of Minnesota, Denver University and Minnesota-Duluth. Salmela and Goddard rank 1-2 in the Warroad scoring charts.

Among the newcomers with the Parkers this year are Mike Knoke and Mike Reily from Colorado College, Tom and Paul Lundeen from the University of Wisconsin and Tony Jelacie from Michigan State, all of whom are waiting to become eligible to play hockey at the University of Minnesota. Reily was a fifth round draft choice of the Montreal Canadians. Paul Lundeen was a first line performer with the Badgers. Jelacie is from Brainerd.

Parkers veterans include Dick Perkins, a goalie on the NCAA champion University of Wisconsin team; Dave Urundel, a 200-pound defenseman who was an all-tournament selection as a member of the 1973 NCAA champion Wisconsin squad; and Ron Naslund, a member of the 1972 U.S. Olympic team in Japan.

The Lakers have been a premier senior hockey team for the past 32 years. Warroad fans take a great pride in backing the team, and the Lakers, featuring ageless Billy Christian who was a high school rival of Jorde's Prowlers while at Warroad high school, have given their fans plenty to cheer about, including a U.S. national championship in 1955 and Canadian championships in 1964 and 1974.

Advance sale tickets for the TRFAHA-sponsored game, priced at $2 for adults and $1 for students, are on sale in Thief River Falls at TG Sporting Goods and at Bjorkman's. TRFAHA players and coaches are also selling the tickets which will be priced $2.50 the day of the game.

Girls Defeat Greenbush, Take On 8A Champions

Four-game winning streak owned by the Lincoln high school girls basketball team will be in jeopardy Saturday when the Prowlers face defending Region 8A champion Fertile-Beltrami at 8 p.m. at Fertile.

Thief River Falls improved its record to 5-6 Monday by breaking a 36-36 third quarter tie en route to a 54-46 victory at Greenbush.

Greenbush led 11-10 at the end of the first quarter and was on top 26-22 at halftime. Although the Prowlers caught the Tigers at the end of the third quarter, Thief River Falls didn't command its first lead until about the 5½-minute mark of the fourth quarter.

"We played pretty poorly," admitted Thief River Falls coach Sylvia Sjoberg. "Our transition game was bad. But we hung in there."

Thief River Falls team captain Julie Easton sparked the fourth quarter surge by scoring all eight of her points that period. And the Prowlers, after "getting killed on the boards in the first half," according to Sjoberg, came back to finish with a 31-30 rebounding edge as Easton and Roberta Engel pulled down eight caroms apiece.

Engel and Pam Kotschevar led the Thief River Falls offense with 12 points each. Pam and Paula Novacek combined for 33 of the 46 Greenbush points as Pam scored 18 and Paula 15.

Thief River Falls shot 33 per cent from the field, hitting 20 of 61 shots. The Prowlers enjoyed a 14-for-18 night at the free throw line where the Tigers were only 10-for-26.

LeAnn Paetznick scored eight points to lead the Lincoln junior varsity to a 29-16 victory over Greenbush that improved the winners' record to 6-5.

DNR Survey To Cover Hunters And Trappers

Minnesota Department of Natural Resources is presently conducting surveys to determine hunting and trapping success for the 1978 season. Questionnairs are being mailed to a randomly selected group of small game hunters, trappers and deer hunters, said DNR wildlife officials.

Small game hunters are being asked to record the number of days they spent hunting each species and their total take of game in 1978. Trappers are requested to record their season catch for each species.

Deer hunters selected for the survey will be asked to record information about when and where they hunted in 1978.

Harvest information obtained from the surveys is used to compare with previous year's harvests and to examine trends in wildlife populations.

Officials urged those receiving the postage-paid questionnaires to complete and return them as soon as possible.

EAST GRAND FORKS forward Myles Hart avoided the defensive efforts of Thief River Falls' Joe Dee and got off a low shot that went through goalie Bill Jury at 6:09 of the first period in Tuesday's high school hockey game played in the sports arena. The Green Wave scored three quick goals and held off a late charge by the Prowlers to win 4-3.

Marshall County Central Girls Upset Rams 47-38

Marshall County Central jumped out to an 16-8 first quarter lead and went on to record a 47-38 upset victory over Roseau Monday in a girls high school basketball game played at Newfolden.

"It was by far the best game we've played this year," stated Marshall County Central coach Tom Mjelde. "We shot 41 per cent from the field, we cut down our turnovers and we had balanced scoring."

Roseau never led. The District 32 favorite Rams cut a 27-20 halftime deficit to 33-30 in the third quarter but couldn't overcome the Nordics.

"We played really well in the fourth quarter," pointed out Mejlde. "They put pressure on us with a press, but we moved the ball and got some easy baskets off it."

Denise Stokke led the Nordics with 14 points while Rosalyn Knutson added 13 and Jill Johnson 11. Rae Derry and Shirley Kotta finished with 10 points apiece for the Rams.

Marshall County Central, 5-6, will host Middle River Thursday. The Nordics play at Strandquist Monday.

Plummer — Stephen

Plummer, down 14-5 after the first quarter, caught Stephen 34-34 in the third quarter and then out-scored the Tigers 22-9 in the final eight minutes for a 56-43 Monday win at Plummer.

"We switched defenses and went to the boards pretty good in the second half," explained Plummer coach Rick Koivisto.

A potent Plummer attack featured Diane Fisher with 22 points and 19 rebounds, Melaine Skjerven 16 points, Rebecca Sorenson 11 points and 19 rebounds and Sandy Zimpel 12 rebounds. The Cardinals built a 50-30 edge on the boards. Bonnie Borowicz scored 16 points for stephen and Dawn Knoll had 10.

Plummer, now 8-2, will wait until Monday to play at Goodridge.

Grygla — Badger

Grygla used a fourth quarter press to break open a close game Monday, coming up with a 41-28 win at Badger.

Ahead 8-4 and 17-12 at the first two quarter breaks, the sluggish Eagles were clinging to a narrow 21-18 advantage before doubling the Rockets 20-10, in the final eight minutes.

"We were just dead the first three quarters," admitted Grygla coach Bill Raduenz who watched his club improve its record to 11-1.

Jill Saurdiff scored 18 points for the winners and Sherry Anderson contributed 10. Coco Idberg and Nancy Peterson scored 11 and 10 points, respectively, for Badger.

Grygla will host Warroad Thursday. The Eagles play at Lancaster Monday.

Goodridge — RLF

Enjoying its finest shooting night of the season (nearly 40 per cent), Goodridge crushed Red Lake Falls 55-33 Monday.

The visiting Huskies built quarter leads of 8-5, 24-13 and 47-19.

Four Goodridge scorers reached double figures as Vicky Troska and Mary Kiesow scored 12 points apiece while Angie Berndt and Vanassa Sand finished with 10 each. Goodridge coach Ken Ewertz praised the play of Troska, a junior guard, by saying, "She played a whale of a game for us. She penetrated really well."

Goodridge will try to improve upon a 4-6 record Thursday when the Huskies host Mount St. Benedict. Goodridge entertains Plummer Monday.

TRFAHA Will Meet Monday

Thief River Falls amateur hockey association (TRFAHA) will meet Monday at 7:30 p.m. at the Franklin middle school library.

Crookston Is 86-82 Freshman Cage Winner

An unusually high-scoring freshman high school basketball game produced an 86-82 win for Crookston over Thief River Falls Tuesday.

Crookston led the visitors at the quarter stops 19-16, 41-30 and 65-56.

Tim Swanson paced the Thief River Falls offense with 33 points while Kevin Sanders scored 24 and Rick Trontvet 12. Crookston's Brad Wangen took game-high scoring honors with 37 points.

The loss dropped Thief River Falls' record to 4-5 heading into home games Thursday against East Grand Forks and Friday against Bemidji. Both games have 4 p.m. starting times.

DNR Reports On Last Year's Walleye Hatch

More than 70,000 pounds of yearling and fingerling size walleyes were produced in state fish hatcheries last year, the Department of Natural Resources reported.

In addition, over 350 million walleye fry were hatched out.

The walleyes are stocked in state lakes for the future angling pleasure of state sportsmen. DNR fisheries supervisor Charles Borrows pointed out, however, that not all of the fish will survive to catchable size because predation by larger fish and other natural mortality will thin their ranks.

He said Minnesota has the largest walleye rearing operation in the world and that this year's production of fry is 100 million larger than an average year.

Last season, the basketball-playing Vikings played 60 games, rolling a 51-9 record against teams in Minnesota, Iowa, North Dakota, South Dakota and Wisconsin.

After the game the Vikings will be available to sign autographs and meet the fans.

Proceeds from the game will go to the Polk county association for retarded citizens. All tickets are $3 in advance and $3.50 at the door. Children under six will be admitted free. They include halftime programs at the Bemidji basketball game Friday; East Grand Forks basketball game February 9; and Detroit Lakes hockey game February 16. Prowlins members above include (left to right), front, Laurie Stoffel and Tammy Booen; back, Wendy Easton, Debbie Joppru, Cherie Hunt and Patti Burstad.

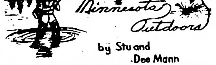
CAPTAINS of the Prowlins dance team at Lincoln high school are Faye Swanson (left) and Merrilee Olson. Both are seniors at the school and have been in the organization for the past three years.



by Stu and Dee Mann

We spent two delightful evenings in celebration with Dave Vesall and Earl Lhotka, two highly respected, dedicated DNR directors who retired from their departments this month. The men combined for over 70 years of DNR service.

We offer our congratulations and best wishes to Vasall who served as director of the state fish and wildlife department, and Lhotka who served as director of the enforcement department of the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources.

Their departmental workers, friends and families joined in presenting gala parties and gifts honoring the men and their dedicated careers. DNR commissioner Joe Alexander was the emcee.

"Conserve Our Wildlife" will be the theme for the 1979 observance of national wildlife week, March 18 through 24.

Steel Shot Zones Will Be Unchanged

Steel shot will be required in all gauges of shotguns used to hunt waterfowl in designated steel shot zones starting in 1980, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service announced recently.

For the 1979 season, however, waterfowl hunters will only be required to use steel shot in 12 gauge guns when in the special steel shot zones.

The steel shot zones that the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service is proposing for Minnesota this year are identical with the zones established for the 1978 season, according to the state Department of Natural Resources.

North Stars To Feature Old Timers Game

Past will come to life Saturday night on the Met Center ice in Bloomington when two teams of former North Stars face each other in the second old timers game in the history of the Minnesota NHL franchise.

The game will be played before the North Stars face Buffalo in an important 8 p.m. National Hockey League contest. Old timers introductions will start at 6:45. The game will run from 7 to 7:30.

Coaches of the two teams are Wren Blair, general manager of the team in its first seven seasons and coach of the club on three different occasions, and Dave Balon, the first skating player chosen by Blair in the 1967 expansion draft.

Balon's squad — goalie Cesare Maniago; defensemen Lou Nanne, Ted Harris, Bob McCord, Mike McMahon, Dwight Bialowas, John Mayasich; forwards Dean Prentice, Danny O'Shea, Claude Larosé, Charlie Burns, Murray Oliver, Bill Fairbairn, Bryan Hextall, Bill Ramsay and Larry Johnson.

Meredith, Mayasich, Ramsay and Johnson are local performers chosen to round out the teams.

Geoff Zahn was the Minnesota Twins' ace-in-the-hole against Kansas City in '78. In four games and 31-plus innings, Geoff won three games with a 1.74 era.

Jeannie Riley, Comedy Team To Be At Fair

Country-Western singer Jeannie C. Riley and the comedy team of Mahana and Jaspering were placed under contract to appear at the 1979 Pennington county fair at the annual convention of the Minnesota association of county fairs last week.

Attending the convention as representatives of the Pennington county fair association were president Dan Helle, vice president LaVerne Hamre, secretary Vernon Lee and director Bill Ulrich. Mrs. Helle, Mrs. Lee and Mrs. Hamre were also in attendance at the event.

Dates for the Pennington county fair are July 19-22 with an area talent contest to open the entertainment events on Thursday night, July 19. Demolition derby will continue on July 20 as one of the most popular grandstand attractions. Senior citizen day will be observed Saturday afternoon and evening with entertainment pending at the present time.

Jeannie C. Riley, who immortalized the "Harper Valley PTA" song, will headline the Sunday evening program. Appearing with her will be the Mahana and Jaspering comedy team which leaves the audience gasping for breath with their hilarious sound effect and impersonations. They are presently working with Donny and Marie Osmond and have previously appeared with Melissa Manchester, Ray Price, Ann Murray, Jody Miller, Tommy James and Mel Tillis.

Matt Armstrong shows will again be on the county fair midway.

At a dance following the convention banquet, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Lee won first prize in the dance competition.

Delegates to the state convention were elected at the annual meeting of the Pennington county fair association held in December. At that meeting directors elected were Mrs. T. A. Stark, District 1; Dan Helle, District 2; Richard Anderson, District 3; Terry Nelson, District 4; and Mrs. Wayne Harder, District 5.

Officers elected were Helle as president; LaVerne Hamre, vice president; Lee, secretary; and Anderson, treasurer. Lee, Helle and Hamre were elected delegates to the state convention with Ulrich, Arlen Ellingson, Fred Dallmann, Wilbur Hallstrom and Duane Olson as alternates.

Tax Credits Available For Energy Saving

Your tax returns could bring you good news this year if you spent money on saving energy last year.

Beginning this year and continuing until 1985, you can claim tax credits for investments in energy conservation measures and for alternative energy systems.

National energy act, passed in October, made credits available for a wide variety of energy conservation measures. They include insulation, efficient furnace replacement burners, devices for modifying flue openings, electronic ignition systems for furnaces, storm and thermal doors and windows, automatic setback and clock thermostats, caulking, weatherstripping, and meters which display the cost of energy usage.

Credits can be taken on work done since April 20, 1977, provided the house was built before then and is your principal place of residence.

You can take a credit of 15 per cent of the cost up to $300. For example, if you spent $1,000 for energy conservation measures, you could file a tax credit of $150. The tax credit is figured by multiplying the total cost by 15 per cent ($1,000 x .15 - $150).

You can take an even higher tax credit for investments in alternative energy equipment. Moreover, this credit applies to both new and old homes.

Wind, solar, or geothermal energy equipment which is used to heat or cool the home or to provide hot water will qualify for the credit. Labor costs for the on-site preparation and installation of the equipment also qualify.

Credit of 30 per cent of the first $2,000 spent plus 20 per cent of the next $8,000 is available for purchases made between April 20, 1977 and December 31, 1985.

Internal revenue service publication 903 explains the energy credits in more detail. If you have additional questions about energy conservation, call the Minnesota energy agency's information center at 612-296-5175 in the metro area or 800-652-9747 toll free.

Expect 2,000 For Celebrity Event Feb. 2-4

Over 2,000 Minnesota snowmobilers and 34 "celebrities" are expected to converge on Brainerd February 2,3 and 4 for running of the seventh annual celebirty marathon.

Scorpion Industries of Crosby will again sponsor this largest gathering of snowmobilers in the nation and pay for celebrities' lodging as well as lodging for two members of every club that has held a marathon for the March of Dimes.

According to Barney Briggs, marathon coordinator, "Groups of 25 will begin and end their 100-mile marathon at Cragun's resort on Gull Lake. We expect to have at least two celebrities in every group. We also anticipate about $60,000 to be raised this weekend to be used to combat birth defects."

SOUNDS OF BRASS will be heard in the Lincoln high school auditorium Saturday at 8 p.m. when the Annapolis brass quintet makes its appearance as part of the Thief River Falls concert association series. Admission will be by season membership only. Music to be played includes popular dances of the 17th century, music of the masters written especially for brass and new music of the 20th century, some of it composed especially for the Annapolis group. Organized in 1966 at the US naval academy in Annapolis and serving four years as the official quintet for the navy, the group reorganized as professionals in 1971 and is now acknowledged as the premiere brass quintet in the world.

Senator Would Favor Changes In Seniority

Although the present senate seniority system has helped him attain spots on two key committees, agriculture and budget, Senator Rudy Boschwitz said today that he is in favor of a change in that system.

"There's no doubt that being able to take office a few days early, after Senator Anderson stepped down,helped me gain these spots," Boschwitz noted. "And I definitely believe it's to Minnesota's benefit that I'll be serving on these two very important committees."

However," Boschwitz continued, "despite good reasons for assuming my duties early under the present system, I agree, with a proposed plan that would do away with the early appointments now allowed by that system. The Republican leadership is presently studying a method to eliminate unneeded early appointments and the few extra days of seniority they confer, and I support their move.

"Our present system has resulted in a scrambling and jockeying for early appointments from state to state, and the end results have not always been fair," Boschwitz explained.

"I would also favor doing away with considerations such as a state's date of entry into the Union, service as a governor of congressman, or alphabetical order of names. Prior service as a senator should still remain as a criteria for seniority.

"I'd prefer a system where all new senators start out on an equal basis when they're sworn in in early January. In the end, that will be fairest to all states," Boschwitz concluded.

CHURCH IN THE HILLS

The little frame church in this snow-blanketed mountain village lifts its tall spire above its rugged environment like a sentinel guarding a sacred trust or a lighthouse on a rockbound coast.

Wherever man has pushed his habitations—to the bleak wastes of the polar regions, under the blazing tropical sun, or in the milder climates of the world—he has built his churches dedicated to the worship of God.

The fact that no community seems complete without its house of worship bears eloquent testimony to the universal recognition of man's need of religion.

The village church plays a vital part in the life of the community. The spiritual standards of the people are fashioned there, marriage vows are spoken at its altar, and the honored dead sleep in its sacred soil.

There it stands in every community—the little frame church—pointing the people to God, teaching them the way of life, giving them strength and faith for every need.

State Share Of Federal Budget $9.83 Billion

Taxpayers in Minnesota will pay $9.83 billion as their share of the cost of the federal budget for fiscal 1980, according to the budget figures just released by President Carter, the Minnesota Taxpayers association estimated today. This is $980 million higher than Minnesota's estimated share of the current 1979 fiscal year.

In comparison, the 1977-79 Minnesota legislature enacted a state budget for the two-year period amounting to $6.5 billion in state general revenue funds, and it is estimated that the state budget will increase by approximately one billion dollars for the forthcoming biennium.

The estimate of Minnesota's share of the tax burden associated with the new budget is derived from a formula for estimating the allocation of the federal tax burden by state computed by the Tax Foundation, a nationally recognized research organization.

For the fiscal year which will begin Oct. 1, 1979 and end Sept. 30, 1980, the federal budget expenditures total $531.6 billion, and budget receipts total $502.6 billion, with a resulting deficit of $29 billion.

According to Don Paterick, executive director of the Minnesota Taxpayers association, "The federal deficit could be changed considerably depending upon Congressional actions on the President's budget, and on revenue collections. In fiscal year 1979 the deficit was originally estimated at $60.6 billion but has declined to $37 billion — mainly due to higher than anticipated revenues.

Bargain Hunting

"There are people who drive miles out of town and then brag about how much money they saved on this or that bargain," states an item in an exchange paper recently.

"But when you consider the cost of driving a car today, an item selling for $50 would have to sell for $9.60 if you drove 100 miles to get it and just wanted to break even," the article continues.

"The American Automobile association certifies it now costs 20.2 cents to drive your car one mile. So if you've driven 200 round-trip miles to pick up that 'bargain', you'll have to add $40.40 to the cost of your purchase. Think about it," the item suggested.

So we thought about it and some thoughts came to mind. For instance, we thought about that 20.2 cents per mile figure. Undoubtedly that is an average composite amount that includes cost of the automobile, insurance, maintenance and the like as well as gas, oil and tire wear. Then we thought about the actual operational cost — the expenditure necessary to move that car from one given point to another. Obviously, it is a far cry from 20.2 cents a mile.

Suppose you drive a sub-compact car that gets 30 miles per gallon on the highway and it uses a quart of oil in 200 miles. That 200-mile trip would cost you about $4.75 for gas and another buck for oil, plus a little tire wear. Your cost would be maybe $6.50 in out-of-pocket cost for the trip. Most of the rest of that $40.40 figure mentioned would include money you would pay if your car was sitting at home in the garage — or if you were driving it only a couple of local miles. And the neighbor's gas guzzling four-wheeler would be making its contribution to that average cost figure.

While the shop at home ethic is good, and it should certainly be encouraged for many reasons, the claim made in the exchange paper's item is not valid. Indeed, to carry the thought a bit further, the more you drive your car the less it costs you to own and operate per mile.

To take that thought a step further, suppose you had the sub-compact car noted earlier and could buy an item that costs $50 in your home town for $35 in a community 100 miles away. By not using your investment in that auto to go and buy the lower priced item, you would be losing $8.50.

The point we would like to make is that a person can too often become caught up in averages or percentages and use them to reach seemingly logical but invalid conclusions. It is the old story of getting in water over your head although the river only averages four feet deep.

Be Brutal

Purported to be a letter from a concerned mother, the following appeared in a Topeka, Kan., paper and was reprinted in the Bemidji Pioneer:

One of the most common phrases heard in our society and city today is "police brutality." Perhaps I don't understand the meaning, but I would like to give you one mother's point on the subject.

To begin, I should first tell you that I have two teenage sons, and being a mother, I cannot help but want the very best of everything for them. I am a "typical mother" in that I don't want to see them hurt by anyone. I am not a typical mother, for I see things many mothers never hear of, much less become involved in, because my husband is a minister and we see the very best and the sordid worst.

I would like for you to be brutal with my sons. Is that a surprise? If you find them speeding in a car, please be brutal. I have sat at a hospital holding a grieving mother's hand because of someone's mistake. That was brutal. I have gone with my husband to tell a wife her husband was killed. That was brutal. I have helped nurse a beautiful teenage girl crippled in a wreck. That was brutal. I have played organ music at funeral services for babies, teenagers, and adults, because someone drove too fast. That was brutal.

If you should catch my under-age sons with liquor in their possession, please be brutal.

I have sat all night by my husband's side trying to piece together two under-age young men's lives, both broken by drinking. That was brutal. I have listened to the horrors experienced by another man while he was drunk and heard him recall the many jails he has served time in for this. That was brutal. I have helped feed hungry children because a drunken father didn't come home. That was brutal. I have trued to console a mother whose daughter was killed after being struck by a drunken driver. That was brutal.

If you should find my sons with drugs in their possession, please be brutal.

I have tried to rehabilitate a woman just out of prison for shooting her husband while she was drugged. That was brutal. I have seen a handsome young man turn into an old ugly one because of drugs. That was brutal. I have seen a young mother who was addicted to a drug scream and rave for lack of a "fix." That was brutal.

If you find my sons committing any kind of immoral act or carrying any pornographic materials, please be brutal! I have listened to the sad cry of a young girl who was pregnant but not married. That was brutal.

If police ever see persons doing something that isn't thoroughly in the interest of society, please be brutal. I have walked into a hushed, sacred church that was stripped of everything that could be sold. That was brutal. I have seen a lovely, expensive home and yard completely torn up by vandals. That was brutal. I have seen a school and its marvelous equipment torn apart by young vandals. That was brutal. I have wiped a little boy's tears and helped him hunt for his stolen bicycle. That was brutal.

If you should ever catch my sons doing anything illegal, please be brutal! I have come to realize that your kind of "brutality" cannot in any way compare with the brutality that comes from breaking our laws.

My husband and I have tried to teach our sons that their rights end where someone else's begin. We believe they have learned this lesson but in case they forget we look to you and others who influence their lives — teachers, coaches, etc., to see that they remember.

I do not want my two sons to grow into two grown-up boys. I want them to become men, able to assume their places in this world and make good contributions to it. I sincerely hope they won't need your help; but if they do, and if you must, then be brutal.

No Common Sense

Following editorial is from the Wadena Pioneer-Journal:

The government's new report on the hazards of smoking and new IRS income tax regulations concerning gasoline tax deductions convinced us this week that some common sense is needed among our Washington regulators.

HEW Secretary Califano proclaims loudly about the dangers of smoking confirmed in lab tests, yet the government continues to subsidize tobacco farmers to the tune of some $65 million a year. If smoking is such a danger, why is the government paying a subsidy for growing the product that's creating the danger? It just doesn't make sense.

Nor does the IRS table on gas tax deductions for those who itemize deductions on their income tax returns. The IRS income tax form, as in the past, has a table for calculating the allowable deduction for state gasoline tax. The table gives an allowable deduction based on the number of miles driven in a year.

Now the federal government and Congress have been screaming to the heavens about gas-guzzling automobiles and urging the American car owner to buy smaller vehicles to achieve greater gas mileage. But this year's IRS income tax table and instructions tells owners of four-cylinder cars they must cut the allowable deduction in half. So now we have the federal government complaining about gas-guzzling autos on one hand, but penalizing the buyers of small cars on the other hand.

In preparing the new gas tax deduction tables, we feel the IRS would have been more consistent with federal government policies if they'd based the table on relatively good miles-per-gallon averages and thus penalize drivers of the gas-guzzlers. This would encourage people to drive fuel-efficient autos and thus conform to the government's goal of reducing our dependence on imported oil. Those who have more efficient cars would get a tax break and those who drive gas hogs would have to pay the penalty.

Of course, such an IRS policy would make common sense. And it often appears that's too much to expect from our Washington regulators.

Borrowed Nonsense:

Old Friend: "Why, Bill, I haven't seen you in years. Who are you working for now?"

Bill: "Same people — wife and six kids."

After the passerby had helped the lady motorist change her tire, she cautioned: "Let it back down easy; my husband is sleeping in the back seat."

NEWS OF SAFETY

Concrete Ideas For Winter

You can keep your concrete steps and sidewalks in safer condition this winter if you take a few simple tips from the experts at the National Ready Mixed Concrete Association (NRMCA).

- If your concrete is new, it is probably advisable not to use any deicers the first winter. If new concrete hasn't cured fully, it can be damaged by early applications of salt. So just clean off loose snow, and use sand to assure firm footing.
- The least expensive deicer is still common rock salt. Be cautious of the deicers containing ammonium nitrate and ammonium sulfate fertilizers that are sold as beneficial to lawns. They will melt snow and ice, but because they react chemically with concrete, their extensive use can cause pitting or roughing of the concrete surface.
- If you plan a concrete project next year, ask for air-entrained concrete. Millions of tiny bubbles in the concrete provide increased durability against scaling when salts are used as deicers.
- When building a new driveway, ask for a concrete strength of at least 4,000 pounds per square inch and insist that the concrete be properly cured after placement by sealing the moisture in by using a curing compound, vapor barrier, or by keeping the new concrete continuously wet for at least 5 days.
- To increase concrete's resistance to deicing salts, you can apply penetrating sealers, such as a 50-50 mixture of boiled linseed oil and mineral spirits. These should be applied after the concrete is strong (at least 14 days old), before cold weather hits, and at a time when the concrete surface has been dry for a week or so. The linseed oil will darken the color of the concrete and may take a day or two to dry.

Legislative Report
Marv Hanson
District 1 State Senator

Governor Albert H. Quie presented a record $7.4 billion state budget this week to a joint session of the Minnesota legislature. His message emphasized tax relief and increases in assistance to state programs and needy Minnesotans.

The Quie budget seeks to provide most of the tax reductions to persons in the low and middle income brackets with a $416 million income tax cut proposal. The budget also calls for expanding the "working poor" tax relief program enacted by the legislature in 1973. In the coming weeks the focus of the legislature will be to work with the governor to accomplish real tax relief for the taxpayers of our state.

The governor has based his budget proposals on very strong economic predictions; a 9.8 per cent growth in non-farm personal income in Minnesota in 1980 and 21.1 per cent growth in 1982. Except for the farm sector, Minnesota has enjoyed a rapidly growing economy, and that is expected to continue. This brings an anticipated revenue growth of 22 per cent during the 1980-81 period. However, if the state's economy does not meet those expectations, the budget may have to be reduced in the next session of the legislature.

The governor has proposed increasing aids to local government of $23 million or a $4 per capita increase each year of the biennium. Additional aids above that amount may be needed to offset inflation so that local governments are not forced to increase property tax levies to meet increased costs.

The necessary increases in foundation aids to local schools were proposed by Governor Quie as well as other educational proposals amounting to $254 million in new spending.

The governor proposed reducing the maximum tax rate for large corporations from 12 per cent to 10 per cent. He also proposed reducing the corporate tax rate from 12 per cent to six per cent on the company's first $20,000 of income to help smaller businesses. This relief would total $58.8 million.

The new budget would make about $500 million available to families from middle incomes to buy or remodel homes. This would include $42.5 million in direct state appropriations and $450 million in new bonding authority for the state housing finance agency.

The budget message contains a proposal to phase-in a reduction in the sales tax for farm machinery to two per cent. Minnesota's farmers would receive an estimated savings of $11.4 million with this change.

Also included in the message was the reform of the inheritance tax laws of our state which would reduce those taxes approximately $10.6 million.

The governor's budget contains several good proposals, and we will work with him to implement them. The legislature will be studying the proposals to ensure that we have fair and equitable taxes and that funding is sufficient to meet the programs helping the people of our state.

If you have questions or comments on state issues or problems, write me at Room 2?J State Capitol Building, St. Paul, Minnesota, 55155, or call (612) 296-4835. I would appreciate hearing from you.

Invite Your Valentine To Dinner

Want to make Valentine's Day a date to remember? Invite that "someone special" to a romantic dinner for two at home. If "The way to a man's heart is through his stomach," then this is the perfect occasion to feed your fancy.

Provide flowers, candlelight, soft music and a graceful table setting. Chill a couple of bottles of Reine Pedauque Macon "Le Grand Cristal," a dry white Burgundy wine imported by the Dennis & Huppert Company. It's a lovely way to toast your special Valentine and is an important flavor-enhancer in this Fish Steaks Cote D'Azur dinner.

FISH STEAKS COTE D'AZUR

- 2 1/2 tablespoons butter or olive oil
- 6 fish steaks, such as salmon, swordfish or tuna
- 4 tomatoes, peeled and quartered
- 1/4 teaspoon fennel
- 1/4 teaspoon thyme
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 1/2 teaspoon freshly ground pepper
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon saffron, optional
- 1 cup Reine Pedauque Macon "Le Grand Cristal" dry white wine
- 2 tablespoons chopped parsley
- 1 lemon, cut in wedges for garnish

In large skillet, melt butter. When butter foams, add steaks, tomatoes, fennel, thyme, garlic, pepper, salt and saffron. Add wine and bring to a boil, covered. Reduce heat and simmer 8 to 10 minutes or until fish flakes at the touch of a fork. Decorate with chopped parsley and serve with lemon wedges. Serves 6.

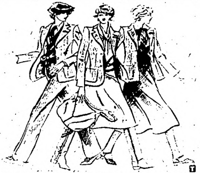
THE FASHION PLACE

By Elaine Monroe,
Fashion Director
Sears, Roebuck and Co.



Clothes that mean business: Depending on the kind of work you do, any one of these three outfits would be appropriate for nine-to-five. Do look for quality and aim for a versatile wardrobe based on classics.

What's the "right" thing to wear on the job? Whatever is appropriate! And that depends on the kind of job you do—or the kind of job you want to do. What's terrific for a job in a bank isn't necessarily right for a job in teaching or a job in fashion. No matter what your field of work, your aim is to look attractive, capable, and very much pulled together. Neatness counts, too!

You need an on-going wardrobe based on versatile classics. A suit (or one composed of separates) is a suitable start. Add a few tops, a spare jacket, a pair of tailored trousers, a basic dress—and your working wardrobe is on its way to success. Complete it with mixable classic accessories.

Because you'll live in these workaday clothes, buy the best you can afford. Look for quality. Remember that when you dress correctly and you dress well, you'll feel good about yourself. And that leaves you free to concentrate on the job at hand.

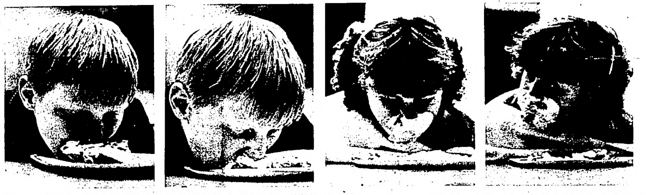
"Keep Your Eye On Your Pie . . . ."



PIE-EATING CHAMPION of the Goodridge school is eighth grader Jeff Nelson who stuffed his way to victory in preliminary and final competition Friday afternoon as part of the annual sno-fest competition. He was given extremely close competition by seventh grader Debbie Johnnson who easily won her preliminary division. Nelson's strategy was one of controlled, consistent, concentrated effort, keeping the pie intact for easier ingestion. Debbie's strategy was to attack the center of the pie, apparently feeling that the more spread on the face. . . the less to eat. As it was, the lost concentration from a sidelong glance at her opponent cost her the match.

David Solberg Is Found Dead From Exposure

Body of David Chester Solberg, 28, rural Goodridge, was found Sunday morning along a township road four miles east, one mile south and a mile east of Goodridge. Report of the body being found was received at 8:30 a.m.

According to the Pennington county sheriff's department which investigated the incident, Solberg's body was found about 100 yards from where his pickup truck had become stuck in drifted snow on the township road. He had apparently started to walk toward the parental Chester Solberg farm about a half mile away.

The sheriff's department said Solberg had left home Saturday afternoon to pick up a prescription which had been filled in Thief River Falls. He was wearing a wool coat and cap, the sheriff's office said, describing his attire as medium winter dress. Temperatures dipped to 32 degrees below zero Saturday night with a wind chill factor of more than 50 degrees below zero.

Funeral services for David Solberg will be held Wednesday at 2 p.m., at the Ekelund Lutheran church with Rev. Jay Borchert officiating. Interment will be in the church cemetery. The Green Funeral home is in charge of arrangements.

A complete obituary will be published in Wednesday's edition of the Times.

Norris Melander

Melander Is Lumbermen's New President

Norris Melander of Home Lumber company, Thief River Falls, was elected president of the Northwestern Lumbermen's association at the group's 89th annual convention staged January 29-31 in Minneapolis.

Long active in community, industry and association affairs, Melander will help direct the affairs of the organization comprised of approximately 3,000 Upper-Midwest lumber and building material dealers.

STATE PRESIDENT of the National Farmers organization (NFO) in Minnesota, Bob Arndt of Echo (left), reviewed materials with national director Duane Okeson of Detroit Lakes at a multi-county meeting held in Thief River Falls last week. Arndt is also a national director. The two men spoke to about 75 NFO members from nine counties about program goals of the national organization.

NFO Program, Goals The Same Without Staley

Stressing that continuity of programs and goal of the National Farmers organization (NFO) remains unchanged, national directors Bob Arndt of Echo and Duane Okeson of Detroit Lakes spoke to a multi-county meeting of about 75 NFO members in Thief River Falls last week.

Arndt, who also serves as Minnesota president for the NFO, discussed the resignation of Oren Lee Staley as national president after 22 years as head of the organization he helped to form. He said Staley believed the future of the organization would be improved without his controversial presence as its president.

The new president, DeVon Woodland of Blackfoot, Idaho, advances to that position from the post of national vice president. Arndt said that Woodland is considered more of a moderate than Staley and that although holding actions may still be held, he expects the NFO to have a more conservative approach in organization and marketing.

"Our goals are still the same," Arndt said. "We want 30 per cent of the nation's production blocked together so that we can write contracts with processors for prices to include cost of production plus a reasonable profit." He noted that production included in the goals would cover milk, hogs, cattle, other livestock and all grains.

"We need to build farm power," Okeson added. "We need people and production operating through our system to provide finances from within so we don't need to depend on outside capital to operate. So far we have been able to maintain our programs with our own finances."

Both Arndt and Okeson maintained that NFO does have the ability to supply processors with the farm products they need to operate. "Our marketing system is all set up and operating," Arndt said. "What we have to do is to convince more farmers that they need to make a commitment if they hope to move from the uncertainty of government programs to a position of being able to handle their own product for a profit."

SNO-FEST ROYALTY at Goodridge high school were crowned at ceremonies held Friday afternoon at the school. Selected king and queen on the basis of the funds raised by their class for sno-fest charity were eighth graders Richard Sunsdahl and Jacqueline Dahlen. Coronation of the king and queen preceded an afternoon of games, contests and entertainment by the Goodridge students. Left to right in the photo above are class candidates for the sno-fest title. They include Vanessa Sand and Dean Hanson, seniors; Gwen Johnsrud and Robert Wayne, juniors; Queen Jacqueline Dahlen and King Richard Sunsdahl, eighth graders; Becki Peterson and Randy Henrickson, sophomores; Susan Johnson and Michael Drangstveit, freshmen; and Dawn Anderson and Robert Johnson, seventh graders.

Commuter Airlines Give Service Without Frills

"I know that some of the passenger loads of the smaller communities that North Central is flying could be handled with smaller aircraft. But people get spoiled — they want to ride in a 100 passenger jet all the time. Myself, I think it is not right. This is costing our government and that's part of the inflation problem."

"Sure it's nice to get on a plane and have a stewardess greet you, it's nice to have your baggage carried, it's nice to have coffee served on a flight and to have the ability to smoke; but you can't on a commuter airline and you adjust to that. It's a cheap, fast way of getting where you are going better than driving. Commuters are safe and there is no unpleasantness. It's not a major airline, but we are in a location and a size community that can't have a major airline and I think you face the facts and learn to adjust to the commuter and are happy to have it as compared to nothing."

These comments were made by Gordon Newstrom of Grand Rapids and Bob Boen of Winona, respectively. Both communities are served by commuter airlines.

Implementation of a new airline deregulation act could bring about the replacement of the standard carrier service in Thief River Falls with a commuter service. January 10 and 31 Times' articles reported on the stand taken by local officials and representatives of small communities throughout the state against any implementation of the new law that would result in service to communities by a smaller aircraft than they already have. However a letter from civil aeronautics board (CAB) chairman Marvin Cohen, released prior to the CAB hearing at which Minnesota representatives testified, stated, "We expect, if recent experience holds true, that a considerable proportion of essential' air service will be provided by unregulated, unsubsidized carriers responding to market demand."

Are the citizens of small communities "spoiled?" Do we have a right to expect the government to continue to subsidize major air carrier service to our communities? Or, considering the state of the economy and the need to conserve our energy resources, is it time we "face the facts and learn to adjust to the commuter?"

To give our readers a better knowledge of commuter operations — the level of safety and service they provide — we talked to both commuter operators and users in the communities of Grand Rapids and Winona and will share some of their observations with you.

The new airline deregulation bill defines commuters as aircrafts with a capacity of less than 56 passengers or a maximum payload of less than 18,000 pounds. Under the bill, these aircrafts need not be certificated and may serve whatever points they choose at whatever fares they wish to charge. The bill does, however, call for new FAA guidelines that will "assure that the level of safety provided to persons traveling on such commuter air carriers is, to the maximum feasible extent, equivalent to the level of safety provided to persons traveling on certificated air carriers."

Mississippi Valley Airlines, Inc. (MVA), commuter service which serves Winona, uses Beech 99 aircrafts carrying 12 to 15 passengers. Messabi Airlines of Grand Rapids is a commuter service using a 10-seat Beachcraft Queen airliner. Spokesmen for both MVA and Messabi stated that their airlines already meet the new FAA guidelines

"THE FUTURE IS IN EGGS" is the title of a one-act contest play to be presented for the public by Lincoln high school students tonight at 8 p.m. in the high school auditorium. The play won second place in a sub-region contest January 27 and will advance to regional competition. An absurd work of French playwright Eugene Ionesco, the drama relys heavily on the actors' ability to give meaning to nonsensical dialogue by use of gestures and voice tone. Costuming for the play adds to its absurd quality as does the use of strange machines such as the one in this photo. Pictured here are (left to right) Jan Swanson as Jacqueline; Joel Peterson, Father-Jacque; Dave Lewis, Jacque; and Bob Kinsman, Father Robert.

Slippery Roads Require Extra Driving Care

On winter roads slippery with mushy snow and icy patches, avoid sudden maneuvers that can throw your vehicle into a slide, advised the Minnesota department of public safety.

Make smooth, gradual turns and stops, especially at intersections. Ease into lane changes and remember that signalling your move is even more important under slippery conditions when small miscalculations can turn into disastrous crashes.

When approaching curves, reduce your speed before going into the curve and then let the momentum carry you through.

Watch out for icy spots, especially on bridges, below underpasses and in shady areas where water will freeze first and melt last. If you hit an icy patch, stay away from the brake. Let up on the accelerator, steer as straight as possible and roll through until your vehicle slows to a safe speed.

If your vehicle starts to skid, don't panic. Take your foot off the gas (with front-wheel drive vehicles, step on the gas lightly) and turn the wheels in the direction that the rear of the vehicle is sliding.

As you straighten out, be ready for a small second skid in the opposite direction. Prepare to "turn into" this skid to regain full control. Avoid braking until you overcome the skid.

As a last resort to avoid a crash, don't be afraid to take your vehicle into a snow-filled ditch or snowbank on the edge of the road. You may wind up stuck, but usually the injuries and vehicle damage will be minimal because the snow provides a shock-absorbing cushion.

Make sure your safety belt is buckled at all times to help protect your life and prevent crippling injuries that can happen even in minor crashes.

Stangeland Rep. To Visit Area Towns

Congressman Arlan Stangeland wants the seventh district residents he represents to know that he is interested in their viewpoints and concerns. While he is unable to meet individually with the constituents when congress is in session in Washington, D.C., district representatives are available to discuss legislative concerns and problems and to relay the concerns to the congressman.

Stangeland's seventh district office is located at 403 Center avenue in Moorhead and everyone interested in letting the congressman know their feelings may contact his office Monday through Friday between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. District representatives will also make visits each week to various county courthouses and community centers in the seventh district. Hours for courthouse visits are from 9:30 a.m. to 12 noon and community center hours will be from 1 to 4 p.m.

The week of February 5-9 a district representative will be at the Thief River Falls courthouse Friday, February 9, and at the Greenbush community center Tuesday, February 6.

LHS Students To Present One-Act Play

Public presentation of Lincoln high school contest play, "The Future Is In Eggs," will be given tonight at 8 p.m. in the high school auditorium. The production won second place in a January 27 8AA sub-region contest and will now advance to regional competition.

Written by Eugene Ionesco, the play is an example of absurd theatre and makes use of nonsense words in its presentation. Director Kathy Knudson aids the creation of the absurd with unusual constuming and make-up. Because of the nature of the script, actors must rely heavily on gestures and voice tone to portray meaning.

Cast members include Dave Lewis as Jacque; Joel Peterson, Father-Jacque; Kathy Achenbach, Mother-Jacque; Jan Swanson, Jacqueline; Ruth Ferber, Grandmother-Jacque; Brett Carter, Grandfather-Jacque; Kristi Hanson, Roberta; Bob Kinsman, Father-Robert; and Tracy Brown, Mother-Robert. Student directors for the show are Steve Dalager and John Walker with Randy Johnson as technical director.

Admission for the one-act play is 50 cents. It will have only this one public performance.

Must File Tax Forms On Time

Employees who do not receive their wage and tax statements by January 31, 1979, must still file by the tax deadline, the internal revenue service said.

To avoid delay in mailing wage and tax statements, employees should furnish his or her employer with a current address, according to IRS. If employees do not receive their statements by the end of January, they should contact their employer first. After February 15, 1979, they should contact their local IRS office.

Additional wage and tax statement information is available in the free IRS Publication 15, "Circular E — Employer's Tax Guide," obtained from IRS district offices.

Bergland To Speak At 33rd Farm Forum

U.S. agriculture secretary Bob Bergland heads a panel of speakers announced recently to discuss ways to expand grain exports before the 33rd Farm Forum February 13 in Minneapolis.

Farm Forum is sponsored by the Greater Minneapolis chamber of commerce to provide an overview and open discussion of major issues related to agriculture in the ninth federal reserve district. Day-long session at the Radisson hotel downtown is free and open to the public upon registration, which starts at 8 a.m. Program begins at 9 a.m.

M.D. McVay, president of Cargill, Inc., is general chairman of this year's Forum, which is built around the theme of "Building Greater World Markets for U.S. Farmers."

In remarks expanding upon the theme, McVay observed that "finding overseas markets for U.S. farm products has become of critical importance to the economic well-being of the American farmer."

"Dramatic growth in U.S. farm production has been paralleled and in fact made possible by a surge in exports," he said. He noted that U.S. grain and oilseed exports have more than doubled since 1970. Last year, he said, grain exports contributed more than $19 billion to the U.S. balance of payments.

"We have found, however, that we can't take this growth for granted," he said. "World marketplace for grain is tough and competitive. We must work hard to earn business — to build world markets."

Bergland is scheduled to deliver an up-to-the-minute assessment of the progress and problems related to current international trade negotiations and their implications for future world trade.

Other speakers will present a view of grain exports from the standpoints of a producer, an economist specializing in the food needs of developing nations, a U.S. congressman, and a grain buyer from Poland, which is a major importer of agricultural commodities from the U.S. and elsewhere.

In addition to Bergland, the speakers are:

Gerald L. Michaelson, a crop and livestock farmer from Dawson, who will discuss producers' efforts to expand overseas markets.

Barbara Huddleston, a research fellow at the International Food Policy Research Institute, a privately funded organization in Washington, D.C., specializing in the agricultural policy problems of developing countries.

Rep. Tom Hagedorn, a Republican congressman from Minnesota's 2nd District, which includes some suburbs west of Minneapolis but is predominately agricultural.

Jan Giedwidz, principal buyer from Rolimpex, the Polish grain import agency in Warsaw. From a customer's standpoint, he will discuss how U.S. exports compare with grain from other countries in terms of price, quality and service.

Ken Johnson, Nacogdoches, Texas, former president of the Future Farmers of America, and Paul Ruud, Palisade, vice-president of the Minnesota 4-H Federation.

Bergland's remarks will begin the afternoon session at 1:30 p.m. and will be followed by questions from the audience.

The morning speakers Michaelson, Miss Huddleston and Hagedorn, will participate in a pre-lunch panel discussion moderated by McVay.

Questions from the audience directed to Giedwidz will be moderated by Charles W. Bailey, editor of the "Minneapolis Tribune" and a member of the Farm Forum's steering committee.

Motor Vehicle Fee Exemption Not Uniform

Motor vehicle registration fees are deductible on both state and federal income tax forms, but the two forms have different rules on how much you can deduct, advises the Minnesota department of public safety.

On the state income tax form, you can deduct the total registration fee paid for any motor vehicle.

However, on the federal tax, only the "ad valorem" portion of the vehicle's registration fee may be deducted. Ad valorem system covers only passenger cars, station wagons, ambulances and hearses. Other vehicles are registered by unit or weight and not by the ad valorem system.

Not deductible on the federal form is the base value fee of $10 for each passenger car, station wagon, ambulance and hearse. Registration fee paid beyond the $10 base fee is the ad valorem part and is deductible on your federal income tax.

For example, if the registration fee was $40 for a vehicle covered by the ad valorem system, then $30 would be deductible on the federal tax.

Both state and federal tax rules agree that the cost of personalized license plates is not deductible because this is considered strictly a personal expense.

Commuter Airline Offers No Frill Trips

and the only real changes for them will be in the amount of paperwork required. However, MVA vice-president of marketing Patrick Thompson indicated that for a lot of the more "marginal" operators the new FAA standards would put them out of business. "This is what we want to see," he stated "we want to see the marginal ones go." Thompson explained that this would give the operating commuters a better reputation, "more credibility in the eyes of the public."

The Winona commuter began operation as a replacement carrier for North Central when the certificated carrier terminated service to Winona in October of 1969. MVA is a Minnesota corporation with executive offices in Winona and a general operations office in LaCrosse Wisconsin. It began service when Minneapolis was the only destination for air carriers out of Winona. The route is now expanded and includes trips to seven other towns including Chicago and LaCrosse.

Thompson stated that boardings out of Winona are quite low at this time because of the weather. The records of Dave Sollenburger, city manager at Winona, showed total boardings for 1978 at 1,557 and passengers deplaning at 1,670 — down somewhat from the NVA 78 projections of 2,000 each boarding and de-planing. Total air freight carried in 1978 was approximately 350,000 pounds. The Winona commuter does not carry mail because, Thompson explains, the rates are too low. Fare on the commuter from Winona to Minneapolis is $36 one way.

Main users of the commuter service are local corporations such as Watkins Products Co., and Lake Center Industry and the three universities in Winona; St. Theresa's, St. Mary's and Winona State.

Sollenburger explains airport finances at the Winona airport saying, "We run this on an enterprise fund system whereby the rentals and revenues derived from the operation are used to match the funds that are made available from the state for maintenance and operation and construction at the airport. We do not put general fund city money into that operation and simply are not in a position to do so."

City employee Gary Brown explains that the funding is on a 2-3, 1-3 basis with the state. The airport facilities operate with just a maintenance man who takes care of building and grounds. The city is not required to operate a crash-fire-rescue vehicle or metal detector since they are served by a third-level carrier.

The Winona third-level carrier offers the same level of service as certificated carriers, according to Thompson. "The only difference between our airline and any larger airline is the size of our airplane, period. We have computerized reservations, we have computerized accounting, we've got interline ticketing and baggage agreements with all the major carriers in the country." MVA not only considers itself equal to certificated carriers but has applied to become certificated. Under the dormancy provisions of the new deregulation act, they have already been certificated on 40 per cent of their route. They will receive a response on their application for certification at Winona within 200 days.

Commenting on the general commuter industry, Thompson stated, "The simple fact of the matter is that our airplanes operate a lot cheaper than a Convair does and we are able to stay in a market that might be profitable or marginally profitable whereas a Convair operator might not." When asked about the public acceptance of the commuter plane Thompson replied, "In La Crosse, we are carrying 43 per cent of the traffic in direct competition with DC-9's and Convairs. We have far and away more than our share of the market and we are flying 15 passenger turbo-props. Now what does that tell you about the acceptance of a small airplane?"

Grand Rapids commuter service has been operating at a 71 per cent capacity in recent months and Messabi manager Rob Swenson feels this indicates an acceptance of the service by the Grand Rapids community. Messabi is in its seventh year of operation in Grand Rapids with Rob and Phil Swenson, who also handle the fixed base operation at the Thief River Falls airport, having taken over three months ago.

Prior to the Swenson's take over of Messabi, in June of 1977 the airline went down because of lack of funds. According to Claude Titus, manager of the Grand Rapids chamber of commerce, the community urgently needed the service and showed their support by raising $60,000 to start the airline back up. It began service again in December of 1977.

Rob Swenson indicated that the business is still in need of funds and has applied to the Upper Great Lakes Commission for some monies. He explained that they would like to get into a little larger plane to meet demands. "I think if we had one or two years of funding we would be self sufficient flying an 18-seat aircraft."

Messabi presently makes two round trips a day to Minneapolis. One-way fare for an adult runs $40. The 10 seat Beachcraft Queen liner used, leaves seven or eight passenger seats available and, prior to the collapse of the business, a high yearly total of 7,600 boardings was reached in 1976. Swenson explains that Messabi is presently still in the rebuilding process but that January boardings were up 50 over 1978.

Major users of the commuter are construction companies, Minnesota Power and Lights, Ebasco Engineering Firm, U.S. Steel as well as community small business people. The Messabi operation has teletype reservations, hookup to all airlines, airfreight contracts, full baggage service, interline agreements with all major carriers, joint fares on popular routes and is listed in the official airlines guide. Their baggage insurance will play up to $250 per bag per passenger.

Messabi handles maintenance at the small terminal building and the city pays for any improvements. Expansion of the 4,100 feet runway is top priority in the area of improvements. Messabi's top priority is to "get into a larger plane to accommodate the people," according to Swenson.

The airline deregulation bill will "open up the markets" for commuters Swenson says. Messabi has received numerous requests from small neighboring communities to begin service. "But for an air carrier like us to come in, it is financially a real tough situation unless we can be assured of certain boardings and at least approximate a break-even to get started." The loan guarantee program of the bill may be of some help the Messabi manager indicated.

"Commuters," Swenson stated, "are the life blood of the local air carriers whether it is North Central or Northwest." He sees the deregulation bill as "just another page of history turning" and compares the planes now being flown by commuters to the size of plane first flown by North Central. "North Central initially started serving all the small communities with a DC-3. Well a DC-3 is a small aircraft by what the people are now calling small aircrafts."

Have the citizens of small communities become spoiled? Gordon Newstrom thinks so. The Grand Rapids resident talks about the commuter service in his community and says, "We think that probably this is the most practical solution."

And Bob Boen of Winona comments on the Mississippi Valley Airlines saying, "Our intelligent view is that we are lucky to have that."

COMMUTER airplane which serves Winona is a 12-passenger Beech 99 operated by Mississippi Valley Airlines, Inc. (MVA). MVA began serving Winona as a replacement carrier for North Central who chose to terminate the stop in 1969. When they took over from North Central the airline's one destination was Minneapolis. MVA has expanded the route, offering transportation to Chicago, Illinois; Clinton, Dubuque and Des Moines, Iowa; La Crosse, Wisconsin; and St. Louis, Missouri. Vice president of marketing at MVA, Patrick Thompson, states that the only difference between MVA and a certificated carrier is the size of the plane. All other service, he says, is at the same level for MVA passengers as on major airlines.

AIR SERVICE to the communities of Grand Rapids and Winona is both on the commuter level and citizens apparently seem satisfied. Claude Titus (right), manager of the Grand Rapids chamber of commerce, emphasized at a recent civil aeronautics board hearing the community support of Messabi commuter airlines and Patrick Thompson (left), vice president of marketing for Mississippi Valley commuter airlines (MVA) of Winona, explains that even in La Crosse, Wisc., where MVA competes against Convairs and DC-9's, they carry over 43 per cent of the traffic.

Past District Cmdr. Arvid Solberg Dies

Arvid Solberg, 53, past district commander of the American Legion, died in an on-the-job accident on Friday.

Solberg was superintendent of the Fosston Street department. He and other street department workers were at the Fosston Municipal Light and Power company about 10 a.m., loading the contents of a transformer truck onto a flatbed truck. Another worker was attempting to reposition the flatbed and could not see Solberg, who was moving about between the trucks. According to the Polk County Sheriff's department, Solberg apparently failed to notice that the flatbed was moving and was trapped between the vehicles. He died enroute to the Fosston Municipal hospital.

Funeral services for Arvid Solberg are being held today (Monday) at 2 p.m., at the Kingo Lutheran church in Fosston. Interment will be in the church cemetery.

Arvid Solberg was born June 4, 1925 and was a veteran of World War II, serving in the Army Air Corps. He was very active in veterans organizations and in the affairs of the community. A public funeral gives the community a chance to offer its support and to share the sorrow of the family. A pastoral psychologist has written that "the funeral and the varied events that accompany it are for those who live on." A private funeral may shut out relatives, friends, and associates who sincerely wish to attend.

Schedule ASC Farm Program Meets In Area

Alton Nybladh, chairman Marshall county ASCS committee announces that information meetings on the 1979 wheat and feed grain program are set. Meeting for this area will be held Monday, February 12 at 9:30 a.m. at the Newfolden village hall.

Nybladh stated that all changes in the 1979 program will be covered at these meetings and new procedure for proving actual farm yields will be explained. All farmers are encouraged to attend so they can receive the facts on program changes.

Marshall county had the highest percentage of participation in the state for the 1978 program, Nybladh said. Over $5.5 million was paid out in deficiency payments and $240,000 was paid out on disaster claims.

Nybladh stated that these payments contribute substantially to agriculture income in the county and that every farmer should take time to investigate how the program could work for him.

Sign up for 1979 is from February 15 through April 16.

Relect Perras To St. Johns Lay Council

After completing his twenty-first year as a member of the St. John's hospital lay advisory council, Ray Perras was reelected to another seven-year term of office. This will be his fourth term since 1957 when the council was originally organized.

Perras, an employee of the Red Lake county state bank, has served on many community groups. He was a full board member of the hospital governing board for several years in conjunction with his lay advisory membership. In recent years Perras was selected "Citizen of the Year" in Red Lake Falls.

Other members on the council and terms of office include the following: Robert Dodds, Red Lake Falls, 1 year ending 1980; John Olson, Fertile, two years ending 1981; Millard Dalley, Red Lake Falls, three years ending 1982; Mrs. Larry O'Neill, Oklee, four years ending 1983; Willard Brunelle, Crookston, five years ending 1984; and Ernest Peterson, Plummer, six years ending 1985.

Advisory council meets four times a year and area people are reminded to contact council members or the hospital administrator should they have any concerns about St. John's hospital or the services it is offering.

School Safety Patrol Week Is Proclaimed

February 17 marks the 58th anniversary of the founding in Minnesota of the nation's first school safety patrol program and Governor Albert Quie proclaimed the week of February 11-17 as school safety patrol week.

Quie urged communities to give special recognition to the estimated 35,000 young persons who serve in the school safety patrols throughout Minnesota.

The school safety patrol in Minnesota last year continued its perfect record of never having had a life lost at crossings guarded by patrol members.

The first school patrol program began in St. Paul in 1921 when Sister Carmela organized a group of students to protect school children crossing the busy intersection at Summit avenue and Kellogg boulevard. A monument nearby honors the patrol program's founder.

St. Paul city council established a city-wide system of school police in 1922. By 1930, similar patrols were being formed throughout the state. In 1933, the Minnesota legislature authorized a statewide school safety patrol system.

Patrol members will receive further public recognition at the governor's award banquet in May when the Minnesota safety council presents awards for outstanding school safety patrol activities.

California is home to more veterans — more than 3.3 million — than any other state. New York trails with 2.5 million veterans, while Pennsylvania, Texas, Illinois and Ohio — in that order — each have between 1.5 and 1.7 million veterans.

PRELIMINARY winner in the popsicle eating contest held at the Goodridge high school sno-fest Friday was Fern Horachek. Encouraged by an avid rooting section, she braved aching teeth, a frost-bitten tongue and slippery fingers to gobble up the frozen treat in pace-setting time. Using a two-handed technique (caused by a popsicle that refused to stick to the stick), she swept to a finish which included one final knee-buckling, mind-staggering, eye-rolling, mouth-puckering, heaven-help-me swallow. Despite the effort in the preliminaries, she lost in the championship round.

Seventh-Day Adventists Give Annual Report

Mae Howes, director of the community service center of the Thief River Falls Seventh-day Adventist church, gave her annual report to the church recently.

Ladies at the center put in 1,475 hours serving 2,364 area residents with 23,202 articles of clothing providing new bedding for 12 burned out families; 40 Christmas baskets and friendship plates; plus various articles of furniture.

Cash spent on new items amounted to $1,199 for items not available at the center.

Forty boxes of sorted, cleaned and mended clothing was prepared for overseas emergency use and will be shipped to the warehouse in Washington, D.C.

Special thanks is extended to those in the community who took the time and had the concern to see their unwanted personal effects put to good use, Mrs. Howes said. She made 125 visits to shutins and stated, "We will help anyone, anytime, anyplace. That is what we are here for."

Complains Of CAP Lobbying Legislators

Representative Steve Wenzel, DFL-Little Falls, said today that he is calling for a federal investigation by both the justice department and the U.S. community service administration regarding the Minnesota Community Action program (CAP) which he believes may be violating federal law and regulations prohibiting lobbying and spending federal funds for entertaining legislators.

The Minnesota CAP associations, which are an arm of the U.S. Community Services administration, is sponsoring a dinner for Minnesota legislators on Wednesday at the St. Paul hotel. Rep. Wenzel stated that many county CAP directors actively lobby Minnesota legislators for state funds, and that CAP agencies have been regularly sponsoring dinners for Minnesota legislators since 1973.

Rep. Wenzel said, "I believe the entertaining of legislators by a federal or state agency to be a gross violation of the rules and ethics which prohibit lobbying of legislators by federal agencies. This is a simple case of bureaucrats trying to save their jobs at taxpayers expense and at a time when taxpayers are telling legislators to restrict excess government spending in order to cure the problems of inflation and bureaucratic waste."

Rep. Wenzel said that he visited by telephone with federal officials in the U.S. office of management and budget in the White House in regard to the entertaining of legislators by CAP agencies, and these officials expressed deep concern and said an investigation would be initiated promptly. Rep. Wenzel stated that he will not be in attendance at the CAP sponsored dinner for legislators on February 7.

15-Cent Stamp Recognizes Year Of The Child

On December 21, 1976, the general assembly of the United Nations passed a resolution declaring 1979 as the International Year of the Child. 1979 also marks the 20th anniversary of the United Nations declaration of the rights of the child. Secretary general of the United Nations requested each member country to observe the anniversary because today's children are linked inseparably with the peace and prosperity of tomorrow's world. Accordingly, a 15-cent commemorative stamp honoring the International Year of the Child will be issued February 15 at the Children's Hospital of Philadelphia. Stamp is being issued to encourage the compassionate care of all the world's young people.

Procedures for ordering first day cancellations are as follows:

TRF Adventist Church Sends $11,000 Abroad

Dr. Ervin Kiesz, treasurer of the Thief River Falls Seventh-day Adventist church, reports that total church mission funds for 1978 will exceed $11,000.

"Mission offerings have been increasing steadily over the years", explains Dr. Kiesz. "Missions have long been important to the church and are the main reason that four-fifths of the Adventist church's membership is outside the United States."

Social Security Cuts

Bill Adams, publisher of the Roseau Times-Region, commented in his "Cornerpost" column recently about decreasing benefits in the social security program. Excerpted statements from his column follow:

The recent changes in the social security law, so widely publicized as saving the social security system, give the government license to steal. Here, according to the Wall Street Journal, is what is happening to your money and your future:

If you earn $10,000 a year and retire in 1978 you could expect to get 52.4 per cent of what you paid in. If you earned $20,000 a year, you could expect to get 31.9 per cent; if you earned $30,000 you could expeet to get 21.2 per cent. This is true under both the old and new law. You can see how the ambitious wage earner is penalized. This is plain discrimination and something that would not be permitted by government under private insurance plans.

If you plan to retire in 1983 the old low (paying on $10,000 income) would yeild you 58.1 per cent of "final pay." Under the new law it will be cut to 48.4 per cent. Pay more in, get less back. If you earned $20,000 you would get 35.4 per cent under the old law, 30.3 under the new law. At $30,000 you would get 23.6 under the old law and will get 20.6 under the new law.

If you are to retire in 1988: the old law would give you 61.1 per cent on $10,000 income; the new would give you 48 per cent. On $20,000 the old law would provide 37.2 per cent, the new law 30.9; at $30,000 the figures are 24.8 and 21.4.

As the years roll on it gets even worse. If you are to retire in the year 2008 and have paid social security premiums on an income of $10,000, the old law would have assured you 83 per cent of final pay. The new law cuts that to 46.7 per cent. . .almost in half. If your income was $20,000 the old law would pay 51.2 per cent, the new law 34 per cent. If your income were to be $30,000 the old law would pay 34.1 per cent and the new law 25.5 per cent.

You can see what is happening. The government is making you pay more premiums and cutting the amount of benefits you can get when youretire. Remember, notonlyareyou paying into social security if you are employed, but so is your employer paying a share. This means that you are getting ripped off and so is your employer. As the government "take" goes up, it gets harder for both you and your employer.

Social security is becoming a cruel hoax in the hands of government. The federal bureaucracy is inefficient, wasteful, provides too much opportunity for graft and payroll padding and is to subject to the vote-getting platitudes of politicians seeking to get elected or perpetuate themselves in office.

I don't know about you, but I didn't know about this decreasing return until it was called to my attention in the Wall Street Journal article which was given to me by someone slse. Had you heard about a cut in social security benefits in connection with the rising costs of social security deductions from your pay? I'll bet you didn't!

If the "good o'l boys can do it for you they'll do it to you . . . and they sure are!

Citizen Participation

Natural resources commissioner Joseph Alexander spoke recently to the Izaak Walton chapter at Grand Rapids, stating that he is convinced his department in the past six or seven years has been attempting to bite off more than it could chew. Noting that citizen participation is a key to a successful program, he made the following comments on the situation:

Much of the opposition to these programs and others results from misunderstanding on the part of local citizens who, deprived of the benefit of easy access to factual information, rely on rumor and become fearful of what they have heard.

Certainly it is true that public meetings are held, copies of the proposed plans are made available at various sources, articles are sent to the news media, and various other means employed to inform the citizen. But it must be realized that the ordinary citizen has only a limited amount of time available to pursue such information. He must farm his land; care for his buildings, livestock and equipment; try to spend some time with his family and devote many hours every day at his job or profession. There is a great demand on his time, and he often cannot find the extra hours to read voluminous [illegible] can scarcely comprehend, attend lengthy public meetings, read thoroughly every issue of his newspaper or keep his ear and eye glued to the radio and television.

In many cases, personal contacts are required to inform affected landowners and others with a strong personal concern. Perhaps a local office should be established where concerned citizens can come for information at their convenience. Local news media could be contacted personally by project leaders to explain the proposal and emphasize its possibly controversial nature in order to stimulate adequate news coverage. The greater the news coverage, the more likely people will become aware of the proposal and react to it. This type of office will have my complete backing and support.

Granted, all of these steps require time, money and personnel — yet they are the only way the department can be reasonably sure that everyone with an interest or stake in the project has the facts.

If, after all measures have been taken to inform the citizen and we are certain that the facts about the projects are understood, there still appears to be overwhelming public opposition, then thought must be given to abandoning the proposed project and moving operations to another area where the plan possibly will be better received.

No government that asserts it is "democratic" can ram unwanted projects or policies down the throat of the citizen and continue to make that claim.

Where a program meets with universal opposition in every locality where the department attempts to implement it, perhaps that program, despite its laudable objective, is confronted with such formidable realities that it must be either greatly modified or abandoned. The waste of manpower and public funds can become astronomical when devoted to plans or projects that cannot succeed.

But it must also be recognized that there is seldom universal approval of any proposed project. This is as true for, say, a school bond issue, as it is a trail project or expansion of a park.

What is important is that government provide a forum for expression of the public will so that when decisions are made they cannot be said to have been made without giving the citizen a chance to be heard.

It is my conviction that if a project has real worth, it can ultimately be "sold" to the majority of the citizens.

We are attempting to address these concerns in a straightforward manner, in full cooperation with responsible citizen groups and, very importantly, our public representation.

Our problems are not solved, controversial involvement has not and will not diminish, but for the first time in several years we have an excellent chance to make significant gains.

I have pledged our cooperation to you, our citizen participants, in the managing of our precious resources.

Chief's Corner

Kenneth Froschheiser
Chief of Police
Thief River Falls Police Dep't.

We have all noticed that the streets are slicker this year than we have noticed for some years. I would like to remind all motorists of safe winter driving habits.

In a good number of the fender-benders that the department has investigated, icy streets and intersections play a major part of cause in the accident. We have noticed that a lot of the accidents happen because of driving too fast for conditions. Stopping distances are almost double when trying to stop on ice, so I ask all motorists to lower their speed when approaching these hazardous areas so that the vehicle will stop rather than sliding through an intersection and causing an accident.

One other area of concern is on residential corners or intersections. Because of the amount of snow the banks are getting very high and it is difficult to see other vehicles approaching from the side. An easy and inexpensive aid is to tie a bright reflective flag to the radio antenna of the vehicles so your vehicle can be seen much easier by other motorists.

I would also strongly advise snowmobile operators to put a flag on their machine so they can be seen easier. Many times a snowmobile can be driven down the side of a street and a vehicle backing from a driveway cannot see it and back right into the path of the snowmobiler, causing property damage and possible serious injury.

I would ask all motorists to recheck themselves on safe winter driving habits and we can prevent a good number of the accidents that are happening. Thank you.

First Period Crookston Blitz Routs Northland

Wednesday's scheduled 60-minute MJCAA hockey game matching northwestern Minnesota collegiate rivals Northland and Crookston was decided in a third of that time as the Trojans pumped in eight first period goals and ran up an easy 12-4 victory over the Northmen in the Thief River Falls sports arena.

Seven different Crookston players scored during the first period blitz in which the Trojans scored on eight of their 17 shots on net. Northland goalie John Halgren was victimized for seven of those goals, surrendering three in a 28-second span that stalked Crookston to a 5-0 lead with just 8:29 elapsed.

Northland coach Lundbohm defended his freshman netminder, however, and spread the blame elsewhere. "They got six goals right from the slot that I don't think any goalie could have stoppped. Our defensemen weren't moving them out and our forwards weren't taking a man."

To Northland's defense, the squad was battling the flu bug. Obviously the first period did little to make the Northmen feel any better as they lost their second decision in three starts against the Trojans.

"We finally started scoring some goals," sighed Crookston coach Mick Metzer. "We haven't been scoring many lately. We got a few goals that weren't what you'd call good goals in that first period and things started going our way. Everything we put up went in," he said, sounding more like a basketball coach than a hockey coach.

Ten Trojans scored, with only Rhody Johnson of Edina and Mark Ogaard of Mount St. Benedict scoring twice.

"We've got a good enough club that we can play with anybody if we stay out of the penalty box," noted Metzer. Crookston did accumlate 13 of the game's 22 penalties, but they all came after the issue was decided and there were no major incidents like those that marred the first meeting of the year between the two rivals.

Northland saved some face when star freshman wing Doug Dallmann collected three points in a one minute span late in the third period. Dallmann scored on a scramble in front of Crookston goalie Dean Grindahl at 18:11, came right back with a blistering slap shot from the point at 18:35 and assisted on a similar shot by Mitch Dicken at 19:13.

NORTHLAND GOALIE John Halgren juggled the puck after blocking a Crookston shot during Wednesday's MJCAA hockey game played in the Thief River Falls sports arena. The Trojans scored eight first period goals en route to a one-sided 12-4 victory over the Northmen.

MCC Girls Edge Skippers 29-28 In Overtime Game

Middle River gained an overtime-producing tie in the final seconds of regulation time, but narrowly mis-fired on a potential game-winning shot at the final buzzer to drop a 29-28 girls high school basketball decision to Marshall County Central Thursday at Newfolden.

Marshall County Central expanded a 7-4 first quarter edge into a 19-8 halftime cushion. But Middle River pulled within 23-18 in the third quarter and then scored on an offensive rebound to tie the game 28-28 at the end of regulation time.

Rosalyn Knutson scored the only point of the overtime when she made the first of a two-shot free throw situation midway through the three-minute period.

A final shot by Middle River rolled around the rim before falling off.

"We played really well in the first half," reported Marshall County Central coach Tom Mjelde. "But we let them come back in the second half and we were just lucky to win it in overtime."

Knutson led the 6-6 Nordics with a 12-point, 14-rebound game. Betsy Abrahamson scored 14 points for the Skippers.

Marshall County Central plays at Strandquist tonight (Monday). The Nordics travel to Grygla Thursday and will be at Warroad Saturday to complete a busy week.

Grygla — Warroad

Grygla sandwiched 38 points around a two-point second quarter to beat Warroad 48-31 Thursday.

The host Eagles jumped out to a 17-7 first quarter lead but then ran into "a dry second quarter," according to head coach Till Raduenz that made it 19-11 at halftime. A 21-point third quarter shot the difference to 40-20.

Jill Saurdiff and Sherry Anderson scored 15 and 10 points, respectively, for the Eagles who overcame an 8-for-28 free throw night to boost their record to 12-1. Sue Hamlin scored 12 points for the Warriors.

Grygla plays at Lancaster tonight (Monday). The Eagles host Marshall County Central Thursday.

Supreme Court Upholds DNR In Water Case

Minnesota Supreme Court has upheld the authority of the Department of Natural Resources to require a permit before public waters may be drained.

The ruling was handed down January 12 in the case of the state vs. Wesley Olson.

Olson, a farmer in Big Stone county, had drained 81-acre Sweetwater Lake in 1974 without applying for a permit from the DNR.

The DNR sought an injunction from the district court to prevent Olson from draining the lake but its request was denied.

Lower court ruled that granting the injunction would amount to an unconstitutional taking of Olson's property without just compensation.

Supreme Court reversed the district court's decision, saying that "drainage of the lake without a permit is impermissible" and that the water permit requirement of state law is not on its face unconstitutional.

The Supreme Court suggested that Olson apply for a permit from the DNR, and that any further facts relating to constitutional issues could be presented at permit hearings.

Joseph N. Alexander, acting commissioner of natural resources, said the DNR will ask Olson to apply for a permit.

But he said if Olson does not apply, the DNR will take the remaining legal steps necessary to restore the lake to its original condition.

Tim Swanson scored 25 points for the winners who led 39-14 at halftime and remained in front 43-20 at the end of the third quarter. Kevin Sanders also broke double figures with 10 points.

TRF — Bemidji

Anniversary

"Twenty-five years ago, Cliff Sakry, along with Cap Lund (fondly known as 'Mr. Ducks Unlimited'), Nick Kahler and a few other dedicated men, reorganized and formed the Minnesota conservation federation.

First issue of the organization's publication came off the press just months after a group of far-sighted Minnesotans formed the MCF and dedicated the efforts of the organization to the wise use and preservation of the state's magnificent and highly diversified natural resources.

Shortly after it was organized this fledgling group saw a great need to keep members from throughout the state informed of important conservation issues and launched the Minnesota Out-of-Doors publication (it came to be known as MOOD) to fill this need. Since that time MOOD has enjoyed an ever-increasing readership of members and non-members throughout Minnesota.

Through MOOD the MCF has been able to communicate with many local conservation clubs, individuals and government agencies in correcting specific conservation problems, promoting a greater public awareness of the growing need for conservation practices and in helping pave the way for effective local, state and national conservation legislation.

Since MOOD was launched a quarter of a century ago the tremendous increase in Minnesota's population, availability of leisure time, easier transportation and a variety of other factors has placed tremendous pressure on the use of our natural resources for recreation. The needs of expanding industry and agriculture have compounded this pressure.

During the early years of publication the MCF and MOOD were much like fish swimming up stream. This was before "environment" and "ecology" became household words, when the spirit of "development, growth, and exploitation" was very much in vogue.

The MCF, with about 10,000 members, is the state affiliate of the National Wildlife Federation in Washington, D.C., and through this affiliation is able to support conservation on national issues, particularly those affecting Minnesota and neighboring states.

Northland community college basketball team will try to lock up a Northwest Division title and a more favorable berth in the 1979 MJCAA state basketball tournament this week when the Northmen face Northwest Division rivals Fergus Falls and Brainerd. The Northmen play at Fergus Falls Wednesday in a first-place battle and then close out their 1978-79 home schedule Saturday afternoon against Brainerd.

A weekend trip to Itasca and Hibbing Feb. 16 and 17 will close out the season for the Northmen. Those games against Northeast Division foes count in Northland's Northwest Division standings.

Northland made state tournament appearances in 1974, 1975 and 1976 before finishing third in the Northwest Division in both 1977 and 1978. Top two teams in each of the four MJCAA divisions earn berths in the February 22-24 state tournament at Anoka-Ramsey community college in Coon Rapids.

The Northmen earned back-to-back wins over Fergus Falls and Brainerd two weeks ago, beating the foul-plagued Spartans 97-75 in Thief River Falls and following that with a 90-82 victory at Brainerd. Two wins this week would assure a divisional title for the Northmen.

First round MJCAA state tournament will find the Northwest Division champion playing the Central Division runner-up; Southern champion vs. Northeast runner-up; Northeast champion vs. Southern runner-up; and Central champion vs. Northwest runner-up.

Prowlers Have Attractive Schedule

Four remaining Lincoln high school home hockey games in the Thief River Falls sports arena should prove to be interesting match-ups that will provide plenty of entertainment for the fans.

Crookston will be here Tuesday. The Pirates figured to have one of their best teams ever this winter, but have failed to live up to preseason expectations. Nevertheless, Crookston boasts two of the top individuals in Section 8 hockey in Mark Perreault and Bob Clauson.

Thief River Falls will then play at Roseau Saturday and travel to Hallock Tues., Feb. 13, before closing out the year with three home games. The Prowlers host Detroit Lakes Fri., Feb. 16, entertain Warroad Tues., Feb. 20, and take on Fergus Falls Fri., Feb. 23.

Detroit Lakes' fine play of late has thrust the vastly-improved Lakers among the Section 8 leaders. They've received rave notices recently and they'll be out to prove they can play with the best in Section 8.

The Thief River Falls-Warroad game will be a rematch of the penalty-marred Jan. 23 contest won by the Prowlers 4-1. The intensity in that one should be keen.

Fergus Falls for the second straight year ranks among the top challengers to Roseau in Section 8 play. A year ago the Otters defeated the Prowlers 6-1 in the regular season finale and then repeated the process with a 6-2 first round Section 8 tournament victory over Thief River Falls.

Post-season tournament play starts in just three weeks. On Mon., Feb. 26, first round sub section games will match the bottom eight teams in the regular season Section 8 point standings. The No. 16 team plays at the home site of the No. 9 team; No. 13 at No. 12; No. 15 at No. 10; and No. 14 at No. 11.

Second round of the sub section tournament will be played the following night, Feb. 27, as the 9-16 winner plays at the home of the No. 8 team; 12-13 winner at No. 5; 10-15 at No. 7; and 11-14 at No. 6.

Those winners will advance to the quarterfinals of the 1979 Section 8 hockey tournament scheduled to be played March 2-9 at East Grand Forks.

On Fri., March 2, the eventual 9-16-8 winner challenges the No. 1 seeded team and the 13-12-5 winner goes against No. 4. On Sat., March 3, the 10-15-7 winner takes on the No. 2 seeded squad and the 11-14-6 winner meets No. 3.

Top bracket semifinal game will be played Mon., March 5, with the bottom bracket semifinal game planned Tues., March 6. Section 8 championship game will be played Fri., March 9.

Miscellaneous

+Moorhead high school, dropped from the 1979 Fargo Shanley football schedule, has replaced the Deacons with Minneapolis West. The Spuds will also play Fergus Falls, Thief River Falls, Grand Rapids, Hibbing, Fargo North, Fargo South, Sioux Falls O'Gorman and Superior.

Northland community college basketball team assured itself of a position in the 1979 MJCAA state basketball tournament by knocking off Rainy River 75-74 Saturday afternoon at International Falls. The Northmen, who are battling Fergus Falls for a Northwest Division title, can do no worse than a tie for second place with Brainerd, and under MJCAA tie-breaking procedures, Northland would be awarded the Northwest's number two state meet berth in the event the Northmen and Red Raiders tie.

Dominating the boards, Northland rolled up a 42-31 halftime edge and increased that to 56-42 seven minutes into the second half. But a half-court trap press, used by Rainy River produced 20 Northland turnovers in the second half and the Voyageurs gained a 72-72 tie with 44 seconds remaining.

Mike Carriere, who "played a very effective inside game," according to Northland coach Chet Engelman, made the first of a two-shot free throw situation with 25 seconds on the clock for a 73-72 edge for the Northmen.

Rainy River, playing for the last shot, got the ball into their best player — Tim Rehn with seven seconds left, but Northland center Jeff Neelan came up with a clean block. Keith Charbonneau picked up the loose ball for the Northmen and was fouled immediately. He iced the game with two free throws and the Northmen gave up an uncontested Rainy River bucket at the buzzer.

Northland out-rebounded Rainy River 62-46. "In the first half we pinned poeple," explained Engelman. "We blocked out better than we have all year."

Carriere led the Northland rebounders with 15 while also scoring 13 points. Neelan had 13 rebounds and 12 points and Jon Nelson pulled down 10 rebounds and collected 14 points.

Northland shot 47 per cent from the field, hitting 32 of 69 attempts. Rainy River shot only 37 per cent, making 33 of 90 shots. Northland was 11-for-20 at the free throw line while Rainy River finished with an 8-for-13 mark at the line.

The Northmen, now 13-5 and 6-1 in the MJCAA, played without the services of Vince Parker, Jerry Hooten, Scotty Gilbert and Tom Jordan after they experienced "transportation problems," according to Engelman who took just eight players to International Falls.

Key Section 8 Games Slated For Saturday

Feature games in this week's Section 8 high school hockey schedule will be played Saturday when first place Roseau hosts fourth place Thief River Falls and second place Fergus Falls entertains third place Warroad.

Roseau continues to lead the Section 8 point standings with a 13-0 points won-lost mark. The Rams, 14-0 for the year, have five Section 8 points remaining to be played for. Thief River Falls with 10, has the most points still at stake in Section 8 play.

GAME-WINNING goal in Saturday's Northland-Mesabi MJCAA hockey game played in the Thief River Falls sports arena was scored by Northland's Glen Mosher just 1:30 into a scheduled 10-minute sudden death overtime period. Mesabi goalie Steve Podpeskar watched the puck go by as the Northmen won 4-3.

A weekend sweep over Mesabi kept the Northland community college hockey team in the thick of the MJCAA pennant race. The Northmen earned a 4-3 overtime win Saturday night and came up with a 7-4 victory Sunday afternoon to close out their regular season MJCAA home schedule with an 8-6 record, 8-7 overall.

"I don't think we played that well, but we got two wins so I guess I'm happy," noted Northland coach Bob Lundbohm who was at least satisfied with his team's defensive play that had surrendered 38 goals in the past three games. "We played a lot better defensively. We got two good games out of our goalie," he said, praising the work of netminder Joe Klosterman.

Northland closes out its MJCAA schedule with three important road games this week. The Northmen play a 7:30 p.m. game at Crookston Wednesday and then visit league-leading Hibbing for a Saturday-Sunday series.

A final regular season series against Rochester Feb. 17-18 in the Thief River Falls sports arena will be a nonconference set.

It's becoming habit-forming. Entering overtime for the third time this season, Northland repeated the formula that produced two previous wins by scoring on the first shot on goal of the scheduled 10-minute sudden death period for a 4-3 series-opening victory over Mesabi Saturday.

This time it was Glen Mosher's low wrist shot from the slot on a 2-on-2 rush that was the winner. The puck went under Mesabi goalie Steve Pedpeskar with just 1:39 elapsed.

In an MJCAA rarity, neither team scored in the first period, with two periods of lackluster play netting an unusually low-scoring 1-1 draw. Mesabi led 3-2 before Northland's Karl Chromy forced overtime by scoring his second goal of the game at 9:38 of the third period when he plucked a loose puck out of the slot.

Podpeskar was kept busy making 40 saves while Northland netminder Joe Klosterman faced 13 of his 27 hosts in the first period.

Warroad Wins Penalty-Filled Contest, 8-5

Warroad Lakers scored three unanswered goals in the second period to break open a close hockey game en route to an 8-5 win over the St. Paul Parkers Sunday in a penalty-marred men's senior amateur hockey game played in the Thief River Falls sports arena.

Pete Roberts scored twice for the Lakers who beat the Parkers 5-2 Saturday night at Warroad in the first game of the weekend exhibition series matching the top-quality clubs. Single goals were added by Tom Goddard, Bob Storey, Dave Pavlich, Bruce Salmela, Tim McKinnon and Jim Cole as the Lakers beat the Parkers for the fifth time in six meetings in recent years.

St. Paul, trailing just 3-2 after the first period before falling behind 6-2 in the second, received scoring from Tom Lundeen, Mike Knoke, Bob Gianni, Mike Reilly and Tom Mogish.

Warroad goalie Peter Waselovich stopped 25 shots while Spike Lempelius of St. Paul turned aside 40 shots. The Lakers out-shot the Parkers 24-7 in the second period.

Beginning with a pair of fights that broke out at the 2:14 mark of the first period, the two teams racked up 86 minutes in penalties. The Parkers were charged with 14 infractions, including two fighting calls and a pair of misconducts. The Lakers picked up 12 penalties, two for fighting and a five-minute call against Jack Ganyo for a vicious third period play in which he skated across the rink and laid a retaliatory high stick across the face of a St. Paul player.

The game was sponsored by the Thief River Falls amateur hockey association (TRFAHA).

Bob Elsner Wins Two Races At So. Portland

Bob Elsner, in his first start since winning the world's championship title two weeks ago at Eagle River, Wis., was a double winner Sunday in Sno Pro professional snowmobile racing at So. Portland, Maine.

Elsner and Arctic Cat teammate Jim Dimmerman were 1-2 finishers in the 250 event, with Alan Decker taking third on a Ski-Doo.

Brad Hulings won the 340 race on a Scorpion, followed by Scorpion Squadron teammate Steve Thorsen and Decker.

Elsner came back to win the 440-X feature, followed by Hulings and Decker.

Next stop on the 1978-79 Sno Pro circuit will be Sunday at Bangor, Maine. Last week's competition at Saratoga Springs, N.Y. was rained out.

Enderlein, Oseid, Hams Beat Falcons . . .

Three Prowlers Score 61 Points In 68-61 Victory

Steve Enderlein, Kyle Hams and Jeff Oseid combined for 61 points Saturday to carry the Lincoln high school basketball team to a 68-61 victory over Fertile-Beltrami before a sparse crowd in the Lincoln gym. Enderlein returned to the Thief River Falls line-up with a 21-point performance while Hams and Oseid each scored 20 as the Prowlers improved their record to 7-8.

"That's what I expect from them every game," said Thief River Falls coach Glen Peters when informed of the point totals of his high-scoring trio. "For three quarters of basketball, we really moved up and down the court. We just made up our mind that we were going to come out and run and gun."

Thief River Falls nearly bettered its anemic Friday Enderlein-less offensive performance that resulted in a 54-38 loss to Bemidji in the first half against the Falcons, but still trailed 37-36 at intermission.

The third quarter belonged to the Prowlers, however, as they repeated a 24 point second quarter and netted a 60-47 lead. Fertile-Beltrami led 42-38 with 1:12 elapsed in the third quarter when Thief River Falls went on an offensive tear that out-scored the Falcons 16-2 over a game clinching 2½ minute span in which the Prowlers canned seven straight shots for a 54-44 edge.

An Ednerlein drive made it 66-53 midway through the fourth quarter. But after building that 13-point cushion, Thief River Falls scored only on a pair of Oseid free throws the rest of the way as the Falcons closed the gap.

Thief River Falls shot 42 per cent from the field, hitting 28 of 67 shots. Fertile-Beltrami shot 39 per cent by making 21 of 58 shots. The loosely-played game featured 48 free throws and 51 turnovers. The Prowlers were 12-for-19 at the free throw line where the Falcons were 19-for-29, with guard Randy Faul getting 11 of those in a 23-point performance. Fertile-Beltrami committed 28 turnovers compared to Thief River Falls' 23.

Thief River Falls will host East Grand Forks Friday at 7:30 p.m. in Northwest Athletic Conference action.

Prowlers Play Without Steve Enderlein . . .

Offensive Woes Surface In 54-38 Loss To Bemidji

Steve Enderlein, sidelined by an ankel injury suffered in practice Wednesday, was not in uniform Friday when Bemidji dealt Thief River Falls a 54-38 Northwest Athletic Conference basketball loss. However, his name was prominent in post-game conversation. The flashy guard leads the NWAC in scoring with an 18.6-point scoring average that includes a 21-point effort in Thief River Falls, 48-46 overtime win at Bemidji back in December.

Asked what the difference was between the two games, Bemidji coach Jack Luoma simply said, "Enderlein."

Sat., Feb. 10 — Bemidji at Little Falls.

Asked how much of a difference Enderlein might have made in the game, Thief River Falls coach Glen Peters' equally simple answer was "20 points."

Thief River Falls' nonexistent offense broke double figures only in the second quarter when a four-point flurry in the final half minute produced a 12-point period that enabled the Prowlers to narrow what had been a 23-14 gap with 1:30 remaining to 25-20 at halftime, thanks to a pair of Bemidji turnovers that were followed by a Kyle Hams field goal and a Jim Nyland bucket awarded on a goaltending charge with 10 seconds left.

But Bemidji's John Noga and Tom Campbell opened the second half with back-to-back shots that quickly shot the margin to 29-20. Thief River Falls was never closer than five points the rest of the way, trailing 36-29 at the end of the third quarter.

A pair of Ricky Peterson free throws pulled Thief River Falls within 37-32 with 6:43 remaining in the game, but the Prowlers scored only six more points, surrendering nine straight points to fall behind 46-32 with 2:49 left.

"You've got to score points to win; more than 38," sighed Peters. "We looked like we were stalling, but we weren't. You've got to move the basketball. You've got to make some moves and go to the basket. We never did. The offensive punch wasn't there."

"You take out Steve and that takes a lot away from them. That's why they didn't function well offensively," mentioned Luoma, again referring to Enderlein's absence.

Noga took game-high scoring honors with 17 points. Rob Egersdorf, who at one point at the end of the first quarter when he first entered the game and carrying over into the start of the second quarter scored eight straight points that broke open an 8-8 tie, added 12. Kyle Hams was the only Thief River Falls scorer in double figures, finishing with 14 points — 12 in the first half.

Thief River Falls shot only 31 per cent from the field, hitting just 15 of 48 shots. The Prowlers were a poor 6-for-28 in the second half (21 per cent). Bemidji shot 46 per cent by making 19 of 41 shots. The Lumberjacks were 16-for-26 at the free throw line where the Prowlers were 8-for-13. Thief River Falls held a 30-21 rebound advantage, but also led in turnovers, 21-13.

EARLY IN the second quarter of Friday's Thief River Falls-Bemidji Northwest Athletic Conference high school basketball game, the Lumberjacks' Rob Engersdorf came up with this steal and fast break lay-up as part of personal offensive outburst that produced eight straight points and staked Bemidji to a 16-8 lead. Giving chase on the play was the Prowlers' Ricky Peterson. Bemidji won the game 54-38.

Fitzgerald Nets Hat Trick . . .

Prowlers Edge Moorhead 6-3

Bob Fitzgerald sparked a four-goal outburst in the third period by scoring twice to complete a hat trick performance that led the Lincoln high school hockey team to a come-from-behind 6-3 win at Moorhead Saturday. Fitzgerald's three-goal game was the first hat trick for a Thief River Falls skater this year.

Kurt Larson scored twice to stake Moorhead to a 3-2 second period lead that was aided in part, according to Thief River Falls coach Wendell Grand, to electricial problems in the Moorhead arena that affected the ice-making equipment.

"The fact that the ice was incredibly slow and sticky can be an equalizer for a team that likes to move the puck like we do," explained Grand who wasn't particularly pleased with the way the Prowlers played. "We seem to play like the competition. When we play good clubs, we play well. When we play the teams that scramble a bit, we get into that kind of thing," said Grand.

Grand did praise the play of Scott Sabo who centered a line that produced five of the six Thief River Falls Goals. "Sabo played an excellent hockey game," mentioned Grand.

A game-opening goal by Sabo put Thief River Falls ahead 1-0 with just 32 seconds elapsed in the first period. But goals by Bob Nelson and Larsen in the final two minutes supplied the Spuds with a 2-1 edge.

Larsen and Fitzgerald traded second period goals before Fitzgerald got the equilzer at 4:16 of the third period. Paul Drees and Wade Hoppe scored 71 seconds apart for a 5-3 game and Fitzgerald notched his third goal at 11:31.

The win upped Thief River Falls' record to 10-4 heading into a Tuesday game against Crookston in the sports arena.

Moorhead defeated the Lincoln junior varsity 4-1. Tony Loeffler scored for the lone goal for the Lincoln B squad, now 5-8-1.

Goodridge Tips Grygla 50-48 At The Buzzer

Goodridge snapped an eight-game losing streak Saturday on a last-second shot by Randy Henrickson that beat rival Grygla 50-48 in a high school basketball game played at Goodridge.

With the score tied at 48-48, Goodridge controlled a jump ball with 11 seconds remaining. The Huskies called time-out with seven seconds left to set up a final shot that missed. However, Henrickson, a 6-1 sophomore, grabbed the rebound, put up a shot at the buzzer that rolled around the rim and finally fell through for the win.

"It was a good ball game both ways," acknowledged Grygla coach Van Swanson. "We played alright, but we had a bad second quarter."

Indeed, after running up a 21-14 first quarter lead, Grygla was out-scored 21-9 in the second quarter to trail 35-30 at halftime. The Goodridge lead was cut to 41-40 entering the final eight minutes.

Pilot Program At NWVC Successful

by Kim Blaeser
Times Reporter

Characters in the musical "Oklahoma" were chided about the need for friendship between the farmers and the cowpokes. A modern lesson in the necessity of cooperation between industry and education is evident in a recent venture of the Northwest vocational center and various Thief River Falls businesses. Fruit of the cooperation was a successful two-week pilot program in parts counterwork.

Born in the advisory committee of the auto body department, the program idea was under disucssion for over a year and was eventually handed over to a committee made up of representatives from the Northwest vocational center, Thomas Motors, Wilson Bros., Falls Supply and Lind Motors.

Examining a survey of occupations in Thief River Falls, the committee found that there were 50 persons working as parts countermen within the city. This seemed to justify the committee's belief that there was a need for an educational program in that field.

Objectives of the committee were to develop a pilot program at the center school stressing career opportunities as parts counterman and to arouse interest at the Thief River Falls area vocational technical institute (AVTI) for a post-secondary program.

Acting as coordinating instructor for the pilot program which commenced in January was Sandy Wilson, general manager of Wilson Bros. Guest instructors included Orren Bendickson, owner-manager of Total Auto store; Rodney Knutson, operations manager at Wilson Bros.; and Gary Heaton, sales manager of Total Auto. The two-week course included field trips to both Wilson Bros. and the Total Auto store.

Speaking about course content Wilson stated, "We tried to give them a broad overview of parts counterwork with exploration into affiliated fields."

Course members were from the auto body and auto mechanics classes at the center school which serves Thief River Falls, Goodridge, Plummer, Newfolden, Middle River and Strathcona. Students were given the option of continuing in their regular classes or taking part in the parts counterman course. All

In School Dispute . . .

Unfair Labor Practice Ruled

Thief River Falls school district, its board of education and superintendent of schools have been found to have committed unfair labor practices in a decision handed down February 2 by Judge Robert A. Peterson of Ninth District court in Pennington county.

The suit brought by the Minnesota Education association and the Thief River Falls Education association involved the school district's hiring of Wendall Grand, elementary teacher at Northrop school, as an assistant to the principal at the school.

According to testimony presented and summarized in the Judge's findings and memo, the school district posted the position for assistant to the principal on March 1, 1977, and withdrew the posting the following day. In May of that year Grand was appointed to the position by board resolution at a rate of one hour per day overload pay.

Among the objectors in the proceedings was Peter Tri, also a teacher at Northrop school, who had applied for the position when it was posted and had his application returned by Dr. Milton Hoff, principal at Franklin middle school who was at that time serving as assistant superintendent. Tri contended that Dr. Hoff had made statements "of a coercing nature and in a coercing manner".

Included in the court's findings was that ". . . Dr. Hoff did not commit an unfair labor practice of interfering, restraining or coercing Mr. Tri, nor discriminating in regard to hire or tenure to encourage or discourage membership in an employee organization. . ."

The judge's memo sums up the MEA and TRFEA case by stating, "They claim that the defendants committed an unfair labor practice by

Allotments Announced

Pennington, Marshall and Red Lake counties will receive $684,193, $1,283,073, and $548,539, respectively, as their share of the $93,482,005 allocated to the 1979 county state aid highway (CSAH) fund, according to Gordon Fay, director, office of state aid, Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT).

Thirty-four Minnesota counties have been allotted more than $1 million each. The allotments range from $500,000 to $6 million. More than $1 billion has been shared by the counties since the initial apportionment of $23.9 million in 1958.

The county state-aid highway fund makes available to the counties $56,010,589 for construction and $37,471,416 for maintenance of the 30,000-mile CSAH system.

First Street Widening Aired . . .

Reach No Decision At Joint Meeting

Joint meeting of the Thief River Falls city council and Pennington county board was held Tuesday, February 6, to discuss proposed widening of First St. from Main to Pennington and the widening of the First St. bridge. At the meeting reaffirmation was also given to an upcoming signalization project. Present at the meeting in addition to city council and county board members were engineering representatives from both groups and resident MN-DOT engineer Cliff Larson.

Alternatives in the street widening and availability of funds for bridge improvements were outlined by Walt Forney on behalf of the city engineering firm. The city council has gone on record in support of the engineering alternative which would widen First St. to 60 feet with all of the widening to be done on the north side, taking two feet of land to provide for seven and a half foot sidewalks and five 12 foot driving lanes, one of which would be designated as a left turn lane. Also included in the proposal is the widening of the First St. bridge to 52 feet which would be adequate for four 12-foot driving lanes and buffer spaces on each side.

Cost estimates for the projects were presented by Arvid Olson, county engineer, who indicated that the widening of First St. to 60 feet on the north would cost approximately $42,000. Widening of the bridge would involve $300,000 of funds, the majority of which would come from federal monies and bridge bonding funds. Non-participating costs including soil borings, engineering design, demolition, engineering inspection and post contract and approaches would total $52,500. Split on a 50-50 basis, costs to the city and county would be $26,250 each for bridge widening and $21,000 each for widening of First St. or a total contribution from each group of $47,250 for both projects.

Chairman of the county board, Roger Hoffman, indicated that although the group was totally committed CATHOLIC SCHOOLS WEEK is being observed at St. Bernard's school in Thief River Falls this week. Special guest Tuesday was Bishop Victor Balke, shown here with students in the first grade class of Mrs. Cindy Beste. The Bishop presided at a morning mass, visited classrooms and then was a guest of the school at a dinner with the students during their noon lunch period.

Set Hearing On Zoning

Date of hearing on petitions for rezoning of property proposed to be purchased by Holiday station stores was set at Monday, March 19, when the Thief River Falls planning commission met in regular session Monday evening in the council chambers in the city auditorium.

Property in question has been acquired by Dr. Donald Goodrich for re-sale to the Holiday company which preposes to build a new stationstore at the intersection of First street and highway 59. Residents of the area have petitioned for a change in zoning which would prevent the construction of the new building by making it a nonconforming use.

The March 19 date was set at the suggestion of commission chairman Duane Walton who said he would be out of town until March 12 and believed every effort should be made to have the full commission in attendance at the hearing.

"I believe this to be a precedent-setting decision we have to make," Walton told the commission. "To the best of my knowledge, we have not had this type of action initiated previously in Thief River Falls. In view of the importance of the decision to be made, I believe every effort should be made to have the entire commission in attendance."

The motion by Milan Borsheim, seconded by J.J. Womack, to set the hearing date for March 19 was adopted without dissenting vote, although commission member Glenn Peterson initially protested waiting that long for the hearing to be held. "I don't think it's necessary," he said about the delayed hearing date. "By that time there are bound to be other time conflicts that we don't even know about now."

John Penn, a resident of the area of the proposed new Holiday building, told the planning commission that he had been asked to represent the group petitioning for rezoning. He distributed printed copies of the petitioners' objections but was informed by chairman Walton, on the adivce of counsel Paul Ihle, that his oral presentation would be more properly deferred to the night of the hearing.

Also present at the meeting was court reporter Vern Hartley to record the proceedings on behlaf of an attorney for Dr. Goodrich who was unable to attend the meeting in person.

Much of the remainder of the meeting was devoted to presentation of material by city planner Jack Quinlivan regarding updating the initial portion of the land use chapter of the city' comprehensive plan. He noted that surveys of land use had been made and that soil testing and other work is now underway.

Approval was given to a preliminary plat for Anda Construction company.

Annapolis Brass Quintet No Military Group

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

Although all members of the Annapolis Brass Quintet have experience in military bands, the name of the group doesn't come from the U.S. naval academy synonymous with the Annapolis name. The group derives its name from the city of Annapolis, Maryland, where it headquarters.

Only two members of the present Quintet — trumpet player David Cran and bass trombone and tuba player Robert Posten — were among the original group that formed under the Annapolis Brass Quintet name. Cran is a native of Duluth and Posten is from Pennsylvania. They did perform together at the U.S. naval academy where Cran attended from 1966 to 1970 and Posten from 1967 to 1971.

Wisconsin native Arthur LaBar, French horn player, was with the U.S. army band from 1969 to 1972. Trumpet player Robert Suggs, who hails from Oklahoma, is also an army band graduate after playing with the group from

by James Solsten

Last Saturday night the Thief River Falls concert association presented its fourth program of the current season, the Annapolis Brass Quintet. This group had previously been heard in the 1973 program.

The quartet was just as enjoyable in 1979. Brass instruments seem to have a wide appeal and the audience certainly enjoyed the program, calling the quintet back for an encore.

I have always held the opinion that even if a particular type of instrument or style of music is not one's great favorite, one can still find much enjoyment in a performance providing the performance is expertly and musically done.

The Quintet's program was certainly expertly played by finely trained, finely honed musicians who went all out to present a program of wide variety. From typical and traditional brass music of early periods and current writings to Renaissance music played upon Renaissance instruments — in costume — to the jazz idiom, where the execution was flawless while their stylistic interpretation may have been less so, and finally to the ingenius writing of J.S. Bach's Art of Fuge, every musical taste should have found something to enjoy. Indeed, the audience indicated its enjoyment enthusiastically.

Commissioners Act On Varied Matters Tues.

Various items were acted upon by the Pennington county board when members met in a regular session Tuesday. The day's agenda included a joint meeting with the Thief River Falls city council to discuss First St. and First St. bridge projects but no action had been taken by the board on the matter at the close of Tuesday's session. The meeting was therefore adjourned to February 22 when it is expected that commissioners will make a decision about the projects.

In attendance at the board meeting yesterday was county court Judge Larry Jorgenson who informed the board that probation officer Gary Esler was resigning his post. Prior to Esler's replacement, Jorgenson explained that he would like the probation services to be realigned in order that Pennington county might work with Marshall rather than Clearwater county to save in mileage costs. Both the county board and the county attorney gave their approval to the realignment.

Jorgenson also requested that the county board appoint a representative to work on a committee which is being formed to study the concept of court appointed attorneys. The county court judge suggested that, if it was feasible, a single individual might be retained on a part-time basis to serve all those who request court appointed attorneys. Commissioner Don Grabanski was named to the committee which will study the situation.

The rewindowing project at the courthouse was again under discussion by the board which requested more information in regard to the design. The project has been in the planning stages for some time and $55,000 of revenue sharing funds have been set aside to help cover costs. Total cost of the project, which was designed by Foss, Engelstad & Foss architects, is estimated at $94,000.

An annual report from county livestock inspector Frank Hazard was presented to the board and ordered filed. The report indicated there had been 15 referrals for rabies testing in 1978 and defined livestock disease discovered in 1978 as "normal" in character.

Richard Jamison, county commissioner from Norman county and regional director of the association of Minnesota counties, was in attendance to introduce himself to the board members; an update on solid waste matters indicated no progress; the engineer was instructed to call for bids for a new motor grader with the old one to be traded in and bids to be opened March 6; and three plats, Ward Votava's, Mrs. Ed Gilbert's and a plat in the Gunderson First addition, were approved.

The board adjourned to February 22.

FIRST PLACE CONTESTANT in the February 5 VICA hairdressing contest of the AVTI cosmetology department was Tracy Brown of Thief River Falls. Students were judged on permanent waving, cutting and styling for daytime and evening. Tracy's model in the contest was her mother, Mrs. Arlene Brown of Thief River Falls. In addition to receiving a first place trophy, Tracy will now advance to the Skill Olympics which will be held in the Twin Cities in March. Judges for the contest were from local salons.

No Decision Reached At Joint Meeting

to the signalization project being undertaken by the city and county they had made no decision yet as to whether or not they supported the First St.-First St. bridge projects and would choose to participate.

Tuesday's meeting centered, not on whether or not there was a need to alleviate the traffic congestion in the First St. area which, with a traffic count of 11,000 to 12,000 evidenced itself; but on what were the wisest and most economical steps to take in the immediate future in dealing with the problem.

One opinion expressed was that the best way to alleviate traffic on First St. was to construct a new bridge to the south on Greenwood St. and upgrade that street. Logic behind this argument was that a good portion of the first street traffic is generated by persons desiring access to Arctic, Hydra-Mac, Best Western, K-Mart and other businesses located south of Thief River Falls on highway 32 or on the highway 59 strip area. The argument presented was that if there was a southern river crossing traffic on First St. would be lessened, some felt to the point that the present street-bridge arrangement would be adequate to handle it.

Opposing opinions were that even if a third of the First St. traffic was transferred to a southern route, 7,000 to 8,000 vehicles would still be traveling First St. and First St. bridge and congestion would still be a problem; and that, while it may be financially feasible to undertake a First St.-First St. bridge project at this time, it is not and would not be feasible for some time to undertake the construction of a new bridge at Greenwood where the city would have to bear the entire project cost including approaches and road improvement costs much in excess of that involved at First St. Therefore, it was argued, if the First St.-First St. bridge project was rejected at this time the congestion problem would remain unaltered since a Greenwood bridge construction could not be undertaken for a number of years.

General opinion of both city and county officials was that both the First and Greenwood street and bridge projects were both necessary in the ultimate solution of the downtown traffic congestion problem. Disagreements arose in determining the order in which they should be undertaken and the manner in which they should be financed. A resolution from the county board stating whether or not they will participate in the First St. widening and-or First St. bridge widening is expected shortly and will likely determine the future of the project and the direction succeeding projects will take.

DRAPERY CARE HINTS
HUMIDITY & OXIDATION
Excess humidity and sudden changes in humidity can shrink or stretch loosely woven fabrics. Lined and unlined draperies will maintain their shapes and their looks better if the humidity level in your home is fairly constant. Fumes from furnaces, ovens, etc., contain chemicals that cling to draperies. When these chemicals combine with humidity and oxygen in the air, they form a mild acid that speeds up discoloration and deterioration of fabrics. You can cut down their damaging effect on your draperies by making sure that you home is well ventilated.
